Husband shot to death just like in her dream

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — A gunshot she saw in a dream took the life of Patricia Munnich's maitre d' husband just two weeks after they had joked about her eerie premonition.

At 2:30 a.m. Tuesday Frans Munnich, 39, night manager of the Fairmont Hotel restaurant, was shot in the back of the head on a darkened Nob Hill street by two men who fled in a blue van.

The attack, an apparent robbery attempt, was similar to a chilling nightmare in which Mrs. Munnich saw her husband shot to death during a holdup at the hotel.

"Yesterday was our 15th wedding anniversary," Mrs. Munnich said, struggling to hold back tears. "It's such a shock. It's a dream. I can't believe it's true."

Mrs. Munnich, a native San Franciscan, met her Dutch-born husband in Amsterdam when they were in their early 20s. He was a hotel worker, she was taking a world tour to celebrate a recent master's degree in library science.

She loved Holland and would have stayed. But "he wanted to immigrate to America. He wanted to come here so badly."

The murdered man, his widow recalled, lived only for his wife and son, 13-year-old Frans Jr. "Our son is asthmatic, a semi-invalid," she said. "Now we have no one to depend on."

Mrs. Munnich said that she told her husband and son about the unsettling dream and they all laughed about it. But the day of the killing, she said, "I had a foreboding..."

She got worried when Frans didn't arrive home on time — then, at 4 a.m., the telephone rang. It was the coroner.

"The man asked if there was anyone who could be with me, help us," she remembered. "I said 'no, we're all alone.' "

Police said Munnich, the 85th murder victim in the city this year, might have been mistaken for a wealthy man because he was dressed in a tuxedo for his job. When officers searched his body as it lay sprawled face down across cable car tracks, he had $12 in his wallet.

Slain boy's brother suspect in beating

Police have arrested the older brother of a slain Chino youth in connection with the alleged beating of murder suspect Lee Lopez's daughter on Sunday — the day before the shooting.

Officers investigating Monday's shooting death of Eddie Hernandez, 18, of 13149 10th St. on Monday, said the victim's 19-year-old brother, Manuel Richard, had been arrested at police headquarters Wednesday.

Police said a formal complaint charging Manuel Hernandez with the Sunday beating of Arleen B. Lopez, 18, of Chino at the D.E.S. Hall was drawn Wednesday morning.

An arrest warrant charging Manuel Hernandez with assault with a deadly weapon with intent to do great bodily harm was issued by Judge Philip Schaefer of the Chino Municipal Court.

Miss Lopez's father, Eli M. "Lee" Lopez, has been sought since Monday when Eddie Hernandez was shot to death in the back yard of his home. Lopez is charged with the slaying.

The mother of the brothers told the Progress Bulletin Wednesday that the murder suspect had sought to kill Manuel instead of Eddie as a result of the fight on Sunday between Manuel and members of the Lopez family.

Police said it is alleged that on Sunday morning, in the Chino D.E.S. Hall, Manuel and Miss Lopez got into an argument. As a result of the argument Manuel severely beat and kicked the woman, officers said.

Mrs. Hernandez said that later that day Lee Lopez appeared at her home and smashed a window in an attempt to strike her daughter.

On Monday police said Lopez returned to the Hernandez home and found Eddie Hernandez sitting on a chair in the back yard. After a brief conversation Lopez allegedly drew a .22 caliber handgun and opened fire. Hernandez was hit in the head and chest. He died about an hour later at Chino General Hospital.

Funeral services for Eddie Hernandez were scheduled today in Chino.

Lopez, described as a Latin, 5 feet 10, of slim build, with black hair and brown eyes is still being sought this morning in the slaying of the younger Hernandez brother.

New Manson murder list? killer sends sealed letter

VACAVILLE (AP) — A newsman says convicted mass murderer Charles Manson sent him a letter this week announcing, "I sent a list of people out to be murdered."

In an interview Wednesday, Greg DeGiere, city editor of the Vacaville Reporter, said the letter arrived late Tuesday from the California Medical Facility, where Manson is being held.

According to DeGiere, Manson did not say to whom he had sent the list or mention any names on it.

However, he said the letter described the targets as "the people responsible for the redwood trees being murdered."

Manson is serving a life sentence for masterminding the 1969 slayings of actress Sharon Tate and six other persons.

A state prison spokesman, Philip Guthrie, confirmed that Manson had written a sealed letter to a newsman. He said he had no evidence that Manson had sent out a death threat list.

The letter referred disparagingly to a recent statement by prison superintendent T. Lawrence Clanon that Manson did not appear to be as dangerous in prison as he once was, DeGiere said.

He also quoted Manson as writing that if the lessons of the Tate killings aren't learned, "you will become what you have been killing your earth for."

In the past, warnings about redwoods and killing the earth have also been made by two Manson followers, Lynette "Squeaky" Fromme and Sandra Good. Both are serving prison terms, Miss Fromme for attempting to kill President Ford and Miss Good for conspiring to mail death threats.

Guthrie said such sealed letters from inmates to reporters aren't censored or inspected.

He said authorities would investigate the latest incident only if they heard of any evidence that a crime was committed.

Ford narrows gap in poll

By The Associated Press

Less than a week after the end of the Republican convention, polls show that President Ford has narrowed the gap between him and Jimmy Carter, following the traditional pattern in which the race gets closer after both candidates are named.

The Gallup Poll, released today and based on personal interviews with 1,016 registered voters last weekend, showed that 49 per cent of the electorate supports Carter while 39 per cent supports Ford.

Two weeks ago, the Democratic presidential candidate had a lead of 56 to 33.

Gunman holds eight hostage in high-rise

Possible solution to Legion disease?

FARMINGTON, Conn. (AP) — Potentially lethal levels of nickel have been found in tissue samples taken from victims of legionnaires' disease, supporting the possibility that nickel carbonyl gas may be the cause of the mysterious illness, a medical researcher says.

Dr. F. William Sunderman Jr., who heads a University of Connecticut research team, said in an interview Wednesday night that results from a second series of tests "came out quite well in terms of supporting the role of nickel carbonyl" in the mysterious disease that has killed 26 persons who attended a state convention of the American Legion in Philadelphia July 21-24.

Sunderman said nickel levels found in tissue samples taken from the kidney, brain, liver and other organs of three victims who died of the disease were five to eight times higher than the levels found in patients who died of other causes.

He declined to reveal the exact concentrations found, but said they were "within the range we've had on fatal nickel poisoning cases."

Meanwhile, a hotel manager was hospitalized in critical condition Wednesday with symptoms of the disease, raising to 176 the number of persons who contracted the illness.

Morris D. Rosen, Pennsylvania's deputy secretary of health, said Wednesday night that Sunderman's report was being analyzed by state health officials.

He said nickel carbonyl tests being conducted at the Center for Disease Control in Atlanta on tissue from victims of the disease also have yielded high nickel levels.

Rosen said new tissue samples would be made available to Sunderman if he requested them.

THE TREE COMES DOWN

First photographs in from Korea today include this one of United Nations Command work crew as it begins cutting down a tree, which the North Koreans, in a bloody clash, had prevented an earlier work party from pruning on Aug. 18 in the Joint Security Area near Panmunjom. Two American Army officers were killed in the incident. Tension appears to have eased following talks by American and North Korean representatives.

On 36th floor of office building

CLEVELAND (AP) — A gunman held eight persons hostage today on the 36th floor of a downtown office building after firing a shot into a ceiling, authorities said.

The gunman was identified as a disgruntled former employe of Chessie System Inc. He fired one shot into the ceiling of the company's headquarters, a spokesman for the railroad holding company said.

Milt Dollinger, assistant vice president, said the man "wanted to talk about his benefits."

Police said earlier they had reports that 13 persons were being held hostage.

Dollinger said the gunman walked into Chessie's heaquarters reception area carrying a sawed-off shotgun and fired one shot. He said no one was injured.

Dollinger said the hostages included four Chessie employes, among them two painters and one unarmed security guard.

The hostages were being held in Terminal Tower on a corner of Cleveland's downtown Public Square.

One of the hostages, who identified herself as Mrs. Hoffman, called the Huntington, W.Va., Advertiser newspaper. She told city editor Charles Bowen: "I and 10 other employes are being held hostage by a former employe."

She said the former employe was holding them hostage to dramatize "his position on the GI Bill of Rights."

She said he instructed her to call as many newspapers in the region as she could. Bowen said he heard someone in the background tell the woman what to say.

As the conversation progressed, Bowen said, he heard someone in the background say "Hang up." The woman then said, "I have to go now" and the connection broke.

Zulus on rampage in tribal warfare

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) — Savage fighting broke out in at least five places today when rampaging Zulus battled blacks from other tribes in a continuing reign of terror in the Soweto township south of Johannesburg.

Newsmen in the township reported one person killed and several injured, the South African Press Association said. There was no immediate official confirmation. Unofficial reports put the week's death toll at 24.

The agency said riot squads appeared to be having some success in restoring order by separating residents of single men's hostels and other blacks.

Violence first broke out between Zulu hostel residents and other blacks Monday night in an apparent blacklash against a work boycott that ended Wednesday. Scattered fighting continued Tuesday and Wednesday in the sprawling township of more than a million blacks.

Soweto Police Commissioner S. W. Le Roux said fighting erupted again early today between hostel residents in the Meadowlands section and then spread to other areas.

Prince Bernhard quits post in wake of report

THE HAGUE (AP) — Prince Bernhard has resigned as inspector general of the Dutch Armed Forces and from all other public functions, Premier Joop Den Uyl announced today.

The nationally broadcast announcement came at the beginning of Den Uyl's address to parliament on a report by a special commission investigating allegations that Bernhard was involved in the Dutch Lockheed bribery scandal.

The Dutch government ordered the independent probe in February into allegations that the 65-year-old prince accepted $1.1 million dollars to promote the sale of Lockheed aircraft in The Netherlands. Bernhard has denied the allegations.

A newspaper report said the three-man panel's report contained no proof that Bernhard accepted the Lockheed funds, but cast an unfavorable light on his business associations.

Transit strike talks break down

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Leaders of striking Southern California Rapid Transit District bus drivers lashed out at RTD directors for rejecting their latest contract proposal, dimming hope for an early settlement of the dispute.

"We were shocked to hear that the district is still unwilling to try to reach a settlement," Earl R. Clark, general chairman of the United Transportation Union, said Wednesday.

Clark, indicating that the union might not allow negotiations to resume this week, said he "will not allow the district to dictate how the negotiations will take place."

"We have informed the concilator that we will not resume negotiations with the district unless he can give us assurances that they will be prepared to move beyond their last offer," Clark said.

"In some areas our proposal was less than what the conciliator had recommended."

The last offer made by the RTD called for a 19.47 per cent wage and benefits increase over three years.

The union originally sought a 22.92 per cent hike. While indicating that they had come down from that in their latest proposal, RTD Board President Byron Cook said there had been no significant change in the union position.

No new talks have been scheduled and Clark has refused comment on Cook's suggestion that the union submit the latest RTD offer to the rank-and-file members for a vote or take the negotiations into binding arbitration.

The stalemate foreshadows the possibility of a prolonged strike, leaving up to 750,000 Los Angeles area residents seeking other means of transportation each working day since the strike began Monday.

State Transportation Director Adriana Gianturco said Wednesday that the seven-mile stretch of the El Monte Busway on the San Bernardino freeway will be opened to cars containing three or more persons for the duration of the bus strike.

Carpools will be permitted into the exclusive $61 million busway beginning Monday. The section runs between Santa Anita Avenue in El Monte and the Long Beach Freeway in both directions from 6 to 10 a.m. and from 3 to 7 p.m. Monday through Friday.

The Highway Patrol said that the strike has resulted in clogging of freeways leading into Los Angeles and contributed to a greater amount of air pollution.

Martian life: Hopes aroused again

PASADENA (AP) — A Viking life-search experiment has again given a signal that could mean Martian life, adding one more piece to the puzzle that seems to hint at a different answer nearly every day.

The outcome of a control experiment disclosed Wednesday "increases the chance" that soil taken aboard the lander contains life, said Viking biologist Dr. Norman Horowitz.

But Viking's head biologist, Dr. Harold P. Klein, was not willing to go quite so far.

Klein, who has maintained a position of caution throughout the series of tests, said there are still alternative, non-living explanation for the results that must be considered before attributing them to Martian life.

"The data have ruled out a number of explanations for the intial results and leave us at this state of our investigation with either a biological interpretation or some even fancier chemistry than we had talked about a week or two ago."

He meant that if the test results are not signs of life, then there is some very unusual chemical process in the sandy red soil that is fooling the three biology experiments aboard Viking.

The results reported Wednesday by Horowitz came from the second running of a test that determines whether living things in a soil sample are taking carbon from the atmosphere to use as food or for growth.

On its first run, the experiment reported that a small amount of carbon was being used by something in the soil.

To test whether the activity was due to something living, another sample of identical soil was heat-sterilized to kill any life.

When the experiment was done on the sterilized soil, said Horowitz, the results showed that little or no carbon was being extracted from the atmosphere.

One conclusion could be that living organisms were active in the first test, but were killed off by the sterilization.

But "since the signal is coming from a world that is still poorly understood ," said Horowitz, it might be that a chemical process not due to life in the first test was halted by the heat of sterilization.

For 3 1-2 weeks the experiments have been yielding results that one day make scientists gloomy and the next day optimistic. As Horowitz has said, this is the way science always works. The difference in Viking is that the public is getting word of each step in the investigation. Ordinarily, scientists work months or years to arrive at a conclusion which then is reported.

There remains one unavoidable fact in the tests, however, Viking's organic analysis instrument has found no organic matter in two samples of Mars soil. That bodes ill for the discovery of life, because on Earth all living things produce organic matter.

"It won't be possible to establish a biological interpretation (of the tests) if we fail to find organic material on Mars," Horowitz said.

In a day or two the robot lander will perform the carbonassimilation experiment for a third time — using unsterilized soil. This is to see if the original activity that the lab detected occurs again.

Scientists at Ames Research Center near San Francisco are working with soil similar to that on Mars in an attempt to duplicate the strange chemical process — if that is what it is — that may be occuring on Mars. They have given no reports yet.

Meanwhile, the second Viking spacecraft orbiting Mars made a minor maneuver Wednesday to prepare it for a scheduled Sept. 3 landing.

Viking 2, with its 7-by-10 foot robot lander still attached to the mother ship, will continue to orbit the planet and photograph the landing site on the Utopia Plain. On landing day, the lander will detach itself from the orbiter and descend to the planet's surface, where it will carry out another set of life search experiments.

Klein said he was very eager to find out what Viking 2 will discover. He predicted the landing site will be "very different" from the rock plain where Viking 1 sits, and may produce surprises during its search for life.

Soviet scientists convinced 'no life'

MOSCOW (AP) — Preliminary evidence from the U.S. Viking space probe has helped convince Soviet scientists there is no life as we know it on Mars, according to a leading Soviet planetary expert.

"Of late, our optimism about 'life on Mars' has somewhat abated, and we can now say with a much greater degree of confidence that life emerging on Mars is impossible, at least at the present," Dr. Lev Mukhin said in the weeky Moscow News.

Mukhin, head of the laboratory for physical-chemical methods of planet studies at the Institute of Space Research here, said the major case against life on the red planet is the low water vapor content in the atmosphere and lack of liquid water on the surface.

"Statements that nitrogen in the Martian atmosphere might confirm the existence of life on the planet seem much too hasty to me," he said.

"Nitrogen is known to be the product of meteorites and basalt rocks degassing. Nitrogen was also discovered when the gas components of the lunar rocks were studied," he added. Scientists have concluded the moon is lifeless.

Senate okays electroshock restrictions

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Tighter restrictions on electroshock therapy on mental patients and a ban on its use on children under 12 have been approved by the California Senate.

A 23-1 vote Wednesday sent the measure by Assemblyman John Vasconcellos, D-San Jose, back to the Assembly for action on Senate amendments.

The bill states it is intended "to assure that the integrity and free choice of every (mental) patient is fully recognized and protected."

State Health Director Jerome Lackner strongly backed the bill, but Gov. Edmund Brown Jr. has taken no position.

The measure tightens the procedures doctors must follow before they give electroshock treatments. State law already gives mental patients the right to refuse shock treatment, and requires review of cases where the patient is unable to give written informed consent.

The bill adds to the conditions that must be followed before the right to refuse shock treatment can be denied. It also requires additional medical approval before patients who want shock treatment can get it.

Besides forbidding electroshock treatments on children under 12, the bill says that persons 12 to 16 may get it only if it is an emergency, lifesaving treatment and three child psychiatrists agree with that diagnosis.

Dr. William Keating, medical superintendent at Stockton State Hospital, said electroshock therapy was invented in the 1930s by Italians, who noticed that epileptics rarely suffer from severe depressions.

The treatment sends a low-voltage, high-frequency current across the surface of the brain through electrodes attached to the temples. The object is to induce epileptic-like convulsions, which for some reason reduce depression.

Keating said the treatment is used only rarely now at state hospitals, since the advent of tranquilizing and mood-stabilizing drugs.

Anti-redlining bill rejected by state senate

SACRAMENTO (AP) — An attempt to revive a bill to solidify Brown administration regulations against home loan discrimination has been rejected by the California Senate.

A bill that until Monday dealt with hospitals and birth control was amended by Assemblywoman Teresa Hughes, D-Los Angeles, to cement the anti-redlining rules into law.

The Senate's refusal on an 8-24 vote Wednesday to consider the bill in no way softens the regulations, said Donald Burns, Gov. Edmund Brown Jr.'s Business and Transportation secretary.

The rules took effect July 1 and ban savings and loans from denying a loan because of the applicant's neighborhood. Redlining, as the practice is called, contributes to decaying neighborhoods.

Sen. Dennis Carpenter, R-Newport Beach, objected to what he called "leapfrogging" of the Senate Local Government Committee, which had killed the original Hughes bill two weeks ago.

At that time, the Brown administration would not support the bill because it mandated the creation of boards to deal with complaints of redlining. Burns wanted to keep the regulations flexible.

But Burns said Wednesday the administration supported the resurrected measure, which would not make the boards mandatory.

After the bill was rejected because the amendments were judged to be not related to the original hospitals bill, Mrs. Hughes said the effort to get the Senate to act was her idea, not the Brown administration's. However, Lt. Gov. Mervyn Dymally was actively lobbying for votes, said his spokesman, Robert Holmes.

"We didn't think it was vital," Burns said of the bill, "but we certainly support the concept since we've adopted it in regulation form and it's already effective."

One of Brown's education advisers resigns

SACRAMENTO (AP) — One of Gov. Edmund Brown Jr.'s top education advisers, who recently lambasted Brown for inaction on school reform, has resigned from the state Board of Education.

John Pincus, a Rand Corp. executive named by Brown to a four-year term on the board last year, said Wednesday he wrote the governor that he was resigning effective Sept. 1.

Pincus' letter, dated Aug. 14, stated he was leaving "in view of our differences about educational reform and in order to avoid further embarrassment to both of us."

Elisabeth Coleman, Brown's press secretary, said the Democratic governor hadn't reviewed the letter yet.

Pincus, 49, is Rand's director of education and human resources, and holds a Ph.D. in economics from Harvard. He has been one of Brown's leading unofficial consultants on education policy.

In an article published this month in the Los Angeles Times, Sacramento Bee and San Diego Union, Pincus detailed his differences with Brown.

He wrote that Brown, a vocal advocate of school reform, had done little to promote it.

Pincus also criticized the governor for not spending money on reform of school finance, as required by the Serrano court decision, or on reform of high schools or bilingual education.

He also cited the recently passed $272-million school finance bill, which he called a "fiasco" that "largely reflects the governor's inexperience as a policy-maker."

Sen. Albert Rodda, D-Sacramento, sponsored the bill which gave most of its money to schools without restrictions. Earlier provisions tying much of it to specific programs such as needy students, the handicapped and bilingual education were eliminated under pressure from teacher groups.

Pincus went on to say that Brown has left school reform largely up to state school Supt. Wilson Riles.

Bus hijacking suspects face arraignment

MADERA (AP) — Three young men indicted Wednesday for allegedly hijacking a busload of school children last month face arraignment today on 45 counts of kidnaping and robbery.

Frederick N. Woods, 24; James Schoenfeld, 24, and his brother Richard, 22, were to appear today in Madera County Superior Court. The three pleaded innocent earlier at Justice Court arraignments but will have to enter formal pleas again in the higher court.

The indictment, handed down Wednesday night by the Madera Couny Grand Jury, includes five kidnap counts alleging that four girls and driver Ed Ray suffered bodily harm.

Deputy Alameda County Dist. Atty. Richard Haugner refused to say what injuries were cited during the 20 hours of testimony leading up to the indictments. But a Madera County investigator said, "The only injuries were bumps and bruises from getting in and out of vans, and a few scratches."

In all, the grand jury indicted each of the defendants on 27 counts of kidnaping and 18 counts of robbery. The robbery charges involved personal items taken from Ray and the children as they were herded into an underground prison after their July 15 abduction near Chowchilla.

The three are accused of kidnaping for the purposes of ransom and-or robbery. Reports surfaced during the investigation that a $5 million ransom note was found on a San Francisco Peninsula estate owned by Woods' father.

The only surprise in the indictments were the allegations of injuries to four girls. Ray previously had said he cut his hand during the ordeal.

The "kidnap with bodily harm" charges could result in life imprisonment without possibility of parole if a jury convicted them on that count.

Alameda County investigators said about 60 witnesses testified during the three-day grand jury proceeding and about 150 pieces of evidence were introduced. Witnesses included law enforcement officers, bus driver Ray and 23 of the 26 kidnaped children.

The evidence was presented by investigators from Madera County, where the kidnap occurred, and Alameda County, where the victims were imprisoned for nearly 18 hours in a moving van buried in a rock quarry.

Haugner refused to comment on any of the evidence, saying the transcript of testimony will be released after 10 days unless the court rules otherwise.

Governor signs wine sale bill

SACRAMENTO (AP) — The cry of "cold beer" at ball games in California may soon be joined by "bottle of wine."

Gov. Edmund Brown Jr. signed legislation Wednesday that allows the sale of wine in sports stadiums with at least 40,000 seats, starting next year.

The only alcoholic beverage now allowed to be sold at the stadiums is beer.

The measure was introduced by Assemblyman Willie Brown, D-San Francisco, as a way of helping boost attendance at San Francisco Giants games in Candlestick Park.

It is AB 4458.

2 women report $200,000 theft

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Police were investigating a report by two women that $200,000 was stolen from their car while they were inside a nearby building, negotiating on a real estate deal.

Police said Wednesday they were seeking two blond men, who apparently broke into the car through a wing window, grabbed two large handbags full of $100 bills and then fled.

Public Affairs Officer Mike O'Toole said investigators were routinely checking whether the story was a hoax. But he added, "Some people don't trust banks, and that might be the case here."

Wife missing in kidnap case

LONG BEACH (AP) — The wife and three children of a supermarket manager were abducted from their Orange County home by two men who ordered the manager to take $7,000 from their store for their safe return, authorities said today.

The children later were found tied up in a van, but the woman remained missing, officers said. The children were unharmed.

Long Beach and Orange County sheriff's investigators said the men entered the Rossmoor home of John Seigman late Wednesday and ordered him to return to the Market Basket market and remove the money from the safe.

Ward requests reassessments

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Board of Supervisors Chairman Baxter Ward is asking the Los Angeles County grand jury to investigate 24 commercial properties that he says have been underevaluated by Assessor Philip Watson.

Ward said Wednesday at a news conference that an investigation by his office has found direct or indirect campaign contributions to Watson in at least nine of the cases.

Watson, who has been feuding with Ward since a statewide survey several weeks ago determined that Los Angeles homeowners are overassessed, called Ward's charges an "asinine suggestion."

The assessor said that Ward "is trying to pass the buck over to the assessor's office for the fact that the supervisors were not able to come to grips with lowering the budget."

Some homeowners have seen their assessments increase by as much as 100 per cent this year while commercial property has generally remained the same or decreased in assessed valuation.

Watson claims that by law he had to increase homeowner assessments because the value of residential property has been increasing by two to three per cent a month.

Van de Kamp blasts dog racing proposal

LOS ANGELES (AP) — County Dist. Atty. John Van de Kamp has blasted a ballot proposition to legalize parimutel wagering on dog races as a "major ripoff."

Van de Kamp said Wednesday during a luncheon speech that the measure, Proposition 13, should be defeated for two reasons.

"It's a sweetheart measure which is aimed at enriching one man and his associates," said Van de Kamp.

"Second, it fails to provide the tight regulation and supervision required of an industry which is so vulnerable to and susceptible to taint and corruption."

Drop charges against 'dangerous criminal'

Undercover agents get goods on boy, 11

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Eleven-year-old Jeff Gyde, arrested on a charge of selling $4.50 of fish bait without a license, gained the support Wednesday of a legislator who wants an investigation and apology from the state.

Jeff, who opened a fish bait stand in the yard of his family's Ottawa County farm, was charged after wildlife undercover agents made purchases of crayfish and worms.

Judge Merrill B. Rudes of the Ottawa County Probate and Juvenile Court dismissed the charges against the boy last week.

Jeff had been charged with delinquency for failing to have a permit to sell crayfish. The penalty for conviction ranges from $100 to $500, even for a juvenile. Jeff did not need a permit to sell the worms, just the crayfish, according to Ohio law.

Despite the dismissal, State Sen. Paul Gillmor, who wants an investigation of the case, said, "There are a number of questions that remain ... why this family was unnecessarily subjected to this harassment. We also should know why the division wasted so much manpower, time and money on this ridiculous case," he added.

Gillmor asked for an investigation and an apology from the Department of Natural Resources' wildlife division for Jeff and his parents.

"Throughout this entire time, no one in the division performed the simple act of making a courteous phone call to the parents of this boy to tell them that the division of wildife regulations require a permit to sell bait, even by a little kid in his own front yard," Gillmor said.

Dale Haney, wildlife division chief, was unavailable for comment Wednesday.

A spokesman for the agency said the wildlife division's chief law enforcement agent would be sent to Ottawa County to investigate the incident.

U.S. tax on gasoline up?

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate Finance Committee voted today to raise the federal tax on gasoline by one-half cent per gallon to finance a series of tax breaks for energy conservation.

The additional tax, which would raise the federal levy on gasoline to 4.5 cents, would bring in about $500 million a year.

The money would pay for proposed tax credits for homeowners who insulate their homes or install heat pumps, solar or geothermal heating systems.

The committee also agreed to remove those and other energy tax incentives from the catchall tax bill now being considered by a Senate-House conference committee.

Instead, the provisions would be considered on their own merits in a separate conference. That could weigh against enactment of the energy-conservation taxes this year.

On Wednesday, their first day of work on the massive tax revision bill, the conferees extended existing general business tax cuts while deciding to restrict tax deductions for individuals using part of their homes for business purposes.

GM car prices go up

DETROIT (AP) — Consumers shopping for 1977-model General Motors cars this fall will find prices up an average $338 over comparably equipped 1976 models.

The nation's largest auto maker announced Wednesday that it is raising prices an average 6 per cent — $269 in the manufacturer's suggested base price and $69 for options — because of higher costs.

That means the average retail price of a 1977 GM car will be $6,067, including some $1,200 worth of options. That figures does not include taxes and shipping charges, nor does it take into account discounts offered by some dealers. The average 1976 GM car retailed for $5,729.

GM's price hike, one of the highest percentage inceases in the past 20 years, was higher than the 5 per cent most financial analysts expected. It was far short, however, of the record $450 boost set on 1975 models.

Abortions heat up Congress

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate and the House remain deadlocked over whether to ban the use of federal funds for abortions.

The Senate refused for a second time Wednesday to accept the ban, which the House has voted for three times as an amendment to a $56.6-billion appropriation bill for the Departments of Labor and Health, Education and Welfare.

The government pays for 250,000 to 300,000 abortions each year for low-income women under HEW's Medicaid and other programs at an estimated cost of $40 million to $50 million.

The stalemate over abortion is the only difference remaining in the House and Senate appropriation bills. All other differences were compromised in a House-Senate conference three weeks ago.

Sen. Jesse Helms, R-N.C., asked the Senate to yield to the House version, but his motion was rejected 53 to 35. Then, by the same vote, the Senate asked for another conference with the House over the issue.

Even if the dispute can be ironed out, the bill may be vetoed by President Ford, who had asked Congress to appropriate $4 billion less for Labor and HEW for fiscal 1977. Senate leaders of both parties agreed that a veto is likely.

The amendment insisted on by the House and rejected by the Senate provides that no funds in the bill "shall be used to pay for abortions or to promote or encourage abortions."

Debate over TV debates

WASHINGTON (AP) — Although some major legal issues remain unresolved, representatives of President Ford and Jimmy Carter are ready to begin arranging details for the proposed debates between the presidential candidates.

Emissaries from both camps planned to discuss specifics today with officers of the League of Women Voters, which has offered to sponsor the series of televised debates.

The Federal Election Commission, meanwhile, also planned to meet to discuss the claim by some staff attorneys that the debate format proposed by the league might violate federal campaign financing laws.

Peggy Lampi, executive director of the league, said this legal uncertainty looms as the biggest potential obstacle to the debates.

"It deeply concerns us," she said. "Not only could an adverse ruling by the election commission upset our plans, but it could preclude any appearance by presidential candidates before private organizations in general."

Daniel Swillinger, assistant general counsel for the commission, has claimed that the league-sponsored debates could violate the provision that forbids presidential candidates from accepting private contributions once they have agreed to accept public financing of their campaigns.

Both Ford and his Democratic challenger have gone the public-financing route, with each expected to get about $21 million in tax funds.

The league estimates that the debates will cost $150,000 — most of which it plans to solicit from labor unions, corporations and other groups.

President Ford, who laid down the challenge to debate Carter in his acceptance speech at last week's Republican National Convention, announced Wednesday that Dean Burch and William Ruckelshaus would represent him in the negotiations over the debates.

Burch, a former chairman of the Federal Communications Commission and deputy director of Barry Goldwater's 1964 presidential campaign, has served as an adviser in the President's re-election campaign.

Ruckelshaus, who quit as deputy attorney general in 1973 rather than carry out the order of former President Richard M. Nixon to fire the special Watergate prosecutor, is a lumber firm executive in Tacoma, Wash. He has not played an active role in Ford's campaign.

Carter's team of negotiators is headed by Jody Powell, the former Georgia governor's press secretary and a top adviser.

The League of Women Voters had proposed four debates — three between Ford and Carter and the fourth between GOP vice presidential nominee Sen. Robert Dole and his Democratic counterpart, Sen. Walter Mondale.

Ford, however, has suggested four 90-minute debates between himself and Carter, with the first on either Sept. 8, 9 or 10, dealing with national defense policy. The other debates should be on domestic, foreign and economic policies, he added.

The Carter camp initially registered objections to Ford's outlining plans for the debate prior to today's meeting.

News briefs

Korea

SEOUL, South Korea (AP) — Tension appeared to have eased in South Korea today after talks between U.S. and North Korean representatives on ways to avoid incidents like last week's bloody clash in the truce village of Panmunjom.

"It's all over" was a typical expression heard among some American and South Korean officials who had a few sleepless nights during the week-long crisis.

A U.S. forces spokesman said, however, that the 41,000 American troops south of the demilitarized zone remained on alert, as they have been since two U.S. Army officers were slain by North Korean guards in last Wednesday's melee.

North Ireland

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (AP) — A young Roman Catholic policeman in the mostly Protestant Royal Ulster Constabulary was shot to death today in Belfast's Roman Catholic suburb of Andersonstown, police said.

A police spokesman said Jim Heaney, 21, was working on his car outside his mother's home when he was hit at least six times in the chest and face by a burst of submachine-gun fire, a police spokesman said.

Police said Heaney was assassinated by the IRA Provisional wing, which is largely Catholic.

France

PARIS (AP) — For the first time since 1958, France's premier is a man who does not pay at least lip service to Charles de Gaulle's aggressive policies to promote the grandeur of France.

The changes flowing from President Valery Giscard d'Estaing's appointment of Raymond Barre as premier Wednesday may be gradual and subtle, but they seem sure to come.

Spotlight on area crime

Donut House robbed

Three young men, one armed with a shotgun, robbed Winchell's Donut House at 2301 N. Garey Ave. in POMONA early this morning.

Employe Don Gotto, 20, said the three entered just after midnight, placed an order and then pointed the weapon at him and demanded money. One held the gun at Gotto's head while the others looted the cash register after vaulting the counter, he said. They also took $2 from his pockets.

2 Robbers flee

Two would-be robbers fled Wednesday night after frightening a teen-age girl so badly at the Jack In The Box Drive Thru in Pomona that she could not respond to their demand for money.

The victim, 19-year-old Dorothy J. Casey, said one threatened her with a pistol after placing an order at the take-out restaurant at 11:30 p.m. She was too frightened to move and both eventually fled without any money, she said.

Politics: Ford huddles; Carter rests

VAIL, Colo. (AP) — President Ford is trying to emphasize party unity in the wake of the sharply divided Republican convention by calling in party factions ranging from moderate to conservative for campaign-strategy sessions.

Arriving at his vacation campaign command post today were running mate Bob Dole, Vice President Nelson A. Rockefeller and John Connally. Ford said that the three would join him for a working dinner tonight and a campaign-strategy session Friday.

Rockefeller and Connally may be tagged for membership on a campaign steering committee headed by Rogers C.B. Morton, who was replaced Wednesday as Ford's campaign chairman by James Baker III, a relative newcomer to national politics.

Morton, who said he wanted to be relieved of day-to-day direction of the campaign in order to "travel across the country as an advocate," said the steering committee will promote GOP unity, serve as a forum for strategy talks and take periodic readings on the progress of the campaign.

There had been speculation that Ronald Reagan, whom Ford beat for the GOP presidental nomination, might join the gathering, but Ford said the former California governor was tired.

"Governor Reagan will be actively helping in the campaign," the President predicted, saying they already had held an "in-depth" discussion before leaving Kansas City.

Despite new emphasis on campaign conferences, Ford continued to find time for relaxation. He agreed to participate in a pro-amateur charity golf tournament today, his seventh straight day on the links. Ford played Wednesday with pro Lee Elder, then went picnicking with Mrs. Ford and sons Jack and Steve.

Mrs. Ford is expected to remain here resting for a few days after the President returns to Washington Sunday night.

On the way home, Ford will stop at Yellowstone National Park, Wyo., to propose a $1.5-billion park expansion program, then at Rapid City, S.D., for refueling of his big jet.

A White House official described the journey as nonpolitical, presumably meaning it will be financed by government funds.

PLAINS, Ga. (AP) — Jimmy Carter, after what he feels was a highly successful unofficial campaign foray to the West and Midwest, plans to stay close to home and prepare for the official Labor Day opening of his presidential campaign.

A top Carter aide said the Democratic presidential nominee was very pleased with the reception he received in Los Angeles, San Francisco, Seattle and especially Des Moines, Iowa, where thousands of persons cheered him at a farm rally and thousands more responded enthusiastically to his speech at the Iowa State Fair.

Carter told 10,000 people at the state fair Wednesday that if elected president he would "stop farm embargoes once and for all." He was refering to government embargoes in the last three years on foreign shipment of U.S. farm products.

But in an interview published today in the Des Moines Register, Carter said his language on embargoes was "too strong."

Instead, he said, he will abide by the Democratic platform, which would allow for an embargo in case of a domestic grain shortage.

"I would make it clear to the Arab countries ... that if they ever again declare an (oil) embargo against this country ... we would respond in kind with a total embargo on shipments of food.

President Ford said last week in Kansas City, Mo., that "we will never use the bounty of America's farmers as a pawn in international diplomacy. No embargoes."

The Carter aide said that even the booing which erupted at the American Legion National Convention in Seattle when Carter advocated a pardon for Vietnam draft dodgers did not mar the candidate's satisfaction with the campaign trip — "He knew it was coming. He accepted it with equanimity."

A worker at the Carter press office in Plains said that he has received a number of calls since the speech from veterans who said they would not vote for Carter because of his pardon statement.

But advisers and some American Legion delegates said they thought the speech would benefit Carter over-all, giving him the image of a man unafraid to support a position he believes is right, even before an unsympathetic audience.

Engineered Ford's GOP win

Jim Baker: replaces old boss Morton

VAIL, Colo. (AP) — More than anyone else, James Baker III is credited with having lined up the vital 11th hour support that gave Gerald Ford the Republican presidential nomination last week.

On Wednesday the 46-year-old attorney from Houston got his award. Ford named him as his new campaign chairman.

With only limited regional, state and local campaign experience, Baker had a meteoric rise as Ford's chief delegate counter — and wooer — in the final weeks of the tight pre-convention race with challenger Ronald Reagan.

Close aides to the President flatly credit Baker with successfully making enough low-key appeals to wavering and uncommitted delegates to give Ford his Kansas City victory.

For the six-foot-one-inch Baker, a suave and graying Princeton graduate and Korean War Marine, the road to Washington — and to Ford's pre-campaign command center here — was smoothed by a fellow Texan, director George Bush of the Central Intelligence Agency. Close friends, Baker and Bush worked together on Bush's unsuccessful Senate race in Texas in 1970.

When the Ford administration was looking for an under secretary of commerce last year, Bush recommended Baker, who got the job and kept it eight months.

Baker left the Commerce Department in January for the Ford committee — this time with a boost from Rogers C. B. Morton who had been Baker's boss as Secretary of Commerce.

Alas, it was Morton who was replaced Wednesday by Baker.

In announcing the Baker-Morton shift, Ford told reporters:

"Jim, as you know, was a very accurate counter in the pre-convention process. Jim demonstrated to me a very outstanding organizational capability ..."

During the pre-nomination period, Baker won high marks for candor from political reporters and developed an effective platform presence at news conferences.

Asked by a reporter how he managed to maintain his calm when besieged by clamoring reporters, Baker replied, "it's easy to be unflappable when you're speaking the truth."

A widower who married a widow, Baker and wife Susan have seven children.

Oldest Anglican bishop, 101, dies

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A man who was the oldest active Anglican bishop in the world is dead at the age of 101.

The Rt. Rev. Robert B. Gooden, who would have been 102 Sept. 18, died Tuesday at his home in suburban Glendale.

The British-born Rev. Gooden was assistant bishop in the Episcopal Archdiocese of Los Angeles from 1930 to his retirement in 1947. The death of Bishop W. Bertrand Stevens in 1947 brought Rev. Gooden out of retirement as the diocese's acting bishop for a year.

He continued, however, to be active in Southern California, giving sermons, confirming youngsters and participating in liturgies, including this summer's July 4th Bicentennial Eucharist Mass at St. Francis Church in Palos Verdes.

A Requiem Eucharist Mass will be said at 9 a.m. Tuesday at St. Mark's Church in Glendale. The Rt. Rev. Eric Francis Bloy, former bishop of the Los Angeles Diocese, will read the Burial Office at 11 a.m. Burial will be in Santa Barbara.

Survivors include two sons, the Rev. R. Heber Gooden, assistant bishop of the Louisiana Diocese, and the Rev. Robert B. Gooden Jr., retired, of Seal Beach, and three daughters, Mrs. Alice Minkler of Pasadena, Mrs. Frances Beckwith of Menlo Park and Mrs. Muriel Badger of Glendale.

Doctor found guilty in soliciting wife's death

SANTA ANA (AP) — An Orange County physician has been found guilty of soliciting the murder of his wife.

An eight-woman, four-man Superior Court jury returned the verdict against Dr. Wayne Lester Robinson recently after two days of deliberation. Judge J. E. T. Rutter immediately revoked $150,000 bail on the 42-year-old Newport Beach resident and ordered him back to the Orange County jail, where he will await sentencing Sept. 29.

Robinson was arrested in February at a Santa Ana service station, where he had gone to pay a so-called hit man for the murder of his wife, Janice, the jury was told during the trial.

But the doctor contended he hired Tony Scalise for $10,000 to frighten his wife, not to kill her.

Robinson also was found guilty of carrying a concealed weapon at the time of his arrest, which could add two years to his possible six-month to five-year prison term, but was found innocent of conspiracy to commit murder.

On the latter count, Rutter later said the jury probably didn't believe Scalise ever intended to kill Mrs. Robinson.

During the trial, Scalise testified Dr. Robinson hired him to kill his wife and then produce her intrauterine birth-control device as proof he had done the job.

He said he decided not to kill her after meeting her one day for lunch. Instead, he testified, he fled with the money. But finally, he told the jury, he decided he wanted out of the situation entirely and told Orange County authorities about the solicitation.

Guilty plea by Marine

SAN DIEGO (AP) — A Marine corporal has pleaded guilty to 12 counts of maltreating recruits and to being absent on two occasions without authority from the Marine Corps recruit depot here.

The pleas were entered recently by Corp. Gordon Poling, 29, of McAlister, Okla. The charges to which he pleaded guilty carry a maximum punishment of dishonorable discharge, 13 years in prison at hard labor, forfeiture of all pay and allowances and reduction to the lowest pay grade.

Poling said that the charges against him sound terrible on paper, but were really petty incidents.

In one case, he said he knocked together the heads of two recruits, one black and one white, when they got into an argument and began shouting racial slurs at each other.

PAMELA BROCKMAN

Uplander promoted

Pamela S. Brockman of Upland has been named operations officer of the West Corona branch of Bank of America.

She joined the bank in 1968 as a statement clerk in Ontario.

Mrs. Brockman has completed the bank's management training program. She attended Chaffey High School and Chaffey College and has completed advanced professional courses offered by the American Institute of Banking.

Grocery store owner slain, customer shot

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The owner of a small downtown grocery store was slain during a robbery attempt and a customer seriously wounded, police said. The gunman, in his mid-20s, fled the Save-Penny Market without taking any money after he fatally shot Yong Tae Chae, 34, in the heart and neck Wednesday. Carlos Garcia, who entered the store with his year-old nephew during the robbery attempt, was reported in serious condition later at County-USC Medical Center where he was being treated for a gunshot wound in the neck. The infant was not harmed.

What's going on around here

NEW COORDINATOR

Kenneth G. Yocom has been appointed local coordinator for the Federal Aviation Administration in the Ontario and San Bernardino areas.

Along with his regular duties as chief of the air traffic control tower at Brackett Field in La Verne, he will serve as the local contact with the public and news media.

Persons seeking assitance may contact him at his office at Brackett Airport, 1600 Puddingstone Road. The telephone number is 593-2539.

FOR THE HANDICAPPED

A medical bus is operating each Monday for handicapped persons in Ontario.

Persons needing transportation for doctors' appointments should make reservations the previous Friday by phoning 984-2154 between 7:20 a.m. and 2 p.m.

The bus is capable of transporting persons in wheelchairs. The bus program may be expanded to other days during the week.

PROJECT FUNDED

The California Highway Commission has approved $55,000 to resurface Foothill Boulevard between Thompson Creek near San Dimas and the San Bernardino County line.

No advertising date was set for the project.

DEEP SEA FISHING

The Ontario Recreation Department will sponsor a deep sea fishing trip for senior citizens at Newport Beach on Sept. 1.

They will fish aboard a boat out of Davey's Locker. Total cost is $8.50 per person, which includes bus transportation and the boat trip. Meals will be extra.

A bus will leave the recreation building, 217 S. Lemon St., at 11 a.m. and return at 7 p.m. Reservations may be made at the office daily from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. The telephone number is 986-1151, extension 242.

MIKESELL APPOINTED

San Bernardino County Supervisor Daniel Mikesell of Ontario has been appointed chairman of the National Association of Counties transportation steering committee.

The association has 12 steering committees which form the policy-making arm of county government. Each committee has about 35 county officials who meet periodically to examine issues critical to local government.

The transportation steering committee has recommended legilsative action to promote an integrated transportation network in both urban and rural areas.

It has been involved in comprehensive transportation planning, highway improvements and safety, public transit, airport development, railroads, waterways and research for new modes of transportation.

RECENT GRADUATE

Orville D. Garrison of Ontario graduated recently from the Graduate School of Savings and Loan at the Indiana University.

Garrison is senior vice president and heads the Pomona First Federal Savings and Loan Association's operations and branch administration division.

The school, conducted by the Institute of Financial Education in cooperation with Indiana University, is a two-week program for persons in managerial and supervisory positions in savings and loan associations. Students attend three years to complete requirements.

Completing his second year was Thomas W. Jones, vice president and chief appraiser. John W. Hill, vice president and construction loan manager, completed his first year.

RABID BATS

Two rabid bats have been discovered at Oak Glen and Crafton in San Bernardino County.

Persons should avoid caves where bats are roosting and to refrain from picking up or handling sick or strangely acting bats, warned Dr. Robert Jackson, chief of the county's animal disease control.

Should a person be bitten by a bat, he recommended these steps be taken:

Wash the bite area with soap and running water to remove as much of the bat's saliva as possible; consult your doctor; contain the bat if it can be done safely; and report the bite immediately to the county Health Department office or the nearest sheriff's office.

NURSERY SCHOOL

The Claremont United Church of Christ, Congregational, nursery school is accepting registrations for the new school year which begins Sept. 20.

During the week before opening classes, each child will have a special time to visit the school.

The school will be open from 8:45 to 11:45 a.m. with parents helping in the program one morning every two weeks.

If a minimum of 10 are interested, an afternoon class will be available three times a week from 12:45 to 3:15.

That would be a mixed-aged group class for children 3 to 5.

Names will be accepted for a possible afternoon class.

ROWLAND H.S. COUNSELING

Incoming ninth graders at Rowland High School in Rowland Heights may arrange counseling appointments Tuesday through Sept. 3 by calling the school at 213 965-3448.

Those who selected their classes last spring during student-parent-counselor conferences may pick up their class schedules on the handball court between 7:30 and 8:30 a.m. Sept. 13, the day school starts.

Returning students may select time for classes and teachers according to the following schedule: seniors, 8 to 11:30 a.m. and juniors, 12:30 to 3:30 p.m. on Sept. 8; and sophomores, 8 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. and 1:30 to 3:30 p.m. on Sept. 9.

There will be a make-up session from 1:30 to 3:30 p.m. Sept. 9 for those who miss assigned times.

Bus transportation will be provided to and from school for registration on Sept. 8 and 9.

CLASS SCHEDULING UPDATED

New procedures for scheduling classes for students will be used this fall at Pomona High School, according to Oathur C. Carpenter, dean of instruction.

In the past, students "scrambled" for classes the first week of school.

With the assistance of new computer facilities at Newport-Mesa, individual student requests have been processed and updated this summer, and a sophisticated computer program is scheduling students into their requested classes.

The only limitations to this process are the availability of teachers, class size and available rooms, Carpenter said.

All students will have class schedules by the opening day of school Sept. 14, and classroom instruction can begin without delay.

An orientation program for freshmen and new students will be conducted by counselors and student body officers Tuesday (8/31) and Sept. 1 and Wednesday in the school library.

All students will meet in advisory sessions at 8:30 a.m. Sept. 14 to obtain final instructions and to complete necessary registration forms.

Counselors will be on duty beginning Sept. 7. Appointments may be made by calling 623-5251, Ext. 361 or 362.

MERIT BADGES

Charles Connor, a member of Boy Scout Troop 409 in Claremont, earned five merit badges during a one-week stay at Holcomb Valley Scout Camp near Big Bear.

They were for first aid, life saving, swimming, basketry and woodcarving.

Six other scouts at the camp from Troop 409 earned from one to four merit badges each. They are Mike Serpa, Ron Moore, John Connor, Greg Garcia, Danny Serpa and Tim Tipping.

Dick Tipping is leader of the troop which is sponsored by the Vista del Valle School.

Scout camp was directed by Fred Ahrens and Tim Martz.

PILOTS MEET

Members of the Pomona Valley Pilots Association will meet Friday at Brackett Field in La Verne.

A coffee hour will begin at 7:30 p.m. followed by a business meeting and program at 8.

Don Mageean, flight instructor, will show two movies, one on wake turbulence and another on flying through the center of a storm.

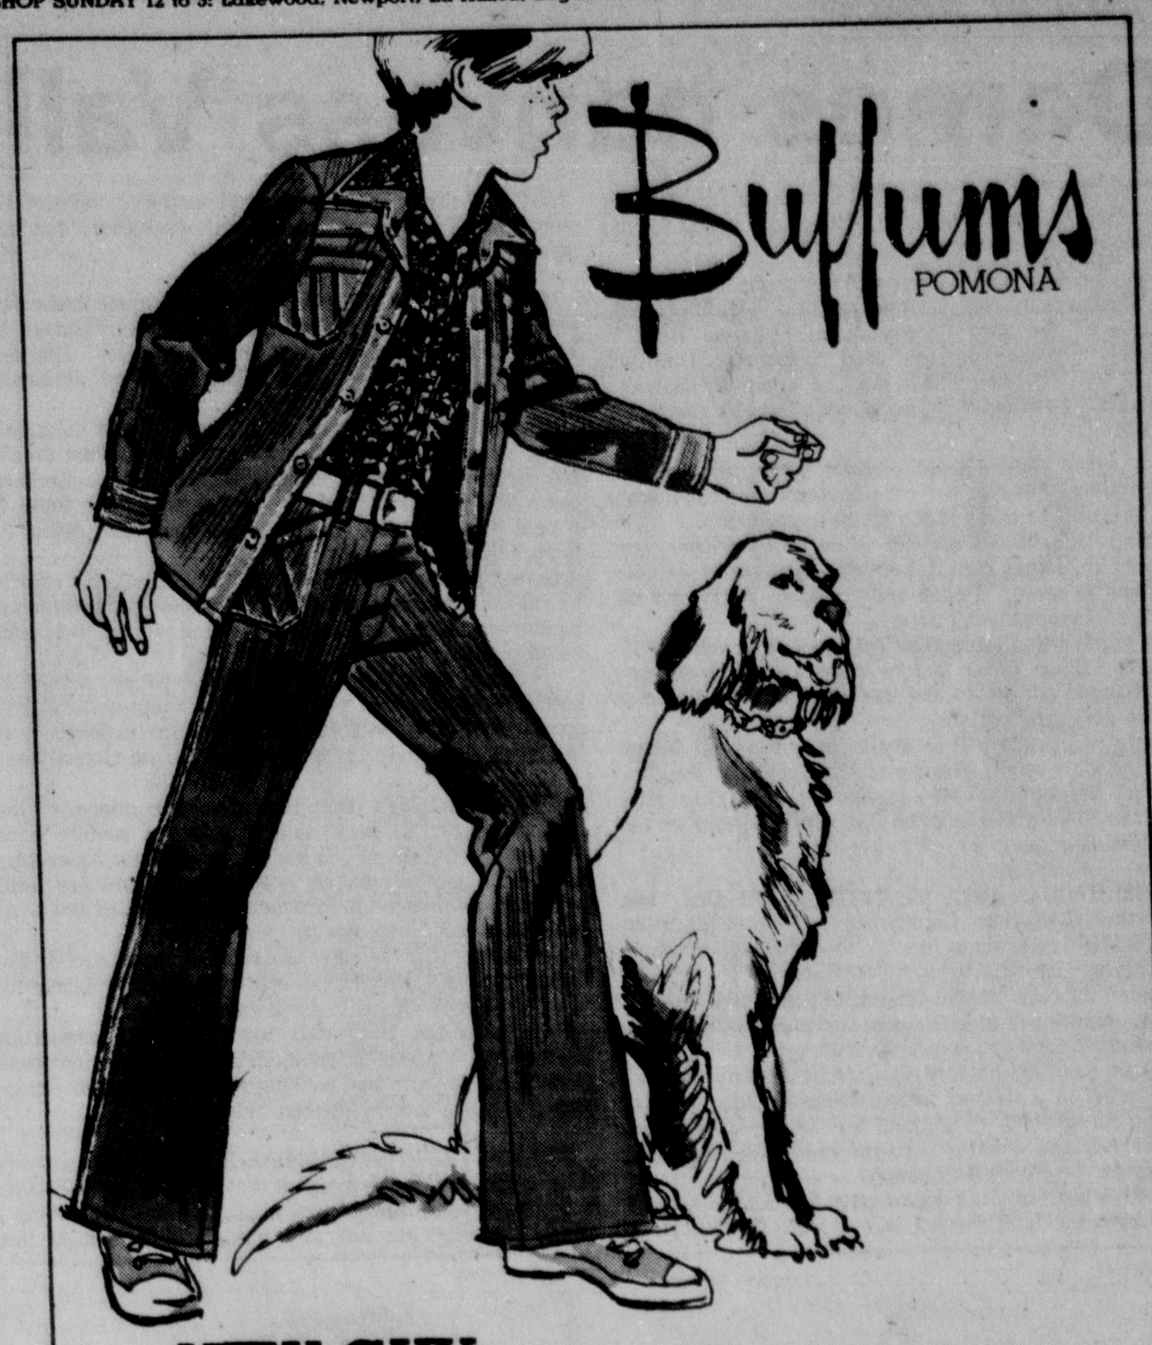

Those interested in general aviation may attend.

Demos canvass Valley for registrations

DEMOCRATIC CANDIDATES in eastern Los Angeles County are seeking to register Democratic voters for the November general election.

The voter registration drive will be conducted by volunteer workers in the campaigns of TED SNYDER, nominee in the 33rd Congressional District; BETTY WILSON, nominee in the 33rd Senatorial District; BRUCE YOUNG, nominee in the 63rd Assembly District; and JAMES GONSALVES, nominee in the 64th Assembly District.

With more than 100,000 eligible voters in the 33rd Congressional District not yet registered, the candidates seek to enroll at least 10,000 of these residents.

Registration in the district is currently 54 per cent Democratic, 41 per cent Republican, with the remainder "declined to state," Peace and Freedom Party and the American Independent Party.

The registration campaign will seek to reach the 18-year-olds, those never before registereed, those who have changed addresses and those who failed to vote in the 1974 general election.

Deputy registrars will be available at the local Democratic headquarters. Residents in Hacienda Heights, Rowland Heights, La Mirada and Diamond Bar may phone the Snyder headquarters at (213) 696-7076 or the Gonsalves headquarters, (213) 943-3713.

ASSEMBLYMAN BILL McVITTIE, D-65th Dist., has urged the California Department of Transportation (CALTRANS) to provide funding to complete the Foothill Freeway from La Verne to Redlands.

He noted the CALTRANS six year plan provides funding for only 100 miles of new freeway from 1977 to 1983, with the Foothill Freeway project omitted.

McVittie said the current situation has left many local governments in a state of limbo where planning for the freeway corridor os concerned. He urged department Director Adriana Gianturco to reconsider the program and include the Foothill Freeway.

"We have been told the department doesn't have funds to purchase the land needed to complete the highway. "But this argument doesn't hold water in view of the department's recent announcement of a $200 million budget surplus," he said.

JAMES GONSALVES, Democratic nominee in the 64th Assembly District, has criticized a program started by Gov. Ronald Reagan and followed by Gov. Edmund Brown Jr. to reduce the prison population by increasing the number of prisoners paroled.

"It doesn't make sense to turn unrepentent criminals loose just to clear out the prison population. What then is the purpose of going through all the expense to apprehend them and try them in court, only to turn them loose to repeat their crimes which more than half wind up doing?," he said.

Gonsalves was also critical of the legislature's refusal to repeal a probation subsidy law that gives financial incentives to counties to retain criminals in their own communities.

"If it's a choice whether to pay taxpayers money to keep criminals out of jail and in the communities or to spend tax money to build better prisons to house lawbreakers, I strongly favor the latter," said Gonsalves.

SANDY BALDONADO, Democratic nominee in the 62nd Assembly District, said Republican leaders have blocked a debate between her and incumbent Assemblyman William Lancaster while at the same time are seeking debates between the Presidential candidates and local candidates for Congress.

The former Claremont school teacher reported that Dr. Walter Buerger, Republican leader in the 62nd Assembly District, has blocked efforts for the debate.

"At the same time that my opponent's campaign leaders are vetoing possible debate formats, national Republican leaders are seeking debates between President Ford and Jimmy Carter," she said.

DELEGATES to the Republican National Convention in Kansas City will be speakers at the Gen. George S. Patton Republican Assembly program Aug. 30 in West Covina.

The program, starting at 8 p.m., will be held at the Coast Federal Savings and Loan building, located on Citrus Avenue north of the San Bernardino Freeway.

Speakers will include Mrs. Rusty Fedderson, Mrs. Mary Buerger, Mrs. Bill Odom and Jim Emerson.

Mrs. Marjorie Welch, long active in Democratic Party activities, will head the local campaign for Sen. JOHN V. TUNNEY, D-Calif.

Mrs. Welch served on Tunney's finance committee during his 1970 campaign. She is active in the Los Angeles County Democratic Central Committee and is a member of the Elanor Roosevelt Democratic Club.

Persons wanting more information about Tunney's campaign may contact Mrs. Welch at (213) 331-5998.

John Rodino, newphew of Rep. Peter Rodino, D-N. J., and a life-long Democrat, has endorsed LOUIS BRUTOCAO, Republican nominee in the 35th Congressional District.

He will serve as chairman of the Democrats and Independents for Brutocao Committee.

REP. JIM LLOYD, D-35th Dist., has agreed to have his reelection campaign bound by arbitration of campaign disputes by the Fair Campaign Practices Committee, Inc.

"Lloyd is taking the high road in this election and will not engage in the type of politics based on innuendos and half-truths," said Tex Gentry, his campaign manager.

The campaign code condemns dishonest material which misrepresents, distorts or otherwise falsifies the facts, and the use of malicious or unfounded accusations.

DON DONNELLY, Pomona school board member and Republican primary candidate in the 65th Assembly District, has been appointed precinct chairman for the 65th Assembly District.

His assignment was announced by Tom Noonam, chairman of the 65th Assembly District Republican Central Committee.

"The Republican Party in California has been attempting to build a viable grassroots organization by encouraging volunteer participation in the party process for the last several years.

"Donnelly has volunteered his time to serve as precinct chairman. It is a demanding job in seeing that Republican voters are registered and given whatever assistance in getting to their polls to vote," he explained.

Other members of the central committee are Mrs. Georgia Grove, vice chairman, Mrs. Fran Livingston, treasurer; Mrs. Vivian Spier, secretary; James N. Popovich, 32nd Senate District chairman; and M. Stanton Selby and John Perkins, members. Alternates are Mrs. Fern Weisend, Ray O. Swanson and Fred Sharp.

Information on the precinct program may be obtained by phoning the Pomona Republican headquarters, 622-9642. The address is 175 W. Holt Ave.

Upland gets HUD grant

A grant from the federal Department of Housing and Urban Development for $57,000 will assist with the latest phase of modernization of the Los Olivos public housing project in Upland.

The latest grant will be used in the 99-unit housing project on Campus Avenue for roof insulation and fire protection equipment, according to Gus Ramos, executive director of the Upland Housing Authority which administers the program.

More than $1.4 million in federal funds has been spent on modernizing the housing unit in the past five years, according to Ramos.

The funds in the latest grant are budgeted to spend approximately $38,000 on roof insulation, $9,700 for individual gas meters, $3,800 to replace corroded copper tubing and $5,000 for smoke detectors to be placed in each housing unit.

Previous improvements have included the installation of bathrooms, replacing worn flooring, remodeling units and purchasing furniture and recreation equipment and the installation of water and gas lines.

State briefs

Governor Brown

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Edmund G. Brown Jr.'s unrivaled popularity in California can be attributed to his "expect less" philosophy and his image as a hard-working governor, a statewide opinion poll reported this week.

After 20 months in office, three out of four voters still approve of the job Brown is doing — "phenomenal in this day when the public seems to be down on most politicians and politics," said Mervin Field of the California Poll.

After surveying 1,008 voters to find out what they like or dislike about the young governor, Field concluded, "One of the main props to Brown's highly favorable image is his 'expect less' philosophy.

"About eight out of 10 Californians agree with the statement that 'Jerry Brown is absolutely right when he says we should expect less from government and do more for ourselves,'" said Field.

"Brown also has an image as a hard-working governor. Sixty-three per cent agree with the statement that he 'works very hard at being governor — harder than most other governors worked.'"

Field said chief criticisms center around Brown's recent run for the Democratic presidential nomination and his record of accomplishments since taking office.

"Thirty-eight per cent endorse the idea that 'Brown's running for president was just a personal ego trip,' and a like percentage agree that 'he hasn't really accomplished anything important as governor,'" said Field.

Hayakawa campaign

RANCHO SANTA FE (AP) Republican senatorial nominee S.I. Hayakawa says Americans should run for public office and "put an end to professional politicians who make a lifetime career out of politics."

Hayakawa said his Democratic opponent, Sen. John Tunney 'recently failed to appear on the Senate floor to support an amendment to the energy bill he had authored."

A widely known semanticist, Hayakawa said he ought to be elected in November to bring clarification to legislative bills "so we all can understand them without legal interpretation."

Hayakawa spoke to 100 persons at an invitational luncheon Tuesday in his first campaign appearance in San Diego County.

Fiery crash

One person was injured slightly in a fiery auto crash in Pomona in which one of the cars involved was destroyed by flames, police reported.

The collision was at Towne Avenue and Phillips Boulevard Saturday night. Police said that a car driven by Harold W. Stone, 24, of Pomona, crashed into the rear of a car driven by Eliazor T. Cortez, 17, also of Pomona. Upon the impact, Cortez' car's gasoline tank was ruptured and his auto burst into flames. Stone's car spun out of control and wound up facing the way it had come.

The injured person was Raul Martinez, 19, of Pomona, who was riding in Cortez' car. He was taken to Pomona Valley Community Hospital where he was released after treatment of minor injuries.

Cortez' car was described as a total loss.

Tunney rips Nixon, Ford for unemployment rolls

VISTA (AP) - Future Americans "will view us as savages" because of 1976 unemployment rolls, Sen. John Tunney says.

The California Democrat, in a speech recently to local party leaders, said the Nixon and Ford administrations accepted a high rate of unemployment in order to combat inflation.

Tunney said inflation and the national spending deficit can be cured only by higher production and higher employment.

"Those in the future will view us as savages for failing to provide jobs for able-bodied people and casting millions of unemployed upon the scrap heap of history," he said.

Tunney also predicted a hard re-election campaign.

The current polls are misleading "and Jimmy Carter and I will be required to wage strong campaigns to win election in November," Tunney said.

Airman JEFFREY K. ARNOLD, son of Mrs. Donna L. Filancia, 4806 El Morado Court, Montclair, has been assigned to Sheppard AFB, Tex. for training in aircraft maintenance. Arnold is a 1976 Montclair High School graduate. He joined the Air Force immediately after graduation.

Marine Pfc. JOE P. TARIN, son of Mr. and Mrs. Joe P. Tarin of 13264 12th St., Chino, has been promoted meritoriously to his present rank upon completing training at the Marine Corps Recruit Depot, San Diego. A former student of Chino High, he joined the Corps in April.

On campus

PAUL A. J. SMITH of Pomona hs graduated from the University of Montana at Missoula with a bachelor's degree in forestry. She is one of 1,981 students to receive degrees from the university this year.

RICHARD D. ADAMS, director of youth services at Azusa Pacific College, has been appointed faculty adviser for the Circle K Club on the campus. He replaces Ted Bannis, who is moving to San Diego.

Dole authorized ads to avoid charges, says aides

WASHINGTON (AP) — Republican vice presidential candidate Robert Dole retroactively authorized $288.56 in antiabortion advertisements as contributions to his 1974 Senate re-election campaign to avoid criminal charges against five newspapers, aides said Wednesday.

"They were placed without our authority" by an antiabortion leader, administrative assistant Bill Wohlford said.

That leader, Esther Surs of Shawnee Mission, Kan., said Tuesday night, "I'm not giving out any interviews or making any comments."

The pro-Dole advertisements in that hard-fought and closely decided campaign have been disavowed by the Kansas senator since the day they appeared, dominated by skull-and-crossbone drawings.

His opponent in the race, former Rep. William R. Roy, a gynecologist who said he had performed one abortion, has consistently accused Dole of orchestrating the ads. They ran the weekend before the election.

Both repeated those positions last week after Dole was nominated by the Republican National Convention to be President Ford's running mate.

Campaign - financing laws at the time imposed a spending limit on Senate candidates for media advertising and required that all newspaper ads supporting a candidate be authorized by him.

Newspapers carrying unauthorized ads could be subjected to criminal charges.

Wohlford said that an individual antiabortion crusader who distributed 50,000 anti-Roy fliers and the sponsor of the ads, Eastern Kansas Right to Life, an antiabortion group, were told that "there was no place for them in our campaign."

Nevertheless, the ads appeared shortly in newspapers in four cities, Wohlford said.

"We halted further publication of the ads right away, told the five newspapers they were not authorized ... and called all the papers in the state to make sure no more appeared," he said.

"Then, to make sure neither we nor the newspapers went to jail, we let the cost of the ads go in the records as a contribution. It was all publicly reported at the time, and we have never approved of the content of those ads."

Dole during that campaign did take an antiabortion stance and poked at Roy by telling some audiences, "I never performed one."

He said this weekend he favors a constitutional amendment, supported by the GOP platform, to overturn a Supreme Court ruling that states could not prohibit abortions during early pregnancy. But, he said, he supports it only as a way to allow a referendum on the subject.

In Seattle, where Dole was to address an American Legion convention, White House press aide Larry Speakes said that an article in today's New York Times about the ads was "highly misleading."

He said he felt the Times did not adequately explain the reasons for giving retroactive authorization for the ads. He also said that the story left the impression that perhaps the ads had been authorized all along.

"The newspapers were technically in violation of the law because they ran ads not authorized by the candidate. ... What you got is a campaign being overly honest," said Speakes, assigned by Ford as liaison to Dole.

Attacks 'Nixon-Ford' economy

Mondale says Carter would bring full employment

WASHINGTON (AP) — Democratic vice presidential nominee Walter Mondale is headed across the country attacking what he calls the "Nixon-Ford" economy and promising full employment by 1980.

He said in an interview that he will be blaming high inflation and high joblessness on "inconsistent, botched management" started by former President Richard M. Nixon and continued by President Ford.

But he made the campaign promise that election of Democratic presidential nominee Jimmy Carter would bring full employment — a job for every adult who can work — by 1980.

The first stop on Mondale's nine-day, nine-state campaign swing today was to be Chicago for a private meeting with Mayor Richard Daley.

He planned stops in Pennsylvania, New York, Wisconsin, back to Illinois, Ohio, Oregon, California, Nevada and Colorado.

In his first major speech in New York Thursday, Mondale said he will argue that Ford-Nixon policies not only foster inflation and unemployment but have wiped out Republican businessmen.

"The Republicans always do better when the Democrats are in," he said he will say. "If you want to live like a Republican, vote Democratic."

Ford already has given an answer to such charges.

He said in his acceptance speech at the Republican convention last week that he inherited runaway inflation and is bringing it under control in spite of a big-spending Democratic Congress.

Mondale contended in the interview that the Republicans botched the economy, and that Carter will fix it, with money supply and federal spending policies.

He blamed inconsistent tight money policy under the Republicans for driving up interest rates, wiping out some businesses and slowing down others, and putting millions of people out of work.

He said Carter would balance the money supply with federal spending policy as tools to stimulate business and create jobs.

Mondale said full employment would bring in an additional $55 billion in income tax money and save money on less needed food stamps, welfare and unemployment insurance.

That additional revenue, he said, would finance such Carter-Mondale programs as national health insurance, tax reform and better housing.

None of that would be as easy as it sounds, especially Carter's key goal of getting money supply influence over the Federal Reserve Board, which is completely independent of the president.

But Mondale said full employment is a campaign pledge that he and Carter will keep.

"If we have Mr. Carter, we'll have full employment," he said. "and the rest will follow."

Dole claims Carter is 'mass of contradictions'

SEATTLE (AP) — Republican vice presidential nominee Robert Dole — campaigning on the heels of Jimmy Carter — said he intends to spell out the Democratic presidential nominee's "mass of contradictions."

Dole said he intends to campaign the next 2½ months emphasizing changes in Carter's political positions, but the Kansas senator said it would not be a personal attack.

Dole said he would reply today to Carter's position on Vietnam war draft evaders when he addresses a national American Legion convention here. He said his position would be his personal view and not necessarily that of the Ford administration.

Carter, appearing before the convention on Tuesday, said he would pardon, but not grant amnesty, to draft evaders if he is elected president. Hundreds of delegates hooted and shouted "No" while a counter - demonstration supporting his position broke out in the stands above the convention floor.

Carter said that "for those who violated Selective Service laws, I intend to grant a blanket pardon." He continued, "Amnesty means what you did is right. A pardon means what you did — right or wrong — is forgiven. So pardon — yes, amnesty — no."

Dole is a decorated World War II veteran who spent 39 months in an Army hospital recovering from shrapnel wounds. He still does not have the use of his right arm.

Dole was asked at an airport news conference Tuesday night if his role in the campaign would be to act as "the heavy hitter" while Ford maintains a more aloof "presidential posture".

"Not really," Dole replied. "I'm not known as a hard hitter. I'm one who likes to point up differences, and there will be no personal attacks on anyone.

"Mr. Carter is a mass of contradictions. We hope to spell those out to the American people. They're entitled to know, and if he doesn't want to tell them, I'll be happy to tell them."

Dole said he was not deliberately following Carter around the nation. He arrived in Seattle seven hours after Carter left and moved into the same suite of rooms in the hotel where Carter had stayed.

Later today, Dole was to fly to Des Moines, where Carter was speaking at the Iowa State Fair. Dole plans to make an appearance at the fair tonight.

He is then scheduled to fly to Vail, Colo., on Thursday for a meeting with the President.

Before leaving Washington on Tuesday, Dole said his trip was "a warm-up exercise. We're not really in hot pursuit yet."

The Kansas City Star today quoted Dole as saying in an interview conducted in Washington that he went to last week's Republican National Convention thinking he could be Ronald Reagan's vice presidential candidate. He said he believed it was "very unlikely" that he would end up as Ford's running mate.

Ford's nominations stacked up in Senate

WASHINGTON (AP) — With the presidential election drawing nearer, President Ford's nominations are beginning to stack up in the Senate.

And although Democratic leaders deny that they are deliberately sitting on them to await the outcome of the election, committee sources say many of the Ford nominations may never see the light.

By the White House's own count, there are now some 19 appointments — mostly to federal judgeships and regulatory agencies — awaiting Senate confirmation.

There seems to be little effort underway to dispose of these before Congress' scheduled Oct. 2 adjournment.

And in what could be a telling vote, the Senate Public Works Committee Tuesday — voting along nearly straight party lines — rejected President Ford's second choice to a Tennessee Valley Authority position that has been vacant for 15 months.

The panel voted 8 to 6 against his nomination of Thomas L. Longshore, an Alabama Power Co. executive, to fill a "swing vote" vacancy on the three-member TVA board of directors.

Earlier this year, the panel had rejected Ford's nomination of Mississippi dairyman James F. Hooper to the same post.

Chairman Jennings Randolph, D-W.Va., the only Democrat to support the Longshore nomination, said some Democrats in the Senate even opposed his scheduling of the vote, urging him to wait until after the November election. "I respectfully yet earnestly turned them down," Randolph said. For the Democratic critics of the nomination, the delay turned out to be unnecessary.

Longshore himself took the defeat philosophically, declining to claim that he had been the victim of election-year politics. "That's a judgment someone else will have to make," he said in an interview. "Obviously, I was not what they were looking for."

However, two Republicans on the panel, Sens. Howard Baker of Tennessee and Pete Domenici of New Mexico, claimed that they felt it was difficult for any presidential nominee to make it through the Senate this close to the election.

However, Baker went on to note that Longshore, because of his ties with the private utility industry, "was a controversial nomination from the beginning" and might have been voted down anyway. Still, all five committee Republicans voted in favor of the nomination.

Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield denies that action on the Ford nominations are being deliberately delayed to see whether a Democratic administration will be occupying the White House in January.

"We're going to handle every nomination that comes out of committee," he told reporters.

However, getting them out of committee could be the hangup. Most of the Ford nominations currently are bottled up in the Senate Judiciary, Commerce and Banking committees, with little prospect of action in sight anytime soon on the majority of them.

Highway protest stalls 600 cars

ANN ARBOR, Mich. (AP) — Stephen Long and five friends drove the 50 miles of Interstate 94 between Ann Arbor to Detroit Wednesday at 55 miles an hour, the legal speed limit.

They drove the entire distance two and three cars abreast and when they got to Detroit, Long estimated, about 600 cars were backed up behind them.

He said he wanted to protest the way motorists ignore the speed limit, wasting gasoline in the process.

The group, with signs declaring "Stay Alive at 55" and "Gas Short"age," left Ann Arbor shortly after 7 a.m. on the two-and three-lane freeway.

Four miles later, they had a following of 45 cars and trucks and the rush-hour pavement was getting crowded, Long said.

It got so crowded, he said, that some motorists began passing on the shoulders of the road.

"It was really hairy," the 23-year-old Long said after reaching Detroit. "It was amazing how obnoxious people were."

Lt. Robert Pifer, commander of the Ypsilanti State Police post, said the protest was legal since motorist have "a right to drive 55. That's the speed limit, even if it's in every lane."

CRASH SCENE — Police (center) stand near the scene of an airplane crash that killed four people late Monday night. The twin-engined Piper Apache plunged into a house after striking a radio tower. Four homes were destroyed in the fire that followed. The plane was spraying mosquitoes when it crashed. The pilot, Leland Stafford, of Gulfport was killed.

Breast cancer

Experts want minimal X-rays

WASHINGTON (AP) — Leading cancer authorities are recommending that the routine use of X-rays to detect breast cancer should be restricted to women over 50 and only those younger women who are thought to be especially vulnerable to the disease.

The recommendation came Tuesday from the National Cancer Institute and the American Cancer Society in the wake of studies suggesting that the X-ray screening process itself may increase the risk of breast cancer in some women.

Younger women whose families have a history of breast cancer are considered highrisks and are still urged to undergo the X-ray screening known as mammography.

The risk for any individual woman of mammography itself inducing breast cancer "is very small," the institute said, although it assumes there is a possible hazard.

The interim guidelines came in letters to the directors of 27 centers participating in the National Breast Cancer Detection Demonstration Project sponsored by the NCI and ACS. About 270,000 women 35 or older are enrolled in the 3½-year-old program.

After further studies are completed, the institute said, final guidelines will be issued to physicians on mammography.

A NCI spokesman said the agency hoped all physicians and hospitals using X-ray mammography would follow the recommendations even though they are mandatory only for the project centers.

The letters said the program will not be shut down or phased out regardless of the final guidelines.

The continuing studies of effects and effectiveness of mammography have found that such examinations are very valuable to women over 50, Dr. Theodore Cooper, assistant secretary of health, education and welfare, said early this week.

But the repeated exposures to radiation of regular screening may mean unnecessary over-all risks of cancer for younger women, the studies have indicated.

The letters said that mammography is acceptable for a woman of any age in diagnosing a suspected breast cancer — as distinct from a routine screening — and acceptable for any woman considered a special risk.

Both risks and benefits should be fully explained to the patient if she and her physician feel mammography is in her best immediate interest, it said.

The recommendations further re-emphasized that radiation dosages should be kept to the lowest level that will produce good-quality X-ray pictures.

Surprise, surprise

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) — Tom Arden, a columnist for a Sacramento newspaper, wished a happy 40th birthday to Anita Heinz in his column recently and went on to explain why.

"Remember eight years ago?" he wrote, addressing himself to the birthday woman. "When Yvonne Goodenow became 40 years old, you plastered a big sign at her house, reading, 'Life Begins at 40. Happy Birthday.'

"You did it in the stealth of night, according to Mrs. Goodenow, and she says she has been waiting all these years to get even. MWPN Goodenow understands you expect her to put up a similar sign at your place by tonight. Instead, as you are a faithful reader of this paper, she requested that an item be used in the paper to welcome you to the 'Life Begins at 40 Club.' Surprise, surprise!"

'Rules for turning garbage into money'

Nadar group up in arms against new meat regulations

WASHINGTON (AP) — Proposed new government regulations for meat products are "rules for turning garbage into money" and should be rejected, Ralph Nader's Health Research Group says.

The Agriculture Department contends the changes in present regulations on what is and isn't officially meat will enable processors to reclaim significant amounts of protein for consumers from what otherwise would be wasted parts of the carcass.

The research group, a wing of Public Citizen Inc., said in a statement filed with the USDA on Tuesday that the rules will "legalize the further adulteration of the American food supply."

Today was the last day for such public comment on the proposed regulations, announced last spring. After the comments are assessed, a final version of the new rules will be promulgated.

When they were proposed, USDA said they would allow processors to continue using mechanical deboning and low-temperature fat rendering to reclaim more meat from livestock carcasses until it decides on the final form of the rules.

The department denied on Tuesday a request made in July by several consumer groups for a cancellation of that temporary permission for a practice already informally accepted.

In a letter to the groups and Rep. Margaret Heckler, R-Mass, Assistant Secretary Richard L. Feltner said that no evidence exists to suggest a threat to the food supply and that cancellation could result in taking more than 2.6 million pounds of meat products off the market.

He said that cancellation also would mean laying off 330 meat plant workers and the loss to them and their employers of $100,000 a day.

Feltner said that mechanical deboning provides ingredients for more than 1.6 million pounds of such products weekly.

In that process, bones with meat scraps attached are ground up and then forced through a sieve. The larger bone bits are screened out and dumped, while the squashed meat and finely ground bone particles are allowed to pass en route to hot dogs, luncheon meats, frozen pizza, canned beef stew and other products.

The health research group said that the proposed rules, if adopted, also will let processors use temperatures of less than 120 degrees to slowly melt animal fat, pour off the liquid and use the residue as an ingredient in such products, as well as prepared beef patties, corned beef and potted meat.

Dr. Sidney Wolfe of the HRG, a physician and biochemist, said that most of the protein salvaged from such fat rendering is of lower quality than that from lean meat, such as regular ground beef, pork chops and beef roasts, and that the low temperatures are conducive to bacterial contamination.

Dispute leads to arrest of illegal aliens

LOS ANGELES (AP)— Six illegal aliens were arrested at a hearing called on their behalf in a dispute over unemployment benefits, immigration officials said.

The arrests were made by immigration officers called as witnesses in the case. The aliens were appealing a rule of the state Unemployment Insurance Appeals Board, which keeps them from receiving benefits because their illegal status makes them unavailable for work.

A ruling in the matter is expected in several weeks.

General admits passing secrets

BERN, Switzerland (AP) — A retired Swiss Army general arrested two weeks ago has admitted passing military secrets to Soviet diplomats for several years, the Justice Ministry announced today.

The announcement said the motives of Brig. Gen. Jean-Louis Jeanmaire, a member of the military general staff until his retirement eight months ago, were not yet clear, and it would be several more weeks before the investigation was completed.

As head of the 25,000-member Air Raid Protection Corps, Jeanmaire, 66, was on the general staff and had access to top secret information concerning all units of the Swiss militia army.

The communique said the investigation had established that Jeanmaire had for "several years" supplied confidential military information to "several members of the Soviet embassy in Bern."

For security reasons, further details could not be released, the communique said.

A Justice Ministry spokesman would not comment when asked whether Jeanmaire's contacts in the Soviet embassy were still in Switzerland.

Seek $100 million solar energy plant

San Bernardino site near Barstow

San Bernardino County supervisors have asked federal officials to select a site near Barstow for a $100 million pilot plant which will use solar energy to generate electricity.

They joined state officials who are supporting an application by the Southern California Edison Co., the Los Angeles Department of Water and Power, and the California Department of Water Resources to develop such a plant in Southern California.

The Federal Energy Resources and Development Administration plans to develop by the early 1980s a 10 megawatt electrical central receiver solar pilot plant connected to a utility grid for transmitting to users.

Such a plant will consist of a field of guided mirrors called "heliostats" to focus the sun's energy on a receiver mounted on top of a tower.

The concentrated solar energy would be absorbed at the tower and transferred to a circulating fluid such as water which is either transported to a storage system for later use or converted to steam to power a conventional steam turbine generator.

Preliminary designs include methods for storing thermal energy for periods up to six hours for use when the sun doesn't shine.

Solar portion of the plant is being designed under a separate federal contract, and three contract teams are working simultaneously to develop complete preliminary designs of the pilot plant.

The Barstow site is located 12 miles east of that desert community at the existing Coolwater facility. It is owned by the Southern California Edison Co. and has two oil and gas burning generating units with two more units being built and scheduled to go "on line" next year.

The utility applicant selected will provide the pilot plant site, an accessible utility network and a steam turbine electric generator plant to receive the solar produced steam.

And once the plant is completed, the utility also will serve as its operator. Numerous states are competing for the pilot plant selection.

A resolution adopted by county supervisors describes San Bernardino County as the "land of sunshine" which is deeply committed to the development of both solar thermal and solar electric power as a major alternate source of energy.

Supervisors reported the county last December adopted the state's first Joint Utilities Management Plan which includes energy management goals and programs, facility siting analysis maps, siting criteria, community concerns and a citizen participation program.

In supporting the Barstow application, they noted the siting analysis maps of the Joint Utilities Management Plan show the proposed site to be in an area of "least potential for adverse effects."

Supervisors pledged to commit staff resources to cooperate in areas of planning, environmental assessment, citizen participation, procedural review monitoring and transfer of knowledge programs.

County environmental agency officials said a 10 megawatts plant could serve about 3,000 homes. But this plant will speed the day when larger facilities can economically provide the society with a clean and continuous source of energy, they added.

Site proposals are due by Sept. 15, with the site selection to be determined later this year.

S.D. zone change could affect health of children—Bonita

By BOB SWETNAM
PB Correspondent

Bonita school officials say they oppose a proposed San Dimas zoning change, claiming it could affect the health of nearly 300 children at one of the district's elementary schools.

The proposed change will allow horses and other animals to be boarded on property across the street from Shull Elementary School and could lead to a severe fly problem, officials told the school board Wednesday night.

Delores Sum, representing a group of parents, asked the board to "please help us keep this potential health problem out of Shull School."

Bonita Supt. James Johnson reassured Mrs. Sum that the board was concerned with the problem.

He then read aloud the draft of a letter addressed to the San Dimas Planning Commission that expressed the district's opposition to the zoning change.

"Flies are a serious health hazard," the letter read, "We feed almost 300 students a day in an outdoor eating facility at Shull."

The property involved is bordered by Ghent Street and Oakway and Allen avenue in San Dimas.

The San Dimas Planning Commission will conduct a public hearing Wednesday night on whether a conditional use permit should be granted for the horse boarding facility.

Planning staff expect a large turnout of protestors and supporters at the hearing on the application from Joe Sfamemi of Glendora. Sfamemi is asking that the 1½ acres be rezoned from residential-agricultural, 7,500 square feet lot minimum to light agricultural. Under this latter zone, a conditional use permit is allowed for a horse boarding facility and Sfamemi wants to board 20-22 horses.

Pat Meyer, planning assistant, said that staff will only point out the pros and cons in its report and not recommend denial or approval to the commission. He pointed out that horses are allowed in the present zoning, but with few if any controls.

However, in the issuance of a conditional use permit, the commission and City Council may impose stricter regulations on the boarding of horses. These conditions, said Meyer, can help allay the negative affects of horses, such as flies, odor and dust.

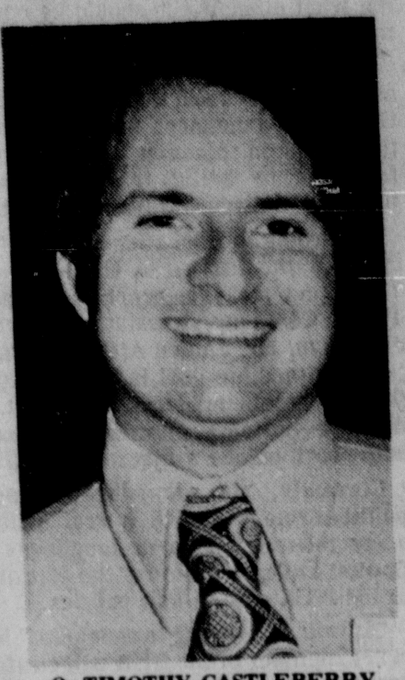

Mrs. Micaela LaRue, president of the Homeowners and Stock Protective Association, an organization of local residents who own horses and small livestock, is expected to support the request. Mrs. Delores Sum and Mrs. Pauline Ball, also residents in the vicinity of the zone change request, are expected to oppose it.

In other action, the school board:

—Reported negotiations with the Bonita Unified Teachers Association are "moving along slowly."

—Revised procedures for its free lunch program which will now require parents to be informed if they do or do not qualify.

O. TIMOTHY CASTLEBERRY

Claremont's new Kiwanis chief active

O. Timothy Castleberry, 28, will take over in September as president of a Claremont Kiwanis Club which is beginning its 53rd year of operation.

But Castleberry has not been waiting idly to assume the post. He represented Claremont at the international convention at San Diego in June and will attend the annual district convention at Fresno today through Saturday.

Castleberry is concerned because "there are tremendous needs in our community for personal involvement, and only a relatively few truly interested are willing to take on responsibilities."

"One of our greatest concerns is in making our efforts better known to the community so that membership growth will allow us to meet community challenges," he said.

The Claremont optometrist noted that Kiwanis International will stress over the next few years crime prevention and individual safeguard education.

"We will be stressing public awareness of the incidence of crime," Castleberry said. "We wish to stimulate a greater understanding of law and its functions."

"We are asking the local Police Department what we can do to help prevent crime, such as neighborhood groups, or installation of window gratings or alarms in houses."

Castleberry said that the club will continue its present support of such organizations as Le Roy Boys Home, Casa Colina Hospital, and Pilgrim Place.

San Dimas CofC luau

Au Paka Hula Po (Swim Park Dance Night), the annual luau sponsored by the San Dimas Chamber of Commerce, will be held Sept. 11 at the Puddingstone Swim Park pavilion.

The event begins at 7 p.m. with a mai tai bar and hor d'oeuvres followed by a buffet luau at 8 p.m.

The Aloha Polynesian Entertainment Center will provide Hawaiian entertainment during the evening. Music for dancing will be by The Exclusives.

Tony and Emma Gonzales are co-chairmen of the affair. Mayor Marvin Ersher and Gabrielle Rampick, Miss San Dimas, will serve as host and hostess for the evening.

Tickets are $10 per person and are available at the chamber office, 599-1102, or at San Dimas City Hall, 599-6713. Reservation deadline for tables is Sept. 3.

Others assisting on the planning of the luau include Cathy Shull and Betty Wendt, decorations; George Twining, tickets; Pat Gore, cash control; Warren Brehm, physical arrangements; Bernice Walther, publicity; and John Walgren, cleanup.

Upland takes action to protect reservoir

The top of the new Upland city water reservoir at 24th Street and Mountain Avenue is designed to accommodate a limited recreation use when it's completed next month.

It's not designed as a place for cars to park or motorcycles to race.

But that's what has been happening at the new 10-million gallon reservoir which is submerged in San Antonio Park with its top only slightly elevated above ground level.

Or that's what was happening until this week.

Now, Master-bilt Chain Link Co. of Bellflower is constructing a six-foot fence around the site.

Master-bilt's bid of $4,379 was the lowest of several offered when the Upland City Council decided to protect the reservoir and its pumping station from vandals.

The $1.4 million reservoir is being constructed by Oberg Construction Co. as one of two approved by voters in the spring of 1975.

The second reservoir at Benson Avenue and 17th Street is a conventional above-ground 7.5 million gallon reservoir.

The San Antonio Park facility is designed so that the top may be used for tennis or handball courts.

When the reservoir is converted for recreation use, the fence now being installed can be extended higher to serve as a tennis court fence, according to City Manager Lee Travers.

Walnut council okays moratorium

A moratorium affecting residential construction for the next four months was approved by the Walnut City Council Wednesday night.

Passed as an emergency ordinance, the moratorium may be extended to a total of approximately 15 months until updating of the city's general plan is completed.

The moratorium includes final tract maps, parcel maps, zone changes, variances and conditional use permits.

Approval was given by a 4-1 vote with Councilman William Wentworth opposing the ordinance on grounds that much of undeveloped land in Walnut was under large ownership and not much development was expected during the next 15 months.

Similar opposition was expressed by former Mayor Joe P. Dyer as a private citizen.

Councilman Richard Laughter had suggested the moratorium on the premise that residents of the city favor a low density bedroom community over a high density and commercial city.

Councilmen approved annexation of portions of two Larwin Corp. residential tracts to the city's new maintenance district.

Annexation of parts of La Solana Corp. and Umark Corp. tracts was postponed pending acquisition of more planning information.

The City Council also approved an agreement within a Umark tract situated primarily in West Covina but partly in Walnut.

They delayed to a future meeting action on a proposal to acquire 25 tax deeded areas for open space in the Collegewood community, policies governing use of park facilities, a policy statement for slope easement acquisition in the area of Gartel and Fuerte drives and a maintenance agreement for seven park and median strip properties of the city.

Ontario planners seek to annex 540 acres of land

The Ontario Planning Commission has adopted a resolution seeking annexation of 540 acres of primarily agriculture land southeast of the city.

The land is located on both sides of the Pomona Freeway east of Euclid Avenue and is generally bounded by Sultana and Vineyard avenues and Philadelphia and Walnut streets.

The area's general plan has designated medium residential density uses on both sides of the freeway, industrial uses east of Grove Avenue and north of the freeway, commercial uses near Grove Avenue and the freeway, highway related commercial uses at the Grove Avenue offramp and low density residential uses for the remaining areas.

The proposed annexation will next go to the City Council for final decision.

In another matter, the commission directed the planning staff to continue a study on the uses permitted in an A 2 (agriculture) zone.

The planners also approved a use permit to allow a auto, truck and metal salvage operation on Belmont Street west of Cucamonga Avenue.

Suffers slash at glass works

A workman at Brockway Glass Co. Inc., 1331 E. Philadelphia St., Pomona, was injured Wednesday morning when a piece of glass fell, cutting him on the right temple.

William R. Stahl, 48, Pomona, was taken to Pomona Valley Community Hospital where he was released after stitches were used to close the wound.

Police reported that Stahl was working at a glass-melting machine when the accident occurred.

Fence crash hurts woman

A Covina woman was hurt slightly Wednesday afternoon when her car struck the center divider of the San Bernardino Freeway west of Ganesha Boulevard, Pomona.

Christine E. Flynn, 18, of 953 N. Greer Ave., told the highway patrol that she came upon a car with a flat tire parked on the center divider strip. She started to swing into the next lane but turned back when she saw another car there. She lost control of her vehicle and crashed into the center divider fence.

She was treated for minor injuries at Pomona Valley Community Hospital and released.

Grocery spill

A Pomona man suffered a hip injury Wednesday afternoon when he fell inside the Safeway market at 380 S. Indian Hill Blvd. in Claremont, police reported.

Ricky Gasper, 29, was taken to Pomona Valley Community Hospital where he was released after treatment.

Central's McClary gets okay for exchange trip

Central school board in Cucamonga Wednesday authorized Asst. Supt. John McClary to spend Oct. 16-Nov. 3 in England as a participant in the U.S.-United Kingdom Administrative Exchange Program.

"I read an article on the program and wrote to offer my home to a foreign visitor," said McClary today. "The reply I received was an invitation to participate.

"I will live with two families during the time I am there and study and explore the educational system. I have asked for semi-rural, small school districts."

The board tabled until Sept. 7 setting 1976-77 salary increases for management-confidential employes.

Negotiations with some 75 teachers and 75 classified employes still are going on under the new collective bargaining law in California.

The board voted to change from Sept. 1 to Sept. 7 the date teachers are to report, and to trade the Sept. 9 Admissions Day holiday for Sept. 10, giving employes a three-day holiday.

2 La Puente children hurt

Two La Puente children received burns in a house fire they apparently set while playing with matches in a closet Wednesday.

County firemen identified the children as Danette Reyes, 5, who had a finger burn, and Ted Lamb, 13, a neighbor, who burned one hand. They were treated by paramedics at the scene.

Loss estimates to the home of Armida Reyes at 16708 Alwood Ave., were set at $6,500 to the structure and $3,500 to contents.

Firemen said the blaze started in the closet of a downstairs bedroom of the two-story house and spread through the bedroom and into the hallway causing heat and smoke damage throughout the house.

The Reyes were not at home and the children were being cared for by a babysitter, firemen said.

The NEA in politics

For years, the National Education Association presented itself as a professional organization for teachers. Today, it stands exposed as an organization deeply involved in politics.

Earlier this summer John Ryor, national president of the NEA, announced that his organization will publicly endorse a presidential candidate for the first time in its history. The NEA also urges the appointment of a national Secretary of Education and federal funding of $22 billion, without specifying what other needs should be ignored in order to make that colossal sum available.

In view of the NEA's involvement in politics, it is astonishing to learn that a number of large corporations have announced "collaborative" efforts with the NEA in planning a series of 1,000 "town forums" to bring teachers and businessmen together to discuss ways they can help each other.

According to Education & Work, "the joint effort includes the American Cyanamid Co., American Telephone and Telegraph, and the International Paper Company Foundation." Cyanamid's board chairman, Dr. James Affleck, is quoted as saying "Our immediate goal is to enlist 200 companies in this grassroots industry-NEA effort." One wonders if these business organizations have done their homework on the subject of the NEA.

Certainly, not all educators approve of the political role of the NEA. Prof. William A. Hunter, a specialist in Romance languages at East Texas Baptist College, is among the educators who object to the NEA plunge into politics.

"It would be wrong to conclude," he writes, "that every member of the NEA will dutifully yield to the urgings of the national leadership and stifle his own inclinations when he goes to the polls. However, the NEA is, and has been for a long time, an undisguised trade union, in which membership is no longer entirely voluntary in some areas, and it tends to rely on the pressures, subtle or otherwise, that are characteristic of organized labor. The influence that can be wielded by such blocs should no longer be ignored by the public."

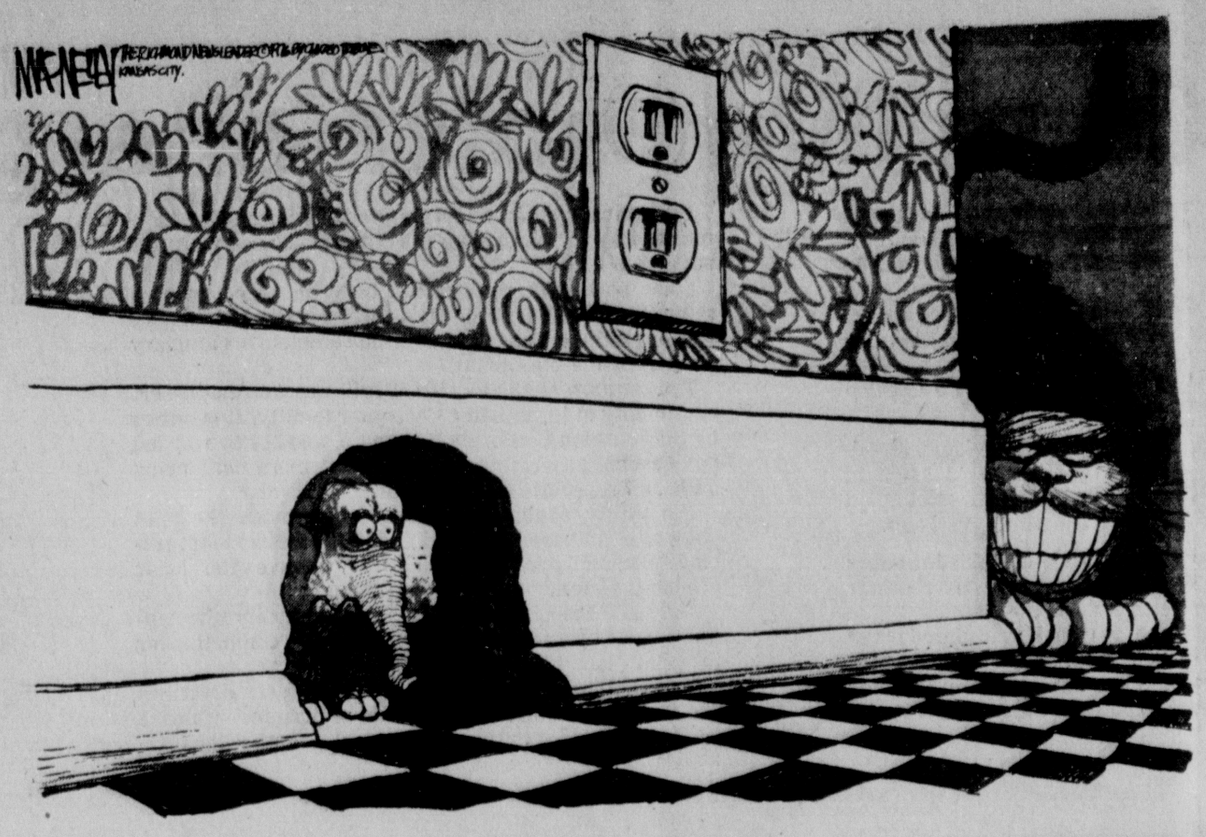

Certainly, it cannot be ignored by parents and school boards. Given the NEA's commitment to politics, it is only logical to conclude that some of its political zeal will be manifested in the classroom. Parents should be vigilant this fall in watching for attempts by NEA members to introduce political material into the classroom.

One of the great strengths of the American system is that elementary and high school education is non-political. If a so-called professional organization for teachers is transformed into a political force, and adopts the characteristics of a militant labor union, then traditiona! American schooling is likely to suffer. Indeed, the rising generation of Americans will suffer, for it will be exposed to partisan appeals — to propaganda, in a word.

Dr. Hunter is not optimistic about Parent-Teacher Associations being able to monitor political intrusions into the classroom. The effort should be made, nonetheless. He is right, however, in saying that the fundamental problem is the effort in the educational system, over 15 years or more, "to conceal the real nature of collectivism." He cites "frantic efforts" in this period to "discredit every spokesman for the free enterprise system."

Dr. Hunter calls for a "total renovation" of our educational system. Such a renovation would involve a new emphasis in the schools on the traditional principles of freedom, including economic freedom. It also would involve strict rules against politics in the classroom and equally strict rules against union-type harassment of school boards and teachers who want to teach, despite pressures to go on strike. But, as Dr. Hunter says, the initiative for such a change "probably will have to come from outside the ranks of professional educators."

No doubt, if a change comes, it will come from concerned parents — parents who are concerned that Johnny can't read or write effectively, while the NEA campaigns for $22 billion in federal spending on education.

The public forum

Why not try prevention?

Dear Editor:

I have no idea how many billions crime costs us each year but I do know the cost is staggering. Not only in the number of dollars is it frightening, but the misery and suffering cannot be measured.

The point I would like to bring up here is although I read several newspapers and look for it, there is almost no mention of prevention.

There are two main reasons for crime, "unemployment" and "the way" we take care of our children. One example. During World War II the crime rate fell off more than 50 per cent, which proves people would rather work than steal. There was plenty of work. The way we bring up our kids though is the real disgrace.

One prominent editor said: "A child brought up in the slums has a 25 to one better chance of becoming an inmate of a penal institution than one reared in a good residential area." A state senator who is head of a crime commission says: "Ninety per cent of our criminals are below voting age or they became involved in crime before becoming an adult."

As the twig is bent the tree will lean. How true it is and it is just as true with kids. This causes me to wonder about the recent controversy about father-son, mother-daughter banquets in schools. Unconstitutional or not, the small minority group that is left out is where all our trouble comes from. A little money and some love would go a long way here.

Somoza's like his father

WASHINGTON — A year ago, we named Anastasio Somoza, the barrel-bellied dictator of Nicaragua, the world's greediest ruler.

The sad truth is that the United States government has provided the ladder for his ascent to this dubious pinnacle.

Somoza runs Nicaragua as if it were his private estate. Through his family and flunkies, he owns or controls virtually every profitable industry, institution and service in the country. He also owns most of the land they sit on.

His enormous wealth has been squeezed out of his impoverished subjects, whose average pay is 30 cents an hour. They lie in shacks and teeming slums and eke out a living as best they can while the Big Banana stashes his millions in foreign banks.

The dictator maintains his power by fostering the myth that he has the full support of the big boys in Washington. He leads his people to believe that any attempt to dislodge him would bring back the U.S. Marines, who have already occupied the country twice in this century.

Not only do American officials let him get away with this but they have subsidized the Somoza's regime for 40 years with a steady flow of foreign aid. In the past 30 years the American taxpayers have donated over a quarter of a billion dollars to the tiny Central American republic.

The money was pumped into Nicaragua even though the U.S. authorities knew all along they were dealing with devils. From the moment the Somozas assumed power in Nicaragua, intelligence agencies and the State Department have kept detailed records of the family's rampant corruption.

Classified documents, which have long been gathering dust in government vaults, outline how the current dictator's father stuffed his personal coffers at the expense of his countrymen. The picture they paint reveals that the man who occupies the throne today, Anastasio Somoza Debayle, is a carbon copy of his father, Anastasio Somoza Garcia.

Here are some highlights:

—In a "Strictly Confidential" cable dated April 11, 1939, the U.S. ambassador to Nicaragua, Meredith Nicholson, reported complaints of a "continuing campaign of violence by the (National Guard) in the suppression of persons critical of the President." His informants, wrote Nicholson, "placed the figure of political deaths at the unbelievable total of a thousand a month." If his sources were to be believed, said Nicholson, "the country as a whole is one great political prison."

—According to his informants, said Nicholson, "the President makes free use of the Guardia and of government property in carrying on his extensive cattle and dairy enterprises." He had one report, the ambassador wrote, that Somoza was "smuggling cattle across the Costa Rican border."

—"I have heard a story," continued Nicholson, "that (Somoza) receives a 'cut' from certain of the gold mine concessionaires independently of the amounts paid into the treasury, and this is remitted through Costa Rica for deposit in a Canadian bank."

—The people of Nicaragua, Nicholson warned, were displaying "a spirit of resignation . . . Persons suspected of entertaining ideas hostile to the Somoza regime are watched and the espionage is so strict that it is difficult for the dissenting groups to hold meetings, even in their homes."

—In a memorandum dated December 19, 1939, Nicholson suggested that "President Somoza may be going a bit too far. It is apparently his ambition to receive a personal profit from every commercial activity in the country."

—Another "Strictly Confidential" cable, dated the same month, carried a report compiled by the U.S. Charge d'Affaires LaVerne Baldwin that listed "the numerous sins of this government." Among other things, Baldwin charged Somoza was ripping off road-building funds, running an illegal sweepstakes operation, maintaining a protection racket among miners, and taking kickbacks on cattle exports. The Nicaraguan government, Baldwin wrote, is "ridden from top to bottom with graft."

—The President was short of farm laborers, stated Baldwin. Thus, "Every man who is unable to produce a statement of employment is being accused of vagabondage and, in this year of our Lord 1939, impressed into jail service . . . or permitted to leave to harvest coffee" on Somoza's plantations.

—In May, 1939, Somoza had made a state visit to Washington, where he was royally received by President Franklin Roosevelt. While on that trip, wrote Baldwin, Somoza received "a total of $145,000 from the coffers of the state." This, it must be remembered, was during a time of world depression. After his return from the United States, cabled Baldwin, Somoza "shamelessly exploited the prestige accruing from his reception there as representing assurances of direct support from the American government."

—Ambassador Nicholson found Somoza personally repugnant, his cables reveal. Although Somoza was a man of "pleasing personality," wrote the ambassador, he is "without stability of opinion as to anything foreign to his selfish aims . . . Culturally he is a cipher, but he is clever enough to hide his deficiencies . . . It may be said that he sees in democracy only a device for the easy domination of his country, with abundant opportunities for plunder to the strains of the national anthem . . . His anecdotal range is limited to smutty stories which he relates with keen enjoyment . . . President Somoza's vanity is expressed in the rather gaudy uniform he wears on all occasions, even at private dinners. It cannot be denied that his warrior's harness is becoming . . ."

Think on these things

Some of the best things in life come out of the most distraught moments . . . moments that have reached the depths so that everything from this point is up . . . no circumstance and no condition can get worse than that moment of being down . . . but then the tide turns and that first bounce in the opposite direction goes very high.

Many of the most memorable times come from moments we wish we didn't have to experience . . . situations we would avoid with passion, had we a choice . . . but sometimes we cannot learn from being told and we find ourselves struggling for something to save us . . . and in that moment of despair we find the faith to hang on to something bigger than life . . . and it is there as tangible and concrete as anything we've ever touches . . . and we never forget that it came in that moment.

Africa off limits for U.S.

Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger, conferring urgently with the foreign minister of South Africa, announced his purpose as "an effort to prevent a race war in Africa."

He's too late.

The rioting we've been witnessing recently is merely another skirmish in a war that has gone on for 400 years.

Once upon a time — in the 1650s — a hundred years and more before our own war of independence — the Boers were beginning to occupy South Africa, where lived some of the proudest and toughest tribes on earth.

When threatened by British domination in the 1830s they migrated inland where they met and conquered the Bantu tribes. Later, the Boers took on the entire British Empire.

The Boers' descendants now number 2.5 million.

Other whites in South Africa, fewer than 2 million, are mostly of British origin.

They, too, speak English — seek to perpetuate white rule — but if the going gets too rough the British whites can always run home to Britain.

It is the Boers, to whom South Africa is home, who are most fiercely racist.

Further complicating this unbalance of power is the presence of 2 million mulatto descendants of early Boer settlers who are neither black nor white. And there is an assortment of aboriginal Hottentots and Asians.

Both the "Coloured" and the Asians despise and are despised by the other groups.

Those most militantly opposed to the Boers are South Africa's 18 million Bantu blacks. Their most famous warriors are the Zulus.

The Bantu are also racist — against the whites and against other black tribes.

What I'm saying is that the sensitivities and animosities of South Africans are not so simple as black and white.

You hear agitation for allowing the black majority in South Africa to take over. But look around at South Africa's neighbor nations. There is no evidence whatever that black rule results in any more "democracy" than white rule.

The goal of an integrated society in South Africa is utterly unrealistic considering the disparities in culture and wealth and numbers. Indeed, further partition is much more likely than homogenization.

Angola is an example. As a Portuguese colony, Angola was among the most integrated societies in the world.

When it broke down into anarchy and white flight — when the last whites were gone — a radical war broke out among the three major black tribes.

Americans, with perhaps more than enough media coverage of South Africa — since it is now the last scene of strife worthy of headlines — will have to learn to live with years of sporadic violence there.

Nor can U.N. resolutions, embargoes, boycotts nor pious declarations heal those ancient cultural differences.

The most constructive contribution we can make would be to put our own house in order.

Doc Peirsol

Just in jest

In the days when he was keeping America on its toes with his witty comments and astute observations, Will Rogers, time and again, would punctuate his remarks with, "All I know is what I read in the newspapers." But I fear Mr. Rogers would find it very confusing if today he were depending on that same source for his information. Take Tuesday, May 25, as an example of what I mean. On that day on page 5 of my Progress Bulletin I found an advertisement where it was stated:

"Over the years, Kaiser Steel has spent about $60 million on environmental measures and pollution control. — We got together with the major agricultural groups, federal and county officials, and helped fund the 'Agricultural Air Research Program' at the University of California at Riverside. — Well, the university conducted a two year extensive research program, primarily on citrus. Then their results came out, and fortunately Kaiser Steel was O.K."

A few minutes later I turned to page 9 of that same newspaper where I read:

"The Kaiser Steel Mill was recently listed by the APCD as the single largest emitter of air contaminants in Southern California."

Sadly I shook my head in utter confusion. "How unfortunate," I thought, "that Will Rogers isn't with us today to give us one of his logical and humorously reassuring explanations.

Lawmakers losing touch

By EARL G. WATERS

When Speaker Leo McCarthy, returning for the final 30 days of the two year legislative session, ascribed coastal legislation as the most important remaining business he gave credence to the charge made by Senator Randolph Collier that the prolonged sessions are causing the lawmakers to lose touch with the people.

For there is widespread disagreement with McCarthy's assessment of priorities. As a spokesman for the State Building Trades Council put it, "The average citizen knows nothing of the coastal zone issues and cares less. What our people do care about is employment. We think that is number one."

So embittered are some labor leaders about the failure of the Legislature to address itself to immediate problems that the Council's president, James S. Lee, recently announced his sponsorship of a citizen's committee to review the legislative process and recommend revisions in both salaries and operations.

"We have massive unemployment, unbearable property taxes, intolerable crime, a mess in our school financing and all our legislators think about are some environmental problems which have been with us for a hundred years," Lee complained, pointing out that the coastal zone and other similar legislation "seem to be aimed at increasing unemployment instead of reducing it."

Another labor official likened the legislators to Nero. "They're a bunch of little Neros fiddling with trivia," he said citing such things as bicycle trail legislation by Senate President Pro Tem James Mills and an anti-smoking measure by Assemblyman John Briggs. "That guy has spent ten years up here worrying about smoking. If he and the others were half as zealous about employment or property taxes those problems would be solved."

There is no question unemployment continues as a major problem despite rosy claims of recovery. Recent figures show a rise in the national rate during midsummer, leaving one to wonder what will happen by midwinter. Quite a few others would put crime, school financing and property taxes right at the top with employment.

Not that all 120 members have been blind to the property tax situation. Among those who have attempted to find a solution for the homeowners are Assemblymen Bill McVittie, Bill Lancaster, Paul Bannai, Gene Chappie, Paul Priolo, Bob Nimmo, Lawrence Kapiloff, Frank Murphy, Jack Fenton, Bob Cline and Dan Boatwright. Also Senators Peter Behr, John Holmdahl, James Wedworth, John Foran and Jerome Smith all sponsored property tax relief measures. The problem was that almost everybody had a different idea about how to achieve it with the result nothing emerged.

Foran, recently elected to the Senate, worked at the problem for a number of years. Boatwright, as head of the Assembly Revenue and Tax Committee, developed some extensive reforms but failed to win house approval. Holmdahl, the Senate's Rev and Tax chairman, also conducted extensive hearing seeking solutions without success.

Wedworth, described in the press several years ago as "the hardest working Senator", has persistently labored for relief for taxpayers. His constitutional amendment to alter property taxes was also rejected but he did succeed, after several years of battling, to gain approval for a new law designed to make it easier for property owners to challenge assessed valuations.

Still the chances for homeowners to get any real relief from tax burdens before 1979 now appear bleak. This despite the observation made by one sideliner that "I would hate to be a legislator standing for reelection this November just after the people get their property tax bills."

Ann Landers

Take that and that and that!

Dear Ann Landers: This is for John Q. Public, that arrogant ignoramus who thinks he has the right to pass judgment on what women should wear in supermarkets and on city streets.

So you don't like us in tennis dresses and shorts because you think varicose veins are ugly? Well, Buddy Boy, where do you think we got them? Not from lolling around eating bon-bons. Varicose veins are the result of bearing this country's children.

We deserve a lot more respect and a lot less criticism. Varicose veins are our service stripes.

If looking at us spoils your appetite, I suggest you turn your head the other way. Maybe you'll see a man wearing Bermuda shorts. And five will get you 10 that HE will have varicose veins. — Insulted In Guam

Dear G: Take that and that and that, John Q.P. But — those men with the varicose veins, how do you suppose THEY got 'em?

Dear Ann Landers: I am 37 years old. My husband is 42. We have four healthy children who are a handful. My husband and I decided "no more." So three months ago he had a vasectomy.

Last week I began to feel queasy in the morning. Today the doctor told me I am PREGNANT! I screamed, "Impossible, my husband has had a vasectomy!" The doctor gave me a wry look and asked, "Do you have a lover?" I was shocked at his question and told him I didn't go in for that sort of thing. He replied, "Ask your husband if he went back and had his seminal fluid checked six weeks after his surgery."

Well, I asked him, Ann, and his answer was, "No, I forgot." Yesterday he returned to his doctor (furious that the doctor's office hadn't reminded him about the check-up) and sure enough, the sperm count was high enough to make me pregnant.

So, please tell your readers that having a vasectomy is not enough. They must make sure it "took." — Number Five Coming Up

Dear Number Five: Thanks for a letter that can make a great deal of difference to a lot of readers. (P.S. I hope you haven't given away the crib and high chair.)

Dear Ann Landers: We're a large family of girls. Whenever there's a special occasion — Christmas, birthdays, or anniversary, something that calls for a gift for our parents — one sister rushes out and selects an expensive present and then hits the rest of us up for our share of the cost.

She doesn't realize that each of us may want to give our mother or father a gift on our own.

Mother's jewelry box is full of stuff sister picked out but couldn't afford to pay for until she divided the price by six and dunned the rest of us.

I have a hunch Sis is charging this merchandise, paying on it monthly and doing something else with the funds she's collecting from us. What can be done without creating a big family fight? — Rooked

Dear R: Tell sister NOW that there will be no more joint gifts to your parents. If she ignores your wishes and buys something from all of you, insist that she pay for it herself.

How to — and how much? Find out with Ann Landers' new booklet, "How, What and When to Tell Your Child About Sex." For your copy, send 50 cents in coin along with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope to Ann Landers, P.O. Box 1400, Elgin, Illinois 60120.

Dr. Miller

Takes love to be firm

DEAR DR. MILLER: No problems. Just want to thank you for reinforcing my beliefs on keeping kitties indoors and dogs on leash. They gaze so longingly out at the world that it's rough to be firm — takes a lot of love. — S.T.

DEAR S.T.: Thank you — for writing! It can't be said too often or by too many people.

DEAR DR. MILLER: It's been a long, drawn-out struggle, but our collie Princess has finally been cured of mange. This was the kind the doctor called Demodex mange. Princess has her hair growing back and she's starting to look like a beautiful dog again. What a relief! Since it was such an ordeal for her, would it be better to wait and let her go through one heat period and wait until the second one before we breed her? — G.S.

DEAR G.S.: Birth control of a permanent nature, not breeding, is the best answer for Princess. It's a shame to shatter your dream regarding Princess and puppies, but at this point, if pursued, the dream could become a nightmare. Odds are great that even though apparently "cured", Princess would pass along mange to her puppies.

The mange mite Demodex canus is common — it's found in practically every dog. The problem then is the resistance of the particular dog to the mites in its body. Demodectic mange is most common in purebred dogs and by far most frequently found within some strains of these dogs. The reason is that these strains show a low-immune-resistance to the multiplication of these mites, allowing the numbers to increase, creating an active case of mange.

To repeat, the problem then is not that Princess' puppies would have mange mites, almost all dogs do, but that her puppies would not have the ability (resistance) to prevent these mites from multiplying in large numbers. The pups, then, would have a tendency to suffer from the mange just as their mother has, thereby causing an active mange problem. This is why Princess or any other dog who has had an active case of Demodectic mange should not be bred.

DEAR DR. MILLER: I like raw hamburger and sliced onions. Tinker, my cat, likes the hamberuger without the onions. It's not true she can get some kind of parasites from raw hamburger, is it? — N.G.

DEAR N.G.: Sad, 'tis true — for both of you.

Simply tender, loving care

In response to a column on "Never Strike Your Child In Anger," Tom Byrnes of Lake Bluff, Ill., offers this tongue-in-cheek question as to when do you strike them. He is the father of 12 children and grandfather to 14.

Never strike your child in anger,
Never hit him when irate,
But save it for some happy time,
When both are feeling great.
Save it for some pleasant bedtime.
And as you tuck him in his crib,
Clench your fist and let him have it,
Or better, choke him with his bib.
Or wait until a Sunday morning,
Try to catch him at his prayers,
And as he whispers, "Dod bwess Dada,"
Kick him neatly down the stairs.
Or how about a Happy Birthday,
When friends and laughter fill the house,
Then bash him with a cake you've lettered,
"Greetings to a little louse."
Or how about a family outing,
A Sunday morning at the zoo,
And when it's time to feed the lions,
Supplement with you-know-who.
Or take him with you on an airplane,
The family plan's the cheapest way,
And when it reaches cruising level,
Tell him, "Go outside and play."

Although he breaks a Wedgewood platter,
Spills your bourbon on the floor,
Never strike your child in anger,
It isn't civilized anymore.
It makes the child feel insecure,
When parents strike or even shove,
But you can do him in completely,
As long as it's done with love.

Margarine holds no cholesterol

DEAR DR. LAMB — I have read that the hardened oils in margarine are just as high in cholesterol as the animal fat in butter. What is your opinion of beating vegetable oil into butter to make a soft spread? Would this cut down on the cholesterol problem?

DEAR READER — Cholesterol is not fat and fat is not cholesterol. There is no cholesterol in any margarine made only with vegetable products. Hardening vegetable oils by adding hydrogen to the unsaturated fats converts them to saturated fats. One of the purposes of using a vegetable margarine is to decrease the saturated fat intake. A high saturated fat intake may cause the body to produce excess amounts of cholesterol whether the saturated fats come from animal or vegetable products.

You can improve both butter and vegetable margarine by beating in a polyunsaturated fat. I use one of the corn oil margarines mixed with safflower oil. Two small tubs of margarine are mixed with one tub of safflower oil. You can improve its butter flavor then by seasoning to your taste with imitation butter flavored salt. You can usually find that with the spices at the supermarket. If you want it to be more solid like ordinary margarine you can keep it stored in the freezing compartment of your refrigerator.

To help you clarify the difference between cholesterol and fats I am sending you The Health Letter number 1-2, Cholesterol, Triglycerides, Blood Fats, Atherosclerosis. Others who want this information can send a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope with 50 cents for it. Send your letter to me in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

DEAR DR. LAMB — Since I was a small child I have had those ugly white patches of skin on my body — a pigment problem. Also my hair is white in places. My mother said that I was not born that way but developed it when I was 6 years old and started school. I have always been told to just live with it, but I wish those people had to. If there is something for it I really would like to know — a special diet — a vitamin — shots or anything. Any information you can give me will be appreciated.

DEAR READER — You probably have vitilago which means a failure of the skin to form pigment in spots. This results in lard-white spots that are particularly noticeable in dark complexioned people. It is not dangerous and is important only from a cosmetic point of view.

Treatment certainly leaves something to be desired, but some people with this conditon get help from treatment with a medicine called Oxsoralen (methoxsalen). After taking the medicine by mouth the patient is exposed to sunlight or to artificial light sources that induce the same effect in shorter periods.

It can be applied locally and then a light source used by this should be done under a doctor's supervision and not by the patient. The combination of the stimulation of the light plus the medicine will sometimes help to eliminate the problem but the treatment is not always successful. A dermatologist could help you with the problem.

More churches in Las Vegas?

Contention is that certain habitual TV watchers when their television sets break down suffer some sort of withdrawal pains. Moodiness sets in. They spank their youngsters, maybe. Even cases of wife-beating have been attributed to such. Or so reports the Society for Rational Psychology in Munich.

Green beans are 89 per cent water. Milk is 87 per cent water. Studies at Michigan State prove that. They do not explain, however, why we can't pour ourselves a glass of green beans and eat milk with a fork. Research goes on.

FOOTBALL DEATHS

Q. "How many athletes, as far as we know, have died from football injuries in this country?"

A. In the last 43 years — that's how far back the records go — football deaths have numbered 806, most of them as a result of injuries in high school games.

Q. "How do you account for the fact that Las Vegas claims more churches per capita than any other city in the world?"

A. Imagine it's because any room that's called a chapel wherein couples can get married is likewise listed in some places as a church.

Q. "How many animals can you name, besides the cow, that give milk consumed by people?"

A. Camel, water buffalo, reindeer, mare, llama, yak goat and ewe. Any others? There was some talk a few years back about milking great blue whales, using the Navy Yard in Bremerton, Wash., as a barn with the drydocks there as stanchions, but I don't think anybody came up with the appropriate milking machines.

GOSSIP

What men when together without ladies discuss most is that male gossip known as shop talk. What women without men discuss most is that female shop talk known as gossip. So reports a survey team which undertook a study of the matter. Men's shop talk really has to do with hirings and firings, who makes how much money, what so-and-so does wrong or right. Female gossip is more neighborly. Has to do with pregnancies, over-spending and the mismanagement of personal relationships by friends and relatives. According to these surveytakers, men chatter along these lines at much greater length than do women.

For Friday, Aug. 27, 1976

ARIES (March 21-April 19) It doesn't hurt to take a back seat occassionally. This is one of those times. Let your companions play the leading roles today.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) This will be a rewarding day for you. You'll take pride in what you were able to accomplish.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) A venture you are considering could have the possibilities you envision. Why not explore the matter a little further?

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Your mind and energies will be devoted to doing things for those in your charge today. Your unselfishness is admirable.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) You can kindle enthusiasm today for issues you feel strongly about. Take your message to persons essential to your plans.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) You're both ambitious and imaginative today. This should prove to be a profitable combination. Personal gain is likely.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Where your self-interests are concerned today, be more assertive without being brash. Initiative produces desirable results.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) You function best today if left to your own devices. Do what's necessary without calling too much attention to yourself.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Wherever you go today you'll generate a buzz of pleasant activity. You have a way of bringing the scene alive.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) You have something extra going for you today that separates the victors from the losers. See you in the winner's circle.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) What you learn now you will retain and find a practical use for. Seek knowledge today that can better your lot in life.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) There is always an element of risk whenever we contemplate changes. However, today the odds against you are minimal.

Your Birthday Aug. 27, 1976

The profit motive will be strong in you this year. It's likely you'll seek ways to increase your income. If you operate along familiar lines your chances look super.

One of the modern expert developments in bidding is to use the jump to game when a bid of one less than game would be a force. This tells partner that you are well satisfied with the game contract you have bid and want your partner to know that you have little or nothing extra in the way of high cards to tell him about.

Take away his ace of hearts and North would have jumped to four spades. As it was he merely bid three spades to set the suit. South didn't know if North had a good hand or a very bad one so he merely bid four spades. North bid five hearts to show that ace. Whereupon South decided there just might be a grand slam, so he bid six diamonds to show second-round diamond control and grand-slam interest.

That was enough for North. He bid the grand slam.

There was nothing to the play since trumps broke 3-2 and declarer could set up either the fifth diamond or fifth club for his 13th truck.

Ask the Jacobys

An Illinois reader wants to know the significance of the double in the sequence two spades (forcing), four hearts by the next bidder and double by the partner of the operner.

The double is both a penalty double of the four-heart bid and a warning to partner that you really don't have help for him.

Stolen bonsai tree is returned to Arboretum

WASHINGTON (AP) — The National Arboretum has recovered a century-old bonsai tree that was stolen by a young plant lover who "thought it was worth about $20," an official says.

The miniature juniper plant was returned to the National Arboretum Monday night by a 20-year-old New Carrollton, Md., man who stole it on an impulse with two 17-year-old friends, William L. Ackerman, acting director of the arboretum, revealed Tuesday.

The 30-inch-high tree is part of Japan's $4-million gift of 53 bonsai trees to the United States in honor of the Bicentennial.

The New Carrollton man returned it after his girl friend convinced him of its real value, Ackerman said. "For an amateur, he took good care of it. He even watered it," he added.

No charges have been filed against the man and his friends, but they are scheduled to appear at a hearing today before a U.S. attorney.

Meanwhile, the arboretum has posted a 24-hour guard over the bonsai tree pavillion to prevent a repetition of what could have been an embarassing international incident.

Loss of the tree would have proved particularly embarrassing to U.S. officials in view of an incident in Seattle last June in which vandals damaged or destroyed 130 stripling cherry trees that Japan gave the city for the Bicentennial.

Bonsai trees are purposely miniaturized through centuries-old methods of pruning and shaping. Some of those in the arboretum exhibit are from the Japanese imperial collection. One is 350 years old.

While the collection is estimated by Agriculture Department officials to be worth $4 million, experts consider the trees to be priceless in the same sense that great works of art have no actual price tag.

The trees are so delicate that smoking and camera flashbulbs are not permitted in the display area at the aboretum.

The incident received no public attention until a reporter began making inquiries Tuesday. Gail Sedgwick, an Agriculture Department official with responsibility for the arboretum, admitted that authorities had hoped to get the tree back before its disappearance became public knowledge.

An embassy spokesman confirmed the details in a long phone conversation with arboretum officials and was "somewhat upset," according to an Agriculture Department source.

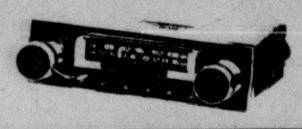

A letter notifying the embasssy of the incident was being drafted when word came that the tree had been returned. The embassy spokesman later told a reporter that "the tree has been returned and the problem has been solved to the mutual satisfaction of everybody."

Sedgwick would give few details on how the tree was stolen, except to indicate that an alarm system set up to keep visitors from getting too close to the bonsai exhibit wasn't functioning properly.

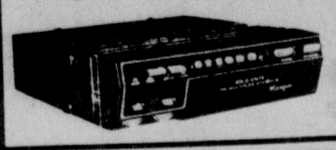

"We don't want to talk about security measures," he said. "Let's just say it isn't going to happen again."

Hoffmann defends stand on West Point cheating scandal

WASHINGTON (AP) — Army Secretary Martin R. Hoffmann, defending his plan to end the West Point cheating scandal before a congressional subcommittee, said today he was confident the U.S. military academy "and all it stands for will emerge a stronger institution."

"I can assure the committee that the Army fully intends to carry out this program in a positive, constructive context and spirit," he said.

Hoffmann said that West Point intends to readmit cadets convicted of collaborating on a graded homework assignment after they resign for a year.

"I am fully cognizant that not all of these actions will please everyone but I believe they will establish a revitalized base for the future."

Chairman Lucien N. Nedzi opened the House Military Personnel subcommittee hearing by saying, "We have been hopeful that the issues raised would be resolved through the action of the authorities at West Point and the Department of the Army."

"This has not occurred despite several announcements of actions to be taken. We have to believe that a scandal of the proportions which have shaken all of us was contributed to by institutional omissions or commissions. We will endeavor through continuing efforts to ascertain the root of the problems."

Said Hoffmann: "All concerned are agreed that there have been institutional shortcomings in communications on honor matters as well as other matters within and without the corps of cadets.

Washington bill goes to Senate

WASHINGTON (AP) — George Washington's promotion to the highest ranking Army officer in U.S. history now goes to the Senate after a 275-107 favorable vote in the House.

Washington was made a lieutenant general after his command of U.S. revolutionary forces 200 year ago. It was the highest rank at the time but now is only a three-star general.

Rep. Lucien N. Nedzi, D-Mich., said Washington's place in history is assured and he "certainly doesn't need an extra star from us." He compared the proposal to "having the Pope offer to make Christ a Cardinal."

Rep. Mario Biaggi, D-N.Y., the bill's chief sponsor, said he never intended to have Congress improve Washington's status. He said he offered the proposal "in the spirit of the bicentennial."

The bill would make Washington a general of the armies of the United States, as of last July 4. Nedzi said it wasn't clear this would make Washington the highest ranking Army officer ever, despite the bill's language saying so.

But Chairman F. Edward Hebert, D-La., of the House Armed Services subcommittee, which approved the bill, said he assumes the bill would make Washington a six-star general.

NEW LOOK — Latest thing in amphibious assault ships is the USS Tarawa. The 820-foot long, 40,000-ton vessel can embark, deploy and land a fully equipped Marine Assault force by helicopter or landing craft, performing functions previously requiring four ships.

CB convac

Don't let newness of CB frighten you

By Ink Dipper

(EDITOR'S NOTE: "Ink Dipper" (KYZ-3916) is the handle of the editor of The CB Times Journal.)

CBing has become the great American pastime. It is approaching bowling in the number of participants, close to football in the number of fans, and like band-aids in the number of adherents.

CBers are you and me. Or, at best, many of us. And growing at the rate of one-half million per month, according to the FCC. That means it won't be long until it's YOU, as well as me.

OK, so you've made the big step and purchased a CB unit for your car. You've even made a couple of trips down the super slab and have successfully avoided prowling bear, swarming county mounties.

You've desperately tried to keep up with the ratchet-jawin' truckers who swirl through the concrete jungle faster than the speed of sound.

But there's just one more thing you have to do. Despite the fact that your long-awaited license has arrived from the harried FCC bureaucrats laboring for Uncle Charlie, you still haven't quite managed to get up the gumption to push the button.

Will I say the right thing? What if they answer back in this strange language with some question I won't understand? Is my handle silly . . . will they laugh?

Well, let's take the last question first. Of course your handle isn't silly, it's yours . . . but now that you've been listening to CB convacs for awhile, let me ask you . . . have you heard a handle that isn't unique? It's everyone establishing his or her own identity.

Besides, it's your radio, your radio system, your handle and your highway (the bears even work for you). So take heart. Push the button. And give out with some ratchet-jawin'.

If you're a freshman and still queasy about breaking channel 19, flip over to another. There's a bunch to choose from, and talk to someone else.

Now for some serious convac.

You have your license. You have had your CB installed. You should be somewhat acquainted with the FCC regulations governing the CB use. You are also aware that Channel 9 is used solely for emergency traffic.

Hence, you now have not only a play-toy that helps pass the long miles . . . you also have an instrument that can prevent accidents, save lives and aid law enforcement. Remember, your CB unit is your only outside communication in the isolation of your car.

At the outset of your CB career, you should familiarize yourself with the 10-code and basic CB language. Become cognizant of the responsibilities that come with owning a CB radio. If you observe something that would present a traffic hazard, get on your radio and tell it fast. Simple things, like an animal on or near the expressway, can cause serious accidents when you're clipping along at 65 mph or more.

So, until the next time keep the rolling side down. The shiny side up. And with a big set of three's and eight's . . . we gone.

Things to see and do in Southland

A "redriving of the golden spike" ceremony, an international street fair and a skydiving exhibition are among the Aug. 26-Sept. 5 activities listed below (subject to change without notice), as compiled by the Automobile Club of Southern California.

Of special interest are Cambria's 28th annual Pinedorado; the Lang Station Centennial, in Canyon Country, and National City's South Bay County Fair.

ANAHEIM — The Angels play New York, Aug. 27-28 at 7:30 p.m. and Aug. 29, 1 p.m.; Detroit, Aug. 30-Sept. 1, 7:30 p.m.; Oakland, Sept. 3-4, 7:30 p.m. and Sept. 5, 1 p.m. — at Anaheim Stadium.

BEVERLY HILLS — Watts Family Bicentennial Display, noting the family's role in American history; during business hours, at 174 N. Canon Dr., thru Aug. 31 (admission free).

CAMBRIA — 28th annual Pinedorado, including kiddy rides, a beef barbecue (paid admission), dances and a melodrama (both nominal charge) and a parade (11 a.m., thru downtown); 9 a.m.-11 p.m. (Sept. 4-5), 9 a.m.-4 p.m. (Sept. 6), at the Veterans Memorial Building (free grounds admission).

CANYON COUNTRY (Los Angeles County) — Lang Station Centennial, featuring the "redriving of the golden spike" ceremony and historic exhibits plus a barbecue and dancing (nominal charge, at the Elks Club); 4:30 p.m., at Lang Station, south of SR 14, off Soledad Canyon Rd., on Lang Station Rd., Sept. 5 (admission free — call 805-259-2790 or 259-7407 for details).

CYPRESS — Annual Boot Hill Festival featuring a street dance and a barbecue; 8 p.m., 8702 Acacia Dr., Aug. 28 (paid admission).

FULLERTON — Gymkhana Horse Show; 3 p.m., in the Recreational Riders Show Ring, Lakeview and Euclid Sts., Aug. 29 (admission free).

LA CRESCENTA — 3rd annual Friendship Fair, including entertainment, contests and a skydiving exhibition; 10 a.m.-5 p.m., at Crescenta Valley Park, 3901 New York Ave., Sept. 5-6 (free grounds admission).

LA JOLLA — La Jolla Underwater Swim, an ecology field study by the Natural History Museum; offshore La Jolla Cove, Aug. 28-29 (paid admission — call 714-232-3821 for details).

LANCASTER — 33rd annual Antelope Valley Fair and Alfalfa Festival, featuring motocross races, a variety show, fireworks display, Rural Olympics and rodeos (both paid admission) plus a parade (5 p.m., east on Lancaster Blvd., from 10th St. W., Sept. 1); various times, at the Fairgrounds, Sept. 1-6 (adults $1, senior citizens and children 6-12, 50 cents — call 805-948-6060 for details).

LONG BEACH — World Professional Skateboard Championships; 2-8 p.m., at the Arena, Sept. 4-5 (paid admission).

30th annual International Softball Congress, featuring teams from the U.S., Canada, Mexico and Puerto Rico; various times, at Blair Field, 10th St. and Park Ave., thru Aug. 29 (paid admission — call 213-437-4101 for details).

LOS ANGELES — 32nd annual Summer Jamboree, a family event opening with a basket supper, followed by a community sing and a variety show; 5 p.m., at the Los Angeles Breakfast Club, 3201 Riverside Dr., Aug. 28 (admission free).

Los Angeles City Birthday Party, including a musical program, reception for early California families, Mexican and Spanish dancing and a fireworks display; various times, on Olvera St., Sept. 4 (call 213-628-7164 or 628-3562 for details).

Mexican Travelcade, including mariachis, charros and the Mexican Ballet; 11 a.m.-10 p.m. (Aug. 28), 11 a.m.-7 p.m. (Aug. 29), at the convention center (adults $1.50, children under 12 free).

The Rams play Buffalo, Aug. 28, and San Francisco, Sept. 4, both at 7 p.m. — at the Coliseum.

NATIONAL CITY — South Bay County Fair, including a scout-a-rama, contests, entertainment, a horse show plus youth and armed forces talent shows; 4-10 p.m. (Sept. 1-3), noon-10 p.m. (Sept. 4-6), at Kimball Park, 14th and "D" Sts. (admission free).

NEWPORT BEACH — 2nd annual Berkeley at the Beach Day, with the public, UC alumni and friends invited to enjoy games, entertainment, a barbecue and to meet officials of the University of California at Berkeley; 10:30 a.m.-9 p.m., at 3.5 Mile Beach, Irvine Ranch, along Pacific Coast Highway, Aug. 29 (paid admission — call 714-549-2988 or 213-776-3660 for details).

Almanac

The Associated Press

Today is Thursday, Aug. 26, the 239th day of 1976. There are 127 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On this date in 1920, the 19th Amendment to the U.S. Constitution went into effect, giving women the same voting rights as men.

On this date —

In 1316, artillery was said to have been used for the first time, in the battle of Crecy in northern France.

In 1765, Massachusetts Gov. Thomas Hutchinson was accused of favoring the British Stamp Act, and a mob sacked his home.

In 1934, Adolf Hitler demanded that France turn over the Saar to Germany.

In 1937, Japan blockaded Chinese shipping.

In 1942, in World War II, France's Vichy government announced the dissolution of the French Senate.

In 1964, Student and Buddhist riots in South Vietnam forced the resignation of the government of Premier Nguyen Khanh.

Ten years ago: A nationwide railroad strike began in Canada, with no settlement of union wage demands in sight.

Five years ago: Queen Juliana of The Netherlands arrived in the former Dutch colony of Indonesia, becoming the first ruling sovereign of the House of Orange to visit the archipelago, which the Dutch had ruled for more than three centuries.

One year ago: Portugal asked the United Nations to try to halt a civil war in the Portuguese colony on the island of Timor, which is surrounded by Indonesian islands.

Today's birthdays: Gen. Maxwell Taylor is 75 years old. Mexican painter Rufino Tamayo is 76.

Thought for today: The man who lives only by hope will die with despair — Italian proverb.

Bicentennial footnote: Two hundred years ago today, British troops who had landed on Long Island near York York advanced inland, and there was a brisk skirmish with some Pennsylvania troops in George Washington's defending force.

Work: hearts just aren't in it

By JUDY CLABES

JUDY CLABES, a former teacher and reporter is the public affairs director of The Evening (Ind.) Press.

Opinion

It doesn't take fancy studies to tell us there are just too many people who aren't happy with their jobs.

We just have to listen.

Some of the grumbling we hear can be shrugged off as that "divine discontent planted deeply in the hearts of the American people," but much of it must be considered indicative of one of the most serious problems our industrialized society faces.

We grew up on the work ethic. Something tells us we should enjoy work for work's sake. And since most of us must work for a living, it's a shame so many are stuck with jobs we don't like.

The National Institute of Safety and Health found in a survey that jobs with long hours, heavy workloads and urgent responsibilities registered high on satisfaction scale. Less demanding jobs, which proceeded at a regular pace during normal working hours with little responsibility produced abnormally high levels of anxiety.

This seems to confirm opinion polls taken between 1968 and 1971 that found college students perfectly willing to work hard at a job — if it paid off in such intangibles as challenge and opportunity for self-expression.

In short, psychic rewards are more important than material ones. And job discontent can't be written off as the expected reaction of a lazy, spoiled and pampered people.

A friend who works on a factory assembly line told this story:

"It's a good job . . . I mean, it isn't hard. All I have to do is adjust a few bolts. And it pays pretty good. But some days I'd get in my car, drive all the way to the plant, pull into a parking spot, then never get out of the car. I'd just turn around and come right back home. Other days I'd be standing there working and just get sick all over."

He is not lazy or irresponsible. He has a family to support. He's willing to work hard. He simply feels there must be more, somewhere. He brings to mind the posters popular some years ago of a forlorn college student pleading, "Please do not fold, spindle, or mutilate."

Despite high levels of unemployment and lack of job morality in today's economy, a leading industrial relations authority says today's work force "has become alienated from the tedium of the work-place."

Consider worker absenteeism, tardiness, turnover, industrial sabotage, worker apathy, decreasing rates of efficiency and productivity — as well as the "strike" mentality and antagonism toward the "system" of many workers.

The old fashioned work ethic notion has been replaced, says this expert, by a "worth ethic." The worth ethic holds that "people have worth by virtue of being human beings and not by viture of some activity such as work, education, travel, etc. Value will adhere only to work which the individual defines as meaningful — which contributes to his sense of dignity and self-fulfillment."

"There used to be losts of pride in this work," said another friend about his trade. "Now nobdy's interested in quality, just in getting something done. I used to think I'd want my children to do this. Now I tell them, "Life's too short. Do something — anything — that you're happy doing."

Perhaps, snobs that were are, we attached too much significance to prestige positions and too little to real labor that's necessary to make things run smoothly. Where would we be without our plumbers, garbage collectors, ditch diggers, janitors, etc?

Perhaps, too, we are too much like the little boys who said he eats the main course because that's the only way he can get dessert. Work has become merely a means to an end — a fancy home, a big car, a country club membership — rather than an end in itself. Have we become so folded, stapled, multilated that we can't rescue a feeling of satisfaction in a mission accomplished?

Is it too much to expect to be happy in work?

As John Ruskin said, "In order that people may be happy in their work, these three things are needed: They must be for it; they must not do too much of it; and they must have a sense of success in it."

A society that depends on individual achievement must not lose its most valuable asset — its working people — to the anonymity of the assembly line or the computer or to thrill of misdirected leisure time.

I can't help but think the best and most productive workers are the ones who are happy doing what they do.

Wives of pilots sent to S. Korea stunned

MOUNTAIN HOME, Idaho (AP) — Shock, disbelief and a hope that it would all be over soon. That was the reaction of Air Force wives whose husbands flew to South Korea as part of a U.S. show of strength.

"It's unreal," said Mrs. Scott I. Young. "One minute your husband is here and the next you aren't sure where he is. Most of the other women I've talked to just have a feeling of unbelief."

Mrs. Scott's husband, an intelligence officer, was dispatched Thursday with the F111 fighter-bombers of the 366th Tactical Fighter Wing.

The Defense Department said 15 planes were sent from Mountain Home to Korea as U.S. air strength there was built up after the killing of two American Army officers Wednesday by North Korean border guards.

"It's just hard to believe all this is happening. If there was an invasion or something, you'd expect it," said Mrs. Young. "I sure hope it doesn't become a war."

Few of the women whose husbands left with the fighter wing's 390th Squadron would talk to reporters.

"I hope we're just going to go over there and show the flag and come back home," said the wife of one senior officer dispatched with the wing. "I don't think any of us is ready for another Southeast Asia."

San Quentin inmate slain

SAN QUENTIN (AP) — San Quentin Prison inmate John H. Biggs, 26, of Fresno County, has been killed in an assault in the prison's shower area, authorities announced.

A prison spokesman said the attack happened about 9 p.m. Monday. An early report indicated the weapon was a knife; there was no report on a possible motive.

Dodgers love those Easterners

The Sun rises in the East . . . and so do the Dodgers.

What a shame that inter-division play is drawing to a close.

Wednesday night's 3-1 Dodger victory gave the Alstonmen a 27-9 record (.750) against the Eastern Division teams in games at friendly Dodger Stadium.

The percentage is slightly lower when road games against the East are included. But the 45-21 mark (.682) still is a higher percentage than that of the Eastern Division leaders.

Philadelphia, with a 14½ game lead in the East, has a .661 percentage for all games. Cincinnati, leading the West, saw its lead over the Dodgers drop to 8½ games. The Reds sport a .630 percentage on games won and lost.

The trouble with the Dodgers is they haven't been able to play even .500 ball against the teams in their own division. So their overall won-lost percentage is a much less sensational .563.

Wednesday night's win was their ninth in their last 10 games, tenth straight at night and sixth straight at Dodger Stadium over the Expos.

The inept Expos had Dodger starter Doug Rau (12-10) on the ropes the first three innings but couldn't knock him out. Rau started off as uncertain as a playboy courting a minister's daughter.

By his own admission, the slim lefty had "nothing" when he went out to start the game.

He managed to throw five pitches, three balls and two strikes before leadoff man Ellis Valentine whacked one out of the park for a home run.

Rau was lucky

Bombo Rivera (honest, that's his name) nearly undressed Rau with a drive back at him for an out. Gary Carter doubled, but Rau rallied and retired the next two batters.

Catcher Barry Foote lined a long single to left to start the Montreal second but was thrown out by Bill Buckner trying to stretch it to a double.

There were two more singles and a walk that inning, a total of three sharp hits and a base on balls and still the Expos didn't score.

With the bases loaded, two out and a two-ball count on Rivera, Rau finally threw a strike and the crowd cheered sarcastically.

Stung, Rau reacted by tipping his cap.

"That was the turning point," Rau said later. "I made up my mind he (Rivera) wasn't going to get a hit and he didn't and I settled down although they came back again and made it rough at the end."

After a two-out single in the third, Rau retired 12 straight before Rivera led off the eighth with a hit.

The Dodgers tied it in the fourth and won it in the fifth.

It looked like the Angelenos had the Canadiens mesmerized. Whatever the Expos tried failed and whatever the Dodgers attempted succeeded.

Lopes walked and stole his 39th base to open the Dodger fourth. Buckner promptly singled him home.

The Dodgers made the last two runs look even easier. They got them on three straight singles starting off the fifth.

Ron Cey singled and legged it around to third on Bill Russell's long single to left center. Russell took second when the Expos made a play on Cey.

Lyttle's crazy hit

Jim Lyttle, whom the Expos tried to send down to the minors and was sold to the Dodgers, hit what looked like a double play ball to shortstop Tim Foli's right. But the ball took a crazy hop and ricocheted to Foli's LEFT.

As a Dodger, Lyttle is batting .333 (12-for-36) in 11 games.

A negative note came early. Reggie Smith, making his first start since injuring his side on a great catch August 7, hurt himself again jumping at Valentine's homer in the first inning.

Smith was replaced by Leron Lee after two innings and one at-bat.

Steve Yeager probably will be happy to hit the road (The Dodgers flew to New York today). Yeager made a bad throw on Foli's stolen base in the third inning and drew his fourth error in two games.

Buckner had two hits and raised his average to .306.

Note of caution (and what a disheartening note it is).

While the Angelenos have six games left with the East, their record in New York and Montreal is on the debit side of the ledger.

They are 1-2 in both New York and Montreal. Anyway, we'll see if the "great chase" again becomes the great fizzle.

HERE 'N THERE — Walt Alston telephoned the Examiner's Allan Malamud and apologized . . . Tuesday . . . two days after his blowup and one day after every newspaper and most radio stations played it up big.

Tennis no longer so staid

By The Associated Press

There's nothing staid about the grand old game of tennis anymore.

—Politics scored an ace in Philadelphia, where women's tennis teams from the Philippines and Hungary joined those from the Soviet Union and Czechoslovakia Wednesday in withdrawing from the Federation Cup.

The Soviet Union and Czechoslovakia, protesting the appearance in Philadelphia of white supremacist countries Rhodesia and South Africa, were suspended from the 1977 Federation Cup and may be fined by the International Lawn Tennis Association. No sanctions were announced against the Phillipines and Hungary.

—Romania's fiery Ilie Nastase and Australia's Colin Dibley played a different kind of net game, engaging in a shoving match in South Orange, N.J. at the Tennis Week Open. No punches were thrown.

"He's a peasant," said Nastase, who eventually won the match 6-4, 6-3.

"That guy's got no class at all," said Dibley. "I have no respect for that guy at all."

—The women's bracket of the Tennis Week Open was to continue today, with Dr. Renee Richards, the transexual who has won her first two matches, meeting Kathy Harter in a quarter-final match.

President Ferdinand Marcos ordered the Philippines team home from Philadelphia. "This action is in keeping with policy of the Philippines government in support for the U.N. General Assembly resolutions on apartheid sports," a cable from Marcos said.

Team captain Gyongi Skiabonyi expressed disappointment at her government's decision. She had thought the team originally would be allowed to play against all countries except South Africa and Rhodesia.

The Philippines' withdrawal moved England into the quarter-finals, joining Australia, West Germany, Switzerland and Denmark in the third round. Evonne Goolagong and Diane Fromholtz scored victories in Australia's 3-0 triumph over Belgium. West Germany beat Italy 3-0 and Switzerland and Denmark beat Canada and Uruguay, respectively, by 2-1 scores.

The United States team plays Yugoslavia Thursday night in a second-round match. Chris Evert will not be able to play in the match because of a sore right hand. She is undergoing treatment in Fort Lauderdale, Fla. and hopes to play this weekend in the $130,000 tournament.

The other U.S. players, Rosemary Casals and Billie Jean King, will play in the three matches. No substitutions are allowed in the Federation Cup.

The incident between Nastase and Dibley was triggered by the fololowing exchange between the two players.

"Hey, we're playing a tennis match," said Dibley after Nastase was engaged in conversation with a spectator.

Nastase replied, "Yeah, but you don't play tennis good enough for me."

Dibley walked to the net, as did Nastase. They exchanged words softly, then Dibley pushed Nastase and Nastase pushed back. They both then returned to their respective baselines.

In other matches, Balazs Taroczy of Hungary upset third-seeded Vita Gerulaitis of New York 6-2, 2-6, 6-4; Yugoslavia's Zeljko Franulovic rallied to upset sixth-seeded Dick Stockton of Dallas 3-6, 6-1, 7-6, and second-seeded Roscoe Tanner of Lookout Mountain, Tenn., blitzed Tim Noonan of Springfield, Ohio 6-2, 6-1.

In the U.S. Pro Tennis Championships at Brookline, Mass., top-seeded Jimmy Connors won his 21st consecutive match but U.S. Open champion Manuel Orantes fell victim to a muscle problem and Italy's Paolo Bertolucci 6-4, 6-4, in the first round.

The problem with his left arm may prevent Orantes of Spain, the No. 4 seed, from defending his U.S. Open title next week. "I'll have another checkup and then decide on Forest Hills," said Orantes.

Connors, bidding for his fourth straight tournament victory, had no trouble disposing of Victor Pecci of Paraguay 6-4, 6-3 in their second-round match.

Other second-round winners were Adriano Panatta of Italy and Australians Ross Case and Mark Edmondson. Other first-round winners were Argentina's Guillermo Vilas and Wojtek Fibak of Poland.

In the women's invitational tournamament at Harrison, N.Y., seventh-seeded Jeannie Evert of Fort Lauderdale, Fla. joined top-seeded Terry Holladay on the sidelines. Betsy Nagelson of Winnetka, Ill. beat Miss Evert 3-6, 6-2, 6-2.

Sooners seeking third straight title

By Associated Press

Oklahoma Coach Barry Switzer admits his Sooners have their work cut out for them as they go after an unprecedented third consecutive national college football championship. But he also has a word of warning for those who think they can't do it.

"We'll be hanging around the block somewhere," he says.

However, the defending champions will have plenty of competition around the country, much of it coming right in their own conference—the Big Eight—where Nebraska has been tabbed by many to unseat Oklahoma. Colorado, Kansas, Missouri and Oklahoma State have all received some looksees in Big Eight title talk.

Nationally, the title chase seems unusuallly wide open. Penn State and Pitt in the East, Alabama in the South, Michigan, Ohio State and Notre Dame in the Midwest, Texas in the Southwest, Arizona State in the Rockies and Southern California on the West Coast have been mentioned as possible successors to the Sooners.

In the Southeastern Conference, Georgia and Florida are considered the chief threats to Alabama's bid for a sixth consecutive crown. Maryland is again favored in the Atlantic Coast Conference over North Carolina State while East Carolina and Appalachian State seem likely to battle it out in the Southern Conference. Georgia Tech, Miami and Tulane loom as the top Southern independents.

If Michigan and Ohio State are to have any competition in the Big Ten, it might come from Minnesota, Illinois, Purdue and possibly probation-saddled Michigan State. Miami of Ohio, only school to match Oklahoma's three-year 32-1-1 record, will have to overcome Bowling Green, Ball State and Central Michigan to repeat as champions of the rugged Mid-American Conference.

Texas is loaded in the Southwest Conference, provided Coach Darrell Royal comes up with a Wishbone quarterback, but the Longhorns will have to shoot it out with Texas A&M and Arkansas—those two and Texas shared the title last fall—and possibly 1974 champ Baylor. Tulsa faces a challenge from New Mexico State in "The Valley," formerly the Missouri Valley Conference.

Arkansas State, one of two teams with perfect 1975 slates, rules as the favorite once more in the Southland Conference. Arizona State, 12-0-0 a year ago, is an overwhelming favorite in the Western Athletic Conference, with Brigham Young and Arizona getting most of the runner-up nods.

Coach John McKay is gone from Southern California but the Trojans, despite a little slip-up last year, are expected to return to the Pacific-8 Conference throne room ahead of California, UCLA and Stanford. San Jose State and Long Beach State are the class of the Pacific Coast A.A. Harvard is the choice to repeat in the Ivy League.

Oklahoma has 12 starters back, including some blue-chip talent, but among the departed were the Selmon brothers—LeRoy and Dewey—Joe Washington, Steve Davis, Tinker Davis and Jimbo Elrod. Even second-string wide receiver Billy Brooks was a first-round pro draft pick.

"This season is going to be kind of a rebirth," Switzer says. "It kind of reminds me of 1973. We have a lot of question-marks and inexperience.

Santa Monica wins Legion test

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — Santa Monica, Calif.; Glendale, Ariz.; Hillcrest of Midvale, Utah, and host Bonneville Post 133, were first round victors Wednesday in the American Legion Western Regional baseball tournament in Salt Lake City.

Santa Monica downed Grand Junction, Colo., 7-2, behind Tim Leary's five-hitter and was scheduled to play Hillcrest this afternoon. Hillcrest rode Bob Acord's four-hit pitching to a 31 victory over Alamogordo, N.M., Wednesday.

Glendale, set to play Bonneville tonight, beat Las Vegas, 12-1, while Bonneville exploded for eight runs in the first inning to coast to an 8-4 victory over Honolulu.

Expo castoff gets revenge

LOS ANGELES (AP) — If baseball isn't a difficult game to figure out, then maybe somebody can explain why Jim Lyttle, journeyman outfielder, can play regularly for the Los Angeles Dodgers when he can't play at all for the Montreal Expos, the team with the worst record in the game.

"It is peculiar," acknowledged Lyttle after his two-run single enabled the Dodgers to hand his former teammates their 11th straight loss, 3-1, Wednesday night at Dodger Stadium.

The victory was the ninth in the last 10 games for the Dodgers, who have now closed to within 8½ games of idle Cincinnati in the National League West. Los Angeles, which once trailed Cincinnati by 13½ games, has picked up five full games on the Reds in the last 10 days.

Doug Rau, 12-10, went the distance but had to survive a shaky first two innings.

"I had nuthin' out there," Rau said. "I was lucky to get out of the second, then I found a groove."

The Los Angeles whipped through a dozen Expos in a row from the third to the eighth.

But he trailed, 1-0, when rookie Ellis Valentine led off the game with a home run.

Los Angeles tied the game in the fourth when Dave Lopes walked, stole second—his 39th successful steal—and Bill Buckner drove him in with a single.

Lyttle, who signed with the Dodgers on Aug. 10 after winning his release from the Expos through a clause in the new player-owner agreement, then drove home Cey and Russell with a line drive single to right.

"I'm happy to playing and certainly happy that I'm able to contribute," Lyttle said. "I have no explanation why they (the Expos) wanted to send me out. I thought I was doi ng a good job for them and I was satisfied playing part-time and pinch hitting."

Since joining the Dodgers he's batting .333—12 for 36—and for the season he's hitting .289

Both clubs are idle today. The Dodgers will begin an 11-game road trip Friday night in New York while Montreal continues its West Coast tour Friday night in San Diego.

The Dodgers now are 45-21 against the NL East and 7-2 against the Expos, 6-0 against them in Dodger Stadium.

Halos too generous for manager Sherry

BOSTON (AP) — "If they aren't going to give you anything, in order to stay in the ball game you have to give them nothing."

That's the way California Manager Norm Sherry summed up Wednesday afternoon's 8-2 loss to the Boston Red Sox before a crowd of 21,513 at Fenway Park.

That's what happened. Boston starter Luis Tiant gave up only four hits and reliever Tom Murphy, who pitched the ninth inning; gave up a single. California pitching, on the other hand, surrendered 14 hits.

"I would say the Red Sox beat us easily," said Sherry who watched his team lose twice in the three-game series and saw Tiant pick up his 15th victory against 10 defeats. Tiant has now won five straight.

"With the kind of season we've had and he's up to 15 winds, I'd say that's pretty good," Boston Manager Don Zimmer said of his ace pitcher.

Tiant had a perfect game going until two outs into the fourth inning when he gave up two walks. He surrendered his first two hits in the fifth, and didn't allow another until the Angels got two in the eighth, one of which was a two-run double by Tony Soliata.

Tom Murphy replaced Tiant for the ninth inning and allowed a single before wrapping up the victory.

The victory for the 35-yearold Tiant was his fifth straight, coming on the heels of a five-straight-loss mark in July.

"I think he'll win 20, or be awfully close to it," said pitching coach Stan Williams.

Tiant, who came to the Red Sox as a free agent in 1971 after a brilliant career with the Cleveland Indians, bristled when reporters approached him in the dressing room. He was still upset about a recent radio show featuring sports writers who had brought up his age.

"They're all the time talking about how old I am. One of these days I'll have to retire. I don't want to pitch forever," Tiant said. "But I'm not complaining about anybody. I'm just going to go out and pitch."

Boston opened the scoring in the first inning when Rick Burleson walked, went to third on a Denny Doyle single and came home on a sacrifice fly by Fred Lynn. The Red Sox made it 4-0 in the third when Jim Rice doubled home two runs and scored on a single by Rick Miller.

Boston scored in the fourth and sixth innings when Lynn doubled home a run and Carlton Fisk singled in a run. The Red Sox capped their scoring in the seventh when Burleson slapped a bases-loaded single, scoring Rice and designated hitter Bobby Darwin.

California got on the scoreboard in the eighth when Dave Chalk walked, Andy Etchebarren singled and first baseman Solaita hit a double, scoring Chalf and Etchebarren.

Rams cut McCullouch

FULLERTON, Calif. (AP) — Earl McCullouch, who starred as a pass receiver with the Detroit Lions, has been waived by the Los Angeles Rams of the National Football league.

The Rams announced Wednesday that McCullouch was one of five men who had been waived Tuesday. Their names were not immediately revealed in case the Rams wished to withdraw waivers on them. The club said no other NFL teams had claimed the players.

The 30-year-old McCullouch was a world-class high hurdler at the University of Southern California, where he also starred on the football team.

The 5-foot-11, 170-pounder who was called Earl The Pearl played with the New Orleans Saints for a year before joining Portland of the old World Football League last year.

The other veteran waived was linebacker Mel Rogers, a 230-pounder from Florida A&M who had four years of pro experience with the San Diego Chargers.

Both players had been signed as free agents before summer camp.

The others waived were all rookies — 257-pound defensive tackle Wayne Hammond of Montana State, tight end Brian Nemeth of South Carolina and wide receiver Eddie Richardson of Howard.

Hammond was a fifth-round draft pick in 1975 who was on the Rams' injured reserve list last year. Nemeth was the Rams' 11th-round choice. Richardson was a free agent who played with San Antonio in the WFL last year.

Kison remembers Steve Blass' tip

By Associated Press

Steve Blass no longer is with the Pittsburgh Pirates, but the former World Series hero's presence still is evident—in the pitching of Bruce Kison.

Kison, remembering some tips given to him by Blass, fired a five-hitter Wednesday night, pitching the Pirates to a 3-0 victory over the San Diego Padres.

After striking out six and not walking a batter en route to his first shutout of the season, Kison, 10-8, said: "My changeup was going real good. I picked up that pitch from Steve Blass when he was with the club. It's taken me a couple of years to get the confidence to use it and now I use it in spots. Tonight, it worked very well."

Blass starred for the Pirates in the 1971 World Series against the Baltimore Orioles, hurling two complete one-run victories, one a three-hitter and the other a four-hitter in the decisive seventh game.

Kison, a 21-year-old rookie that year, also played an important role in the Series triumph, winning the fourth game with 6 1-3 innings of scoreless, one-hit relief. Since then, his major league career has been undistinguished.

"I'm basically a sinkerball pitcher, and as long as I can get them (the opposition) to hit the ball on the ground I'm doing my job," the lean righthander said after his sparkling performance against the Padres.

Kison got the Padres to hit 10 ground ball outs, and all five hits off him were ground ball singles. All of the fly balls San Diego hit were weak.

Elsewhere in the National League, the Los Angeles Dodgers defeated the Montreal Expos 3-1, the Atlanta Braves beat the Philadelphia Phillies 5-1, the San Francisco Giants whipped the New York Mets 7-1, and the Chicago Cubs downed the Houston Astros 5-1.

Braves 5, Phillies 1

Two-run homers by Ken Henderson and Vic Correll backed the six-hit pitching of Phil Niekro, 14-9, as Atlanta handed Philadelphia's East Division leaders their second loss in nine games.

Henderson also had a double for his fourth two-hit game in a row, continuing his comeback from a recent slump. "I realize I was in a rut for a while, but I'm not making any apologies," he said.

Giants 7, Mets 1

Ed Halicki spaced eight hits and struck out nine in beating the Mets for the fourth time in his career without a loss.

Garry Matthews paced the Giants' attack. He hit a solo homer in the first inning, then doubled to trigger a six-run sixth inning and capped the big inning with a run-scoring single.

Cubs 5, Astros 1

Chicago's Ray Burris hurled a seven-hitter, with four strikeouts and one walk, for his seventh victory in the past eight games and his 11th over-all.

Bill Madlock supplied the batting power for the Cubs, drilling a two-run homer in the first inning and a two-run double in the second.

Golfers shoot for Series

AKRON, Ohio (AP) — A last-gasp chance of gaining a spot in the game's richest event serves as an added incentive to a number of players competing in the $200,000 American Golf Classic this week.

"I wasn't going to play," said Bob Wynn, winner of the B.C. Open, "but when you've got a chance to get in the World Series, you've got to go for it.

"There's $10,000 for last place and $100,000 to win. That's incentive enough."

Wynn needs a top 10 finish in the Classic, which began today, to gain entry to next week's new-look World Series of Golf, offering $300,000 in total prizes and $100,000 to the winner. Only about 20 players will compete in that one.

Wynn has perhaps the best opportunity of securing a spot in the select field for the World Series. There are 17 others, however, who could make it.

Tom Weiskopf, Jerry McGee, John Mahaffey, Andy North, Barry Jaeckel, Charles Coody, Lyn Lott, Bob Gilder, Mark Hayes, Roger Maltbie and Tom Kite could make it only by winning the $40,000 first prize in the American Golf Classic. Ed Sneed and Joe Porter could make it with a second-place finish. John Lister and Rik Massengale would have to finish fourth or better to make it. David Graham would have a chance with a finish of eighth or better.

And if all fail, Buddy Allin has a chance. Allin, who chose not to compete in the American Golf Classic, leads the standings for the summer section of the tour. That portion ends with this week's event. If no one overtakes him, he'll be eligible next week.

Both events are being held at the Firestone Country Club. The American Golf Classic, with an invitational field of 144, will be on the 7,105-yard, par-72 North Course, a layout that includes 53 acres of water. It's being played in tour competition for the first time. The World Series will be on the more familiar South course, a 7,180-yard, par-70 layout just across the road.

Preparations for the rare doubleheader, a massive undertaking under the best of situations, was complicated when the strike of United Rubber Workers against the Big Four tire manufacturers spread to maintenance personnel at the Country Club.

Executives were drafted.

"Look at this," said Chuck Allen, Firestone's director of sports. He extended a pair of blistered hands. "Cutting fairways," he explained.

Host pro Bobby Nichols has been on the mowers cutting greens. A female secretary was drafted to mow the tees. One public relations executive drove a mower into a lake. Another demolished a tree. Another demolished a tractor.

And Nichols stocked his pro shop with 500 dozen golf balls for the players who face water on 10 of the North Course's 18 holes.

In addition to the men seeking a spot in the World Series, other standouts include Arnold Palmer, Al Geiberger, Hale Irwin, Masters champ Ray Floyd, U.S. and Canadian Open champ Jerry Pate, PGA king Dave Stockton, J.C. Snead and Don January.

Jack Nicklaus, Lee Trevino, Johnny Miller, Hubert Green and Ben Crenshaw are not competing this week.

Scott deal off?

MIAMI (AP) — The possibility that safety Jake Scott might once again become property of the Miami Dolphins was raised Wednesday by Coach Don Shula because of the uncertainty over the status of Bryant Salter.

The Washington Redskins sent Salter, a 26-year-old safety, to the Dolphins Tuesday in return for Scott and an undisclosed draft pick.

But Shula said Wednesday that Dolphin officials still were unsure if Salter would report. And he said the deal was contingent upon Salter joining the team.

"It's not quite clear what Salter's going to do," said Shula. "We want him down here as quick as possible. We'll give him a reasonable time to report."

Shula said Salter had orginally indicated he was driving to Miami and would be allowed a couple of days' travel time. But Shula said George Young, Miami's director of pro scouting, had since had discussions with an attorney representing Salter, which left Salter's intention of joining the Dolphins in doubt.

Salter was quoted after the trade was made as saying, "They (Washington) traded my contract—not the product. I'm sure they made the best deal they could for themselves. I've got to make the best deal I can for me."

The trade of Scott, 31, followed a six-day suspension last week after he allegedly refused to play in the Aug. 14 preseason game with Philadelphia.

Scott, suffering from a shoulder injury, said he refused to take a pain-killing shot, but never refused to perform. But he had also reportedly threatened to sue team physician Dr. Herbert Virgin Jr. if he sustained further injury to the shoulder.

The Dolphins said Dr. Virgin felt Scott could take medication and play "without inordinate risk" of further injury to the shoulder.

Kostoff sets record

Jeff Kostoff broke an AAU/SPA age-group record recently in the Jr. Olympics as Chaffey Aquatics club finished its long course (meter) season.

Kostoff won the 200-meter individual medley in 2:43.9, a record for 9-10-year-old boys and also swam to firsts in the 100 backstroke and 100 breaststroke.

Teammate Curtis Jang, swimming in the same division, won the 50 backstroke and finished second in the 100 freestyle and third in the 100 butterfly.

13-year-old Karen Kostoff won both the 100 backstroke and 200 individual medley and took second in the 200 backstroke.

In the 15-18 age group, Jim Moore placed second in the 200 and 400 freestyle and fourth in the 100 free, while Jayne Lloyd took a sixth (50 free), ninth (110 fly) and 11th and Mary Pattison took a sixth (1,500 free).

In the 11-12 boys' division, Todd Majors was fifth in the 100 butterfly and sixth in 100 and 200 free while Roger Carver took a fifth (100 breast), sixth (50 breast) and ninth (50 fly).

400 pound player is difficult to equip

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Tennessee State University is trying to find a football helmet and shoes big enough to fit its new 400-pound defensive lineman.

Carlos Anderson, a native of Detroit, stands 6-foot-5 and weighed in at 402 pounds when he reported to Tennessee State last week, said head football coach John Merritt.

"Now I haven't researched this yet," Meritt said. "But I believe this young man right here is the biggest college football player in America. Maybe the biggest football player—period. Yes sir, the biggest."

Merritt hopes he can eventually get Anderson trimmed down to a suitable playing weight of around 300 pounds.

"You know what's amazing, though, is the guy is pretty darned mobile for his size. And strong? He's strong as a bull."

For the present, one of Anderson's major problems is lack of equipment. Nothing in State's equipment vault—a vault which has equipped such behemoths as Ed "Too Tall" Jones—fits Anderson.

"He wears a size 17 shoe. We haven't been able to find him a football shoe yet, but we're working on it," said Merritt. "And we aren't even close to a helmet size for him. Fortunately he brought his own football pants with him."

Kicking around

With Adrian Mercado and Willie Keo

(A Willy Keo Flash From the Pacific Northwest)

WHEN ZOUR NEW TZPEWRITER is setting on the table of zour motor home and zou slam on the brakes . . . zou shouldn't slam the brake — I did and that was the end of the new tzpewriter. I'm having to resort to my o' reliable German tzpewritter with the reversed y and z.

Me and AYSO kicking son Kip are performing at some fair in the Pacific Northwest and gazing at Mt. Rainier, Mt. Hood, etc. and some man-made wonders too like the Kingdome where we saw the Seattle Sounders whip the Vancouver Whitecaps in the first round playoff match 1-0 on "Hat Trick Hurst's" opportunist goal. Geoff was hanging around just where he should be hanging around when Caps' goalie Phil Parkes couldn't keep one to his bosom and when it squirmed loose, Geoff was on it like it was for that historic three he put in against West Germany in the 1966 World Cup.

Sounder fans sound like the roar of Niagara Falls when their team comes on the astro-turf, and boo as heartily when the visiting team is announced. Well, I guess that's fair in love or war and soccer fits the latter.

The ceiling high TV screen gives the officials fits because it shows the replay "right now" and if the whistler is in error, the tumult takes over. Fans there are issued yellow cards of their own and they come out fast and the Kingdome goes yellow when the ref or linesman appears to be against the home team.

Hurst could see himself scoring before he got within ten yards of the center circle for the re-start.

Later, in the final minute, the Caps executed a sensational double-header and scored from it causing pandemonium in the extreme with a spontaneous showing of yellow cards, but the linesman was Johnny-on-the-spot with his own flag and had signalled the offsides. The replay showed it was clearly offsides . . . like waiting for a street car to arrive. No score . . . and a minute later . . . or less the full pando let loose when the Sounder fans knew their boys would make it to the next echelon. No matter who gets to the final on August 28 the game will be held at the Kingdome in Seattle. KICKIN' AROUND will be there for you but just in case you can't be up there with us next Saturday, tune-in to CBS at 11:30 a.m. and see our good friend Mario Machado doing the play-by-play; Mario did the World Cup TV too. Last word is that Kyle Rote Jr. will be doing the "color" with Mario. The crowd should be a big one — Seattle piled in 58,000 strong for the Pele exhibition game earlier this year and had 30,406 for the playoff game. Sounds terrific for soccer.

On the way down to Oregon for a fair we slowed down for the Tacoma Tides/Utah Pioneers ASL playoff. Utah had been thrown out of the league for physical assault and financial problems but allowed to return to compete after a new group of investors contacted Commissioner Bob Cous, put up the required cash and took over the ownership. We saw another physically impossible game in the mud with Utah throwing punches and kicking faces. They lost 1-0, but soccer lost more. We can do without the old wars . . . wish they'd concentrate on playing soccer.

IF YOU FIND A TRIP TO SEATTLE a bit too inconvenient we suggest you take the Foothill to Ventura, get off at Balboa and look for the lights at Balboa Stadioum for the American Soccer League (ASL) Title game between the Los Angeles Skyhawks and the New York Apollos (Eastern Division Champs).

The L.A. "yellowbirds" earned a right to play for the championship by defeating the Tacoma Tides last Friday nite, 3-1. Unfortunate for the 7,778 announced fans present, some of their favorite players were absent from the lineup. Four of their starters, Ron Yeats, Micky Cave, Tony Whelan, and Ken Fogarty had returned to England to play with their parent clubs.

From the outset of the game it became obvious that the cohesion of the team had suffered by the loss of four of its starters. Tacoma actually played better, building up their attacks in well organized play patterns, but much to their demise their forwards did not capitalize on the many good scoring opportunity. Skyhawk goalie Brian Parkinson also added to the visitor's consternation with nothing short of brilliant saves before being substituted for the overtime period due to injuries.

The locals had difficulty building up plays and relied mostly on an out-moded style of play that relied on a defense that more often than not nervously cleared the ball down field without making an attempt to pass to a teammate, a midfield that neither distributed well nor controlled the midfield, and a forward line that relied heavily on Jim Hinch, the "prince" whose lethargy made him appear more like the "sleeping beauty". Overall the Angelinos substituted the combination plays for the individual runs apparently to the displeasure of coach Ron Newman who at one time appeared ready to personally take charge in the field himself.

The first half ended at 0-0, but 15 minutes into the second half Hinch came out second best in going for a header but the Tacoma defender didn't get much on the ball either sending it back to Hinch who next tried an over-the-head kick . . . that failing too the ball fell back to Hinch whose short ground-hugger found Alt McKenzie open for a quick run and strong boot to the left of goalie Bruce Arena for the Skyhawk goal.

Just when it appeared that the Skyhawk victory was "in the bag", Tacoma midfielder Windsor Del Llano dribbled down the left side, cut to the center and unhesitatingly slammed the ball high into the near corner to send the game to sudden-death overtime.

With six minutes into the overtime period Doug McMillan, former L.A. Aztec who had subbed for a limping Leif Werneid, sent a brilliant leading pass to dynamic Jimmy Roland who punched it into the net for the game winning score.

Altho the locals lacked creativity they can attribute their win (or their not losing) to their constant hustling which frequently overcame their mistakes. We are sure that Coach Newman will be busy ironing out the many wrinkles in preparation for the big one this coming Friday nite.

IT'S FOR SURE NOW — This Saturday's Soccer Bowl in Seattle will be an international affair with Toronto's 2-0 victory over Tampa. The Metros will face the winner of the San Jose Earthquake-Minnesota Kicks game played last night at Minnesota.

THE USA WILL SOON ENGAGE IN WORLD CUP elimination matches of the CONCACAF (North, Central America and the Caribbean). On September 26 the Yanks cross the Canadian border into Toronto for the first match against our northern neighbors. On October 3 USA will host Mexico at the L.A. Coliseum in a 3:00 p.m. kickoff. Our boys next travel to Mexico for an October 15 duel and return to Los Angeles for an October 20 match against Canada. Keep those dates open so that you can go root for our boys who will undoubtedly need all the help they can get.

Little League

Tokyo romps, 25-0

WILLIAMSPORT, Pa. (AP) — The long-awaited apppearance of the highly-skilled and well-disciplined Far East team at the Little League World Series failed to disappoint anyone.

Kiyoshi Tsumura fired a perfect game in which he struck out 15 and then rifled a grand slam home run to key the 20-hit assault as Tokyo, Japan, buried Kaiserslautern, West Germany, Wednesday 25-0.

Bob Dement also turned in a 15-strikeout performance as he hurled a three-hitter. Dement blasted a solo home run and drove in the deciding tally with a sixth inning single leading Richmond, Va., to a 4-3 win over Des Moines, Iowa, to complete the first round of this 30th tournament for 11 and 12-year-olds.

Despite Tsumura's awesome performance, Tokyo manager Hidetoshi Suzuki played down the individual showing.

"It's not so much the pitching, it's a complete effort," said Suzuki through an interpreter. "This is a game of team play, of all individuals working together as a unit."

Suzuki is coaching his sixth championship team. His five previous clubs lost to Taiwan in the Far East finals when the Chinese dominated this event. The Far East has won seven of the last eight titles here, exluding 1975 when foreign teams were excluded.

With Tsumura mowing down the European champions—he allowed only two groundouts and a line drive to the shortstop during his stint—the Japanese offense was relentless.

The winners, who batted around four times, averaged more than nine men at the plate per inning against three Kaiserslautern pitchers. Yet Tokyo played as if it were a scoreless tie.

"The players are so engrossed in the game, they don't know what the score is," Suzuki said. "They go all out constantly. We're not concerned about the score at all."

While Tokyo fell just two runs short of tying a tournament record for most runs in a game, Richmond waged a tight battle with the U.S. Central champs.

The Virginians jumped off to a 3-0 lead in the second inning, with Dement's leadoff homer igniting the rally.

However, Steve Zeller's two-run homer in the third and Tim Harmeyer's run-scoring double in the fourth tied it. Then, in the sixth, Dement singled just inside first base to score Oscar Talley, who got aboard on a base hit and advanced on a wild pitch.

"The key to our ballclub is hitting and our pitching," said Richmond manager Eddie Blankenship. "And we seem to make the defensive plays when they count."

Semifinal action started today at 2 p.m. with Tokyo meeting Puerto Nuevo, Puerto Rico. Richmond tackles Campbell, Calif., in a 5 p.m. game.

Teamwork aids Kicks in playoff

BLOOMINGTON, Minn. (AP) — Coach-Manager Freddie Goodwin of the Minnesota Kicks said teamwork got the Minnesota team into the North American Soccer League (NASL) championship game.

The Kicks defeated the San Jose Earthquake 3-1 Wednesday night for the Pacific Conference championship, and will battle Atlantic Conference champion Toronto Saturday in the Soccer Bowl game in Seattle.

"This team has a lot of character. It doesn't play as individuals but as a unit of people playing together," Goodwin said. "Tonight we used our speed in the first half to wear down San Jose, and in the second half we played at our normal pace and that was good enough."

The Kicks defenders did not allow San Jose a single shot at the goal in the first half.

A record crowd of 49,572 watched at Metropolitan Stadium as Minnesota took a 1-0 lead at 33:18. Midfielder Patrick Netsolengue scooted in from the right side, crossed the middle and drove a 25-yarder past Earthquakes goalie Mike Hewitt for the goal.

Four minutes later the Kicks scored again when Ade Coker headed the ball into the lower left at 37:13.

The Kicks scored their third goal at 81:34 when midfielder Alan West evaded two Earthquake defenders and lofted a high, fluttering shot over Hewitt into the left side of the net.

San Jose scored its only goal 33 seconds later when Ilija Mitic, the league's all-time leading scorer, drilled a 10-yarder past Minnesota goalie Geoff Barnett.

San Jose Coach Gabbo Gavric, a former placekicker for the San Francisco 49ers of the National Football League, credited Minnesota's "brilliant defense" for the victory.

"They didn't give us a chance in the first half, they were just outstanding. We couldn't work the ball forward," Gavric said. "Minnesota's defense won it for them. They played as well as a unit as any team I've ever seen in this league."

ITA pro track tour comes to abrupt end

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP) — With just 1,500 people watching in the rain at a community college track, the 1976 professional track and field season came to an early conclusion Wednesday night.

Whether the International Track Association returns for its fifth season next year depends on its ability to lure new financial backers and big name athletes, ITA President Micael F. O'Hara said.

The top athletes, he complained, are being lured by European promoters of amateur meets who pay "top dollar."

O'Hara announced early in the meet at Mt. Hood Community College that the tentative schedule would be canceled. Meets were planned in Minneapolis, Cleveland and Boston.

O'Hara said the association is not folding, just curtailing its season because of its need for financial help and star athletes. He said he has talked to potential new backers.

"But again," he added, "the percentage of getting anything going is uncertain at this point.

"I still believe the concept is valid, but the Olympics really hurt us," O'Hara said. "The Olympics usually create new heroes. Last year we picked up (Jim) Ryun, (Kip) Keino and (Dave) Wottle, but this year there were not many athletes there."

Those Olympic stars are going to Europe instead, he said.

"We did not anticipate the amateur athlete making the dollar he now is making," O'Hara said, "and we predicted a lot more athletes coming to us."

Pole vaulter Steve Smith, an ITA competitor, claimed, "Amateurs can make $1,000 a meet tax free."

O'Hara said the decision to curtail the season was made Wednesday evening after discussions with the ITA staff and its board of directors.

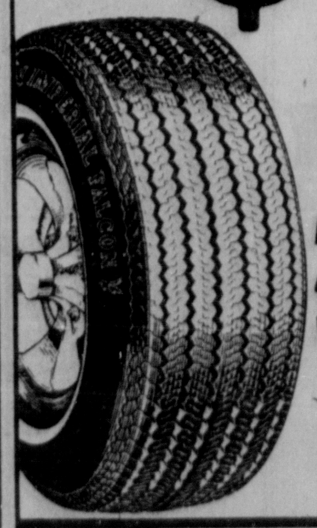

"I had decided unless something outstanding happened up here we would do nothing more without new capital and new athletes," he said.

He said the crowd of 1,500 was "one of the smallest of the season." It was the sixth ITA meet of the year. Meets scheduled last week in San Diego and Berkeley, Calif., had been canceled earlier.

The ITA has lost money throughout its short history, O'Hara said.

'The Bird' better than Babe?

DETROIT (AP) — Babe Ruth and the man who broke the fabled slugger's home run record, Hank Aaron, may have to take a back seat to Mark "The Bird" Fidrych.

"Babe Ruth didn't cause that much excitement in his brightest day," said 67-year-old Chicago Manager Paul Richards, who was a major league baseball player in the Ruth era.

Fidrych had just fired a five-hitter at Richards' White Sox, retiring the last 13 batters, as the Detroit Tigers took a 3-1 victory Wednesday night. The only Chicago run was unearned.

It was The Bird's 15th victory against just five losses and his 18th complete game in 21 starts. Chicago was the only team he hadn't faced, but now he has beaten every team in the American League at least once.

Fidrych's major league-leading earned-run-average dropped from 2.22 to 2.11 and he raised his home record to 11-3—all complete games.

The crowd of 39,884 raised attendance at the last 13 Fidrych games, home and away, to 551,-123—an average of 42,394.

Ralph Garr, former National League batting champion with Atlanta and Chicago's hitting leader with a .311 average, said playing against Fidrych was "one of the most exciting things in my life—and I was there when Henry Aaron got his 715th," the home run that pushed him past Ruth's career home run record.

The Bird, who took his usual post-game trip out of the dugout to acknowledge "We want Bird!" chants, paraded into the clubhouse with three stuffed "Big Birds" under his arm.

"Who's got some kids?" the 22-year-old rookie right-hander asked.

Then he threw one of the gifts to Bruce Kimm, who has caught all Fidrych's starts; one to Aurelio Rodriguez, who drove in two runs with a single and sacrifice fly, and one to outfielder Dan Meyer.

Twenty victories seems almost inevitable for Fidrych.

"How can I say I'm going to win 20 this year?" he asked. "That would be popping off."

A 20-victory year would be just "an okay season," Fidrych said. "Once you're satisfied with what you do, you won't do better." He said he couldn't be fully satisfied unless he won every game.

"He ended up having a heck of a night," said Tigers Manager Ralph Houk. "It's amazing he hasn't had more games where his stuff wasn't there. He's been so consistent."

Tuesday Richards said Fidrych was "just another pitcher to me."

Wednesday he said: "He's got all the tools—delivery, control, intelligence and change of speed. He pitches like some guy who's been pitching 20 years, except for the histrionics. He might need them to put people in the seats but he doesn't need them to pitch."

The histrionics refer to The Bird's habits, including talking to the ball, stalking around the mound, pointing to the plate with the ball and getting on his hands and knees to smooth out the mound.

Fidrych insists he does those things to keep him psyched up during a game, although he hasn't done them as often recently.

'Bear' sees another big year for 'Bama

ATLANTA (AP) — "I don't expect this team to want to be the one to break the string," says Coach Paul "Bear" Bryant of Alabama.

The string is five straight Southeastern Conference football championships. And despite the loss of eight defensive starters, Bryant's Crimson Tide still looks like the class of the South again in 1976.

"As always, it will depend to a great extent on schedule luck and injuries," Bryant said.

"People keep writing about what great personnel we have, and we do, but I wish they would tell me who's going to play in the secondary," he said.

Alabama's role as the favorite, however, isn't as clear cut as it's been during the last four years. There are pretenders to the throne, all quite capable of unseating the Tide. That list includes Florida, Georgia and Mississippi, with once mighty Tennessee looming as a darkhorse threat. And, Alabama meets all except Florida, each on the road.

Elsewhere in Dixie, Maryland is creating its own little dynasty in the Atlantic Coast Conference and is expected to garner its third straight title this fall although North Carolina State and Duke could change that.

Appalachian State and East Carolina appear headed for a showdown in the Southern Conference and the top area independent should come from a group including Georgia Tech, Miami of Florida, Virginia Tech and South Carolina.

Alabama, which won on defense last year, appears to have enough offensive muscle to carry on until the defense matures around returning starters linemen Bob Baumhower, Charles Hannah and Gus White.

Bryant has the runners for the wishbone, headed by quarterbacks Jeff Rutledge and Jack O'Rear, and running backs Johnny Davis, Calvin Culliver and Tony Nathan.

The Tide has won 20 SEC tests in a row, 34 of its last 35 conference games and 54 of 60 games over-all, four of those defeats coming in bowl games.

Ole Miss returns three starting backs, including quarterback Tim Ellis, but must rebuild its line. There are seven starters back on defense, the club's strength.

Both Florida and Georgia have 42 letter-winners on hand, 15 starters at Florida and 17 at Georgia. These two loom as the most serious threats to Alabama.

Tennessee, down last year, has 16 starters back, including two of the area's top players— split end Larry Seivers and tailback Stanley Morgan.

Mississippi State heads the second division cast and could break through behind tailback Walter Packer. But the team is on probation and ineligible for the league title.

Auburn and Louisiana State should be better, but not good enough to crack the top five. Vanderbilt and Kentucky are fighting to avoid the cellar.

Doug Barfield has assumed command at Auburn where Ralph "Shug" Jordan retired after a 25-year career.

Coach Jerry Claiborne lost a dozen starters from last year's championship team in the ACC. But Maryland had rolled through 15 straight conference foes and easily could go unbeaten again. Larry Dick and Mark Manges are two exceptional quarterbacks for the Terps.

Explosive North Carolina State features talented running backs Ted Brown and Ralph Stringer and Duke returns 14 starters. North Carolina is probably the best of the rest, followed by Wake Forest, Clemson and Virginia.

The Southern Conference faces a stormy year. Richmond, last year's champion, has withdrawn to the ranks of the independents. East Carolina, Virginia Military, William & Mary and Davidson leave the conference next June.

Davidson isn't eligible for the title this year because it is a college division team. Marshall, an independent, and two college division teams—Western Carolina and Tennessee-Chattanooga — become eligible for the football title in the SC next season.

East Carolina has nine starters back on defense, headed by safety Jim Bolding, end Gary Godette and linebacker Harold Randolph.

Appalachian, operating out of the wishbone, has such outstanding backs as quarterback Robbie Price, Emmitt Hamilton and Calvin Simon.

The Citadel could challenge, featuring second team All-American linebacker Brian Ruff, last year's SC player of the year, and fullback Andrew Johnson, the player of the year in 1974 when he ran for 1,373 yards.

Furman returns 48 lettermen, including 19 starters, and is the league darkhorse.

Georgia Tech is loaded with outstanding running backs but has no proven quarterback to run the wishbone with the departure of Danny Myers.

Fernandes 8th

Leila Fernandes swam a 1:26.17 in the 100 meter breaststroke for eighth place in the AAU Junior Olympic championship meet older division.

Fernandes, age 15, swam her personal best of 1:25.48 in the prelims of the meet held recently at the Belmont Plaza pool in Long Beach.

The Upland High student competed in the tough 15-18 age group.

The Aquatics sent four breaststrokers to the prestigioous J-O's. John Moffet, Chris Morandi and Steve Weck also competed for MBA.

Upland diver to represent SPA

Christina Lamb, an 11-year-old from Upland who competes for the Monte Vista Swim Club, was recently chosen as one of the top two divers in her age group to represent the Southern Pacific Association in the Region 13 State Team Championships which will be held next weekend at the University of Nevada at Las Vegas.

At the annual Southwestern Diving Invitational held last weekend at Grossmont Junior College, Christina took second place in the 11-12 girls age group with a score of 187.65. Chuck Lovejoy, 18, from Montclair, was also a finalist in his age group. His score of 291.20 was good for a fourth place finish.

While the divers were competing at Grossmont, across town at Helix High Tom Maples was representing the Monte Vista Swim Club at the 18th annual La Mesa Invitational, which attracted 50 swim clubs from California, Arizona, and Texas. Tom was a finalist in the 100 butterfly with a personal best of 1:01.0.

While swimmers and divers were competing in San Diego other swimmers from the club were competing in the Santa Monica A-B-C Pentathlon. Leading the 13-14 boys division was Eric Bakman who took fifth place overall in his division with a first in the 50 freestyle, first in the 50 butterfly, second in the 50 backstroke and sixth in the 100 individual medley.

In the 15-18 boys division Jack Dapkewicz took a third in the 50 backstroke and a fourth in the 50 breaststroke.

The Monte Vista Swim Club, under the coaching of Mike Dickson, is currently seeking new swimmers for the winter season. Competitive stroke instruction for boys and girls ages 5-11 and swim practices are currently held at Montclair High School. For additional information, contact Barb Loggins at 983-3333 or Mike Dickson at 624-0791.

The Bulls turn to Badger

CHICAGO (AP) — "It will take at least two to three years to turn our team around," says Ed Badger, new coach of the Chicago Bulls.

Badger, 43, a former Iowa star named Wednesday as coach of the National Basketball Association team that went from the playoffs to the cellar in one season, said the Bulls have "a lot of problems."

"Our guards ranked among the worst shooters in the league last season," Badger noted.

But Badger, who was signed to a multi-year contract after serving as assistant coach and head scout since 1973, said his promotion was "the realization of a dream."

"You've got to feel good about something like this because coaching one of the 22 NBA clubs is being at the top of your profession," Badger, reached in Los Angeles where he was coaching one of the Bulls' summer clubs, said.

Badger, a native of West New York, N.J., becomes the third coach in the Bulls' 11-year history. He succeeds Dick Motta, who left at the end of last season to become coach of the Washington Bullets.

Under Badger, a veteran of 20 years of high school and college coaching, Wright College of Chicago won 20 or more games for 14 straight campaigns. He was on the U.S. Olympic basketball committee and was one of a dozen coaches who selected the winning U.S. gold medal team in Montreal.

Badger was assistant coach of the 1970 World University Games team which finished 19-1 and in 1972 coached the Austrian National team.

Team Canada bombs U.S.

QUEBEC (AP) — The United States representative in this fall's Canada Cup international hockey tournament is not considered to be a strong entry, and the people who watched the Americans here Tuesday and Wednesday have a good idea why.

The U.S. squad put up a reasonable good show against Team Canada in losing 7-3 Tuesday night, but Wednesday night they were hapless in dropping a 10-3 decision.

National Hockey League players accounted for all of the Canadian goals, with Phil Esposito leading the way with three. The New York Rangers center scored four goals in the two pre-tournament games.

Steve Shutt of the Montreal Canadiens had two goals, while Montreal's Pete Mahovlich and Guy Lapointe, Dan Gare of Buffalo Sabres, Denis Potvin of the New York Islanders and Marcel Dionne of the Los Angeles Kings scored one apiece. Defenseman Bobby Orr of the Chicago Black Hawsks had five assists.

Two NHL players—Curt Bennett of the Atlanta Flames and Dean Talafous of the Minnesota North Stars—and Robbie Ftorek of the Phoenix Roadrunners of the World Hockey Association scored for the United States, which was outshot 40-23.

"I was a bit disappointed in the fact that maybe it wasn't tougher and closer, like it might have been if we had been playing a Russian team or a Czech team," said Bobby Kromm, who handled the bench coaching duties for the Canadians Wednesday night.

"I'm kind of optimistic. I think we made good progress. That's the most important thing. It's going to take a good team to beat us.

The Americans could not contain the Canadians with tight checking as well as they did in Tuesday's game, but as Kromm noted, checking the Canadian team is not an easy chore.

"You can say 'check, check, check.' But it's difficult when you have got the bunch of shooters we've got."

Hollypark harness racing set to go

Canadian Shelly Goudreau promised he would return to Hollywood Park with better racing stock for the 1976 Western Harness Racing season.

Tonight, as the first of 79 nights of racing is carded, Goudreau will send out one of his speedy charges in the featured $10,000 Hollywood Pace at one mile and a sixteenth.

The nine race card will get underway at 7:45 p.m. with racing to be conducted on a Tuesday through Saturday basis. Opening night festivities will get underway at 7 p.m. as the nationally famed 120-member strong Long Beach Junior Concert Band performs.

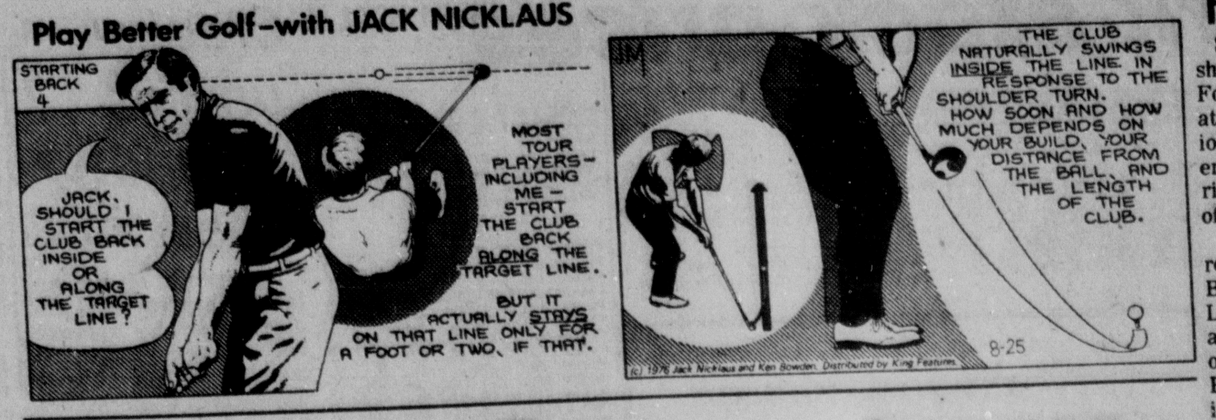

Goudreau, the second ranking North American dash-winning driver in 1974, drives Boca Boy and will depart from the rail. The five year old son of Bye and Large was an easy two length winner in his last outing in Detroit in 1:59 3/5.

Boca Boy, a six time winner this season took a lifetime mark of 1:58 last May 29 and will probably vie for favoritism with the speedy Starred by Bret in tonight's headliner.

Starred by Bret, from the powerful Joe O'Brien stable, will be leaving from post three with Lloyd Daulton in the bike. His last outing was a sizzling 1:58 win at Scioto Downs. Starred by Bret scored twice during the 1975 season.

Hoover, no stranger to Western Harness Racing fans, was an eight-time winner in 1975 and is also a six time winner this season. Eddit Wheeler will replace regular driver Doug Ackerman in the bike as Hoover attempts to annex his 12th win under the WHR banner.

Defending driver champion Gene Vallandingham will drive Nechako Tar in the Hollywood for owner Charles Meyers of Escondido. The six year old son of Tar Duke was also a two-time winner at Hollypark in 1975.

Forum fight card set

Saturday's championship boxing card at The Forum will get underway at 8:00 p.m. with the Junior Lightweight 10-rounder between Sigfrido Rodriquez and Joe Hernandez of Mexico.

Following will be a 10-rounder featuring former Bantamweight champion Lionel Rose of Australia and Mexico's Rafael (Bazooka) Limon. The WBC Bantamweight Championship of the World, undefeated Carlos Zarate vs. Australia's Paul Ferreri will be next, scheduled for a 9:30 start.

Closing out the four main event program will be Cubanito Hernandez of Mexico paired with Alberto Davila of Pomona in a 10-round Bantamweight scrap.

Tickets, priced at $40, $30, $20, $15 and $10, are on sale at the Forum box office, Ticketron and all the usual locations.

Pitt tops Eastern teams

By Associated Press

If you listen to Joe Paterno long enough, you kind of get the idea that he thinks a whole lot of Eastern college football.

"They have the Big Eight and the Big Ten. How about the Big East?" Paterno wonders, casting a glance at last season's records.

What they show is that nine of the 12 major Eastern independents posted winning marks a year ago and three went to bowl games. Paterno's Penn State club, the perennial mythical Eastern champs, bowed to Alabama in the Sugar Bowl but Pitt whipped Kansas in the Sun Bowl and West Virginia upended North Carolina State in the Peach Bowl.

Hopes are high for something resembling a repeat and Penn State and Pitt have appeared in many preseason rankings.

In addition, Boston College and Temple are proven winners, West Virginia has a sound program, Navy and Syracuse have returned to respectability and Rutgers is talking about an unbeaten season.

In the Ivy League, defending champion Harvard is favored to repeat over Yale, Dartmouth and Brown.

Many experts give Pitt the Eastern nod over Penn State and both teams will be tested early. Pitt opens at Notre Dame while Penn State starts with explosive Stanford and then goes against mighty Ohio State.

"I can't do anything about the ratings," says Pitt Coach Johnny Majors. "I know we're going to be ranked high. We can be competitive with most teams in the country. I hope we can get to the stage where we can win on our bad days. In the past we weren't able to do that."

The Panthers return 18 starters, including the brillliant Tony Dorsett, who needs 94 yards a game to become college football's all-time rushing leader. His superb supporting cast includes halfback Elliott Walker, offensive guard Tom Barzoza nose guard Al Romano and linebacker Arnie Weatherington.

Although Penn State lost seven defensive starters and needs a new offensive line, no one is about to count the Nittany Lions out even though Paterno will field one of his youngest squads.

"I'm enthusiastic about the season because the kids are," he says. "We have good leadership and good morale. We've got a lot of potential. We will be building and the team will get better as the year progresses. We will probably play a little more wide open game than last year. We should be better offensively."

The defense also will be solid with Ron Crosby, Tony Petruccio and George Reihner up front, Kurt Allerman and Ron Hostetler at linebacker and Gary Petercuskie and Neil Hutton in the secondary. And from all reports, Paterno had an outstanding recruiting year.

Defense is the name of the game at Boston College with 18 of the top 22 returning from the unit which ranked ninth nationally a year ago. They include tackle-linebacker Pete Cronan, end Byron Hemingway and linebackers Bob Watts and Rich Scudellari.

West Virginia lost Coach Bobby Bowden, who took the Florida State job—and 13 regulars graduated, making it a rebuilding year for new Coach Frank Cignetti despite the presence of Peach Bowl MVP quarterback Dan Kendra.

Navy achieved its long-awaited winning season last fall. All-American Chet Moeller and eight other defenders plus the top two runners and most of the offensive line return.

Syracuse has returned to winning ways under Frank Maloney and hopes to continue its slow but sure climb back towards the top.

Rutgers returns 18 starters from a 9-2 club, including nine from the only major college defense to rank among the top 10 nationally in four categories. Temple is bidding for a seventh consecutive winning campaign under Coach Wayne Hardin.

Fred Dunlap, who took Lehigh to the NCAA Division II playoffs twice, is the new coach at Colgate, where he has some fine runners. Villanova, Army and Holy Cross were the only losers among Eastern independents last year and Holy Cross, under Neil Wheelwright, Dunlap's predecessor at Colgate, appears to have the best chance to turn it around.

Among the Ivies, All-East quarterback Jim Kubacki is the big noise at Harvard, where Coach Joe Restic's only question is the offensive line that must block for his wide-open Multiflex offense. Yale must rebuild its defense while Dartmouth lost heavily at the linebacker and secondary positions.

Brown returns Bob Farnham, the nation's leading receiver, among nine regulars. Quarterback Bob Graustein paces Penn's potent offense. Columbia is en route to becoming competitive while Cornell expects improvement now that Coach George Seifert has had a year to get acclimated.

Claremont sets AYSO tryouts

Claremont AYSO will hold soccer tryouts Friday from 5 to 7 p.m. at Griffith Park for those who have already signed up.

Applications will be available at that time for those who have not signed up so that they may both sign up and try out.

A request is being made for 25 volunteer women to assist with this function. No prior experience is necessary, since Frank Lanford will provide any needed instruction. Anyone wishing to assist with the tryouts should call Lanford at 626-0976 by Thursday evening.

Youths who played soccer last year and have not turned in their uniforms are requested to do so, since the uniforms are needed again this year.

Oakland may have plans for 'Old Man' Blanda

SANTA ROSA, Calif. (AP) — Roaring crowds and game-saving placekicks may just be memories for George Blanda after his release on waivers by the Oakland Raiders, although the team hinted Wednesday that they may still have plans for the 26-year veteran.

"The Old Man of football," as he was affectionately called by sports writers, and National League all-time leading scorer openly admitted he had little hope of his $90,000 contract being picked up by another team.

"This makes the third time a team has declared me too old to play this game, only this time they may be right," Blanda said at training camp. "Who wants a 48-year-old placekicker with a $90,000 contract?"

However, Raiders' general managing partner Al Davis hinted that future plans with the Raiders may be in store for Blanda.

"It is a possibility that Blanda could play this year," Davis said Wednesday. "I'm going to talk to him Friday. We've still got some things to discuss."

The Raiders made no formal announcement of Blanda's being waived, as is their policy, but confirmed that he had been when asked. But Davis said it is significant that a press conference had not been called to announce Blanda's permanent departure from the team.

"We would have set up a press conference if the time were right," said Davis, "but it's not time yet for public utterances."

Tax reform: lost in the loopholes

By NEA/London Economist News Service

WASHINGTON — (LENS) — Jimmy Carter, in accepting the Democratic presidential nomination, said of the existing federal income tax system, "It's a disgrace to the human race", a rather strong way of saying that it was on the one hand too hard on people of small means, and on the other shot full of holes for the benefit of wealthy individuals and special interests.

All his life, Carter added, he had heard promises of tax reform which never came true, but now "We are going to make it happen and you can depend upon it."

The advocates of tax reform needed that reassurance. Years of effort by them, months of struggle in the House of Representatives last year and more months of struggle in the Senate this year, have produced little better than nothing.

"a tax reform bill with the dimensions of an elephant and the strength of a mouse . . ."

A tax reform bill with the dimensions of an elephant and the strength of a mouse is about to emerge from the Senate and disappear for a time into a conference of the two chambers.

The experience seems to show that, as the committees of Congress work, pressure to close a tax loophole is regularly less effective than pressure to open one or keep it open.

As Congressman Joseph Karth of Minnesota observed after a modest attempt of his own to narrow the tax privileges allowed to the exporting firms known as DISCS (domestic international sales corporations) failed last December:

"In every instance where there was an organized group to lobby against it, the amendment lost. Where there was no organized group as such, the amendment succeeded."

Karth was speaking of revenue-raising amendments that the tax reformers were pressing in an effort to recoup their losses in the Ways and Means Committee. Tax reform as a cause, which has usually got its impulse from a generalized desire for fiscal equity, has lately got an extra impetus from the system by which Congress is attempting to keep the budget deficit under control: but still it is failing to get anywhere.

The conclusion appears warranted that tax reform is something Congress cannot do unaided. Much as its members may have the right idea in general, each is vulnerable to pressure from his own constituents.

"tax reform is something Congress cannot do unaided"

Thus, during the long passage through the Senate of the tax reform bill of 1975 (a year past its time already and still not enacted), Sen. Walter Mondale put in plugs for some useful tax concessions for companies in his state of Minnesota.

Mondale is a principled man and a tax reformer himself, but that is a feature of representative government as it is practiced in Washington. So the hopes of the tax reformers have begun to turn on whether a new administration, which would have to be of the same party as the majority in Congress, can supply the extra impetus to make their movement move and the necessary counter-pressure to beat the special interests back.

At least they managed to get those brave words into Carter's acceptance speech, but then only a week later he was giving a soothing talk to a gathering of important businessmen in New York. What he had to say sounded different:

"I would not make any substantive change in our tax law or propose any as president, until at least a full year of very careful analysis."

So much for the idea that a victorious Carter might use the honeymoon period that might follow his inauguration to sweep the interests aside and put the federal system of direct taxation on a rational basis.

Such is the nature of tax legislation that more study and investigation are needed to arrive at the real significance of almost any clause than a senator or congressman can possibly give: if he concentrates on a few, he must let a lot of others go unscrutinized.

Sen. Edward Kennedy, a tax reformer, scored a success over the chairman of the Finance Committee, Sen. Russell Long, on one clause recently.

The question in dispute was not untypical. One tax loophole available to wealthy persons (it would not be worth the fuss and expense for ordinary folk) is the wording in the internal revenue code that permits an American citizen to avoid federal tax by establishing an irrevocable trust in a foreign country. The House of Representatives voted last year to close this particular loophole with effect from the date in the previous year, 1974, when the Ways and Means Committee decided to recommend closing it.

Under Long's guidance as chairman, the Senate Finance Committee decided that instead of taking effect on May 21, 1974, the clause should take effect on May 29, 1974.

Somebody took the trouble to find out what happened during those eight days and discovered that four important private trusts had been set up. The wording in the enormous tax reform bill naturally mentioned none of them: this is what Kennedy calls the "one-eyed, bearded, man with a limp" form of drafting. Senator Long put the counter-arguments of the injustice of retrospective legislation on a trust after it has been irrevocably set up, but the Senate this time took Senator Ken-

Anonymous admirer

BELLEVUE, Wash. (AP) — There's a bashful suitor somewhere in Bellevue who had better watch his step.

Bellevue police received a complaint recently from a young woman who said someone had been leaving anonymous notes and red roses on her car.

The woman said her boy friend was jealous — and angry — about the roses and the politely worded notes.

She told police her boy friend plans to "stake out" her apartment until the shy swain shows up again.

Johnny Wonder's QUESTION CORNER

Q. "WHAT ARE MOLLUSKS?"

KEVIN HARDING
SHERIDAN, WY

A. A MOLLUSK IS AN ANIMAL BELONGING TO A LARGE FAMILY OF SOFT-BODIED ANIMALS, SUCH AS CLAMS, OYSTERS, SNAILS, SQUID AND OCTOPUSES.

Jack Rogers

If you have ever collected shells at the seashore, probably most of the shells you found were once the homes of living animals called mollusks.

The most familiar mollusks are probably clams, oysters, octopuses, squids, snails and slugs.

Most mollusks are related, or alike, in certain ways. Mollusks are soft-bodied animals without bones.

Most kinds of mollusks, including clams and oysters, have hard shells that protect their soft bodies.

Other kinds, such as cuttlefish and squids, have no shells that show. A special shell grows inside their bodies.

Octopuses and some slugs have no shell at all.

Mollusks live in most parts of the world. Some such as snails and slugs, live on land. Others are found in rivers, lakes and ponds. But the greatest number of mollusks are ocean dwellers.

Mollusks furnish us with food. Their shells are made into many products, including buttons and jewelry.

A World Almanac globe or other fine prize will be awarded to the first youngster sending in a question used here. Send your question and your age to Johnny Wonder, (c/o this newspaper), Box 1335 (DA), Santa Cruz, CA 95061 nedy's word for it.

Tax reform...

Senator Long, an able committee chairman and masterly parliamentary tactician, himself raised the "one-eyed bearded man" technique recently to heights previously unexplored. In revising and rewriting the tax reform bill of 1975 as it came from the House of Representatives long ago, the Senate Finance Committee wrote into it a clause giving lenient tax treatment to certain types of family trust receiving income from oil production.

"the one-eyed, bearded, man with a limp form of bill drafting"

Louisiana, Senator

Long's state, is oil-rich, his mother Rose was the widow of a famous governor there, Huey Long, and oil income helps to sustain his daughters, nephews and nieces under the terms of Rose's will. If there are others than they who would have benefited from the amendment inserted in the tax bill in committee, the committee staff has been unable so far to recall who they might be.

When all this was pointed out in the press Senator Long found himself in a political difficulty, which he has triumphantly solved with a further amendment. This excludes from the concession any trust the benefactor of which died "within the last six days of the fifth month in 1970". As it happens, the senator's mother died on May 27, 1970. "There is no way you can satisfy a suspicious mind," said Senator Long.

Where it will all end is not plain. Congress has extended the temporary general income tax cut till Sept. 1, and has to try to pass a tax reform bill by then (the two questions being linked) if pay-as-you-earn (withholding) taxes are not to go up in a way unacceptable in a political campaign year.

"There is no way you can satisfy a suspicious mind:" Senator Long

The two versions of the tax bill will next be the subject of a difficult, possibly prolonged, conference between the House of Representatives and the Senate.

Time was when Congressman Al Ullman of Oregon, who took Wilbur Mills's place as chairman but who has not yet succeeded in controlling the house Ways and Means committee as Mills used to do, hoped for a recovery of $2.6 billion of revenue this year through tax reforms. This year is as good as gone. If the version of the bill passed by the House last December were to survive, as much as $1.5 billion might be raised next year. The Senate Finance Committee whittled it away to $980 million, and the full Senate by midweek had got the recovery down to about $300 million, a negligible amount in this context.

From the sidelines the Congressional Budget Office watches to see what tax reform can do for the federal budget. Its hopes were never as high as Ullman's. It did talk of recovering $2 billion for the federal treasury, and it now hopes that, if the will of the House can prevail over that of the Senate to a reasonable extent, a tax reform bill recovering about $1 billion of revenue next year can be passed before the present Congress dies.

Considering the wealth of loopholes that waits to be closed, it is not a lot, but such a figure might show that the still relatively new congressional procedures for budget control can do some good. That, at least, is the hope.

Joyce Brothers

Great fear of water

DEAR DR. BROTHERS: We're spending the summer at a home with a pool. Everyone in our family was thrilled except our seven-year-old son who hates it because he's terrified of water. Other kids make him miserable and my husband is embarrassed and irritated because the child screams if anyone suggests that he get in to cool off. I'd hoped it would get better this summer and that he'd lose this ridiculous fear, but it's gotten worse. — D.S.

Dear D.S.: One way you can help your son overcome his fear is to tell him and the other children that all of us have fears. If we had none we wouldn't live long, for fears help to warn us of danger. What we want to do is to get rid of irrational fears. Fear is nothing to be ashamed of and children should be taught at an early age not to tease or laugh at the fears of others.

Fear becomes less frightening when children and adults realize that fear is normal. The days are past when men have to prove their maleness by superman feats.

Studies have revealed that it is more difficult to teach unusually intelligent children to swim because they have more fear of water than less talented youngsters. Intelligence often heightens fear in youngsters. There is some truth in the adage, "he doesn't know enough to be afraid."

In order for your son to overcome his fear, your family must be encouraged to help him and to change their attitudes about his fear. Your son needs to learn to relax near water and to do this he must be certain that he can trust others in and around the pool. He can be taught to relax by use of suggestion and reassurance. Let him approach the water a little bit at a time with the secure knowledge he will never be forced.

DEAR DR. BROTHERS: My husband and I are in our 20s and have a 15-month-old boy. My husband has had to travel a great deal in his job and we stay at hotels and motels. We enjoy this life but are upset and concerned because our son is in the same room and overhears us when we make love. We can't very well get a separate room for him and we can't avoid sex altogether, but we don't want to harm our son either. — C.R.

Dear C.R.: Little children, even as young as your son, may fear that violence is being committed when they are in the same room when their parents are engaged in sex. Their parents' emotional expressions are often baffling and frightening to young children and may have long-lasting effects on them.

Dr. James Simmons, Coordinator of Child Psychiatry Services at Indiana University School of Medicine, Indianapolis, feels that it is unlikely that a child your son's age would suffer psychological harm by being in the room with his parents during coitus. He feels the psychological effect on the parents, however, may produce serious inhibitions and, in this sense, their sex life may suffer.

If this can be avoided, as it can be in most homes even if they are small apartments, it should be. However under the special circumstances you describe, I suggest you shouldn't worry too much.

You might be able to solve the problem by turning the hotel bathroom into a temporary nursery. You could carry a small night light with you and leave the bathroom door open most of the night.

INTRODUCING THE LIMITED EDITION AUDI 100LS.

NOW $1000 WORTH OF OPTIONS FOR ONLY $200.

On the limited edition Audi, you get air conditioning, automatic transmission, cruise control, wheel covers. A total of $1,000 worth of options for only $200.

But that's not all you get. The limited edition Audi isn't a stripped down car. In addition to the special options, it's loaded with standard features you might have to pay extra for on some other cars.

Like power steering. Power brakes. Fuel injection. Electric rear window defogger. Tinted glass. And steel-belted radials.

And, of course, all Audis give you the excellent performance and handling characteristics of precision German engineering.

Like front-wheel drive, for greater tracking and cornering. Rack-and-pinion steering, the most direct type of steering system there is. Dual diagonal brakes, where in case one circuit fails, the other still operates. And independent front suspension, for additional stability and a smoother ride.

So visit your local Audi dealer soon and test drive the limited edition Audi 100LS. But hurry.

You'd be amazed at how fast a luxury car loaded with so many options can move.

Heurlin-Vicenti vows exchanged

First Baptist Church of Claremont was the setting for the marriage of Miss Elizabeth Maurine Vicenti, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Richard H. Vicenti of La Verne, and Brian Robert Heurlin, son of Dr. and Mrs. Richard E. Heurlin of Rock Island, Ill.

MRS. ROBERT HEURLIN

The bride's attendants were Miss Laurie Losh, maid of honor, Miss Tina Blakely and Miss Susan Vicenti. The brother of the groom, Bruce Heurlin, was the best man. The groomsmen were John Shadegg and Rich Vicenti.

A reception was held in the home of the bride's parents.

The bride graduated from Bonita High School, attended Redlands University and received her B.S. degree from the University of Puget Sound. She is an occupational therapist, having served affiliations at Long Beach Veteran's Hospital and General Hospital in Minneapolis.

The groom received his B.A. degree from Knox College in Galesburg, Ill., and his doctorate of jurisprudence from the University of Puget Sound of Law. He is currently employed as a law clerk in Minneapolis.

Following a honeymoon in San Francisco, Lake Tahoe and Yosemite, the couple left for Minnesota where they will reside.

'A LITTLE NIGHT MUSIC', a comedy with music and lyrics by Stephen Sondheim, opens Sept. 17 at The Theater, Los Angeles. The musical won the New York Drama Critics Award and seven Tonys. Reservations can be made at (213) 275-9872.

Chamber concert slated

The Crystal Chamber Orchestra, a professional group from the Los Angeles area, will present a concert in Bridges Hall Pomona College, at 8:15 p.m. Sept. 12. The program, sponsored by the music department, is admission free.

Ernest Gold, composer-conductor widely known for his work in motion pictures, television and stage, will conduct. Leonard Sharrow, eminent American bassoonist, will be soloist.

Sharrow will appear in two recently composed works, "Concerto da Camera" by Dan Welcher, and Concerto for Bassoon and Orchestra by Ray Luke. The program will also include two classical works, the "Coriolanus" Overture by Beethoven and Wagner's Overture to "Die Meistersinger."

The orchestra is made up of musicians chosen for their broad experience in recording and concert performance.

Windy panorama

LOS ANGELES (AP) — "The second greatest show on earth" was P. T. Barnum's description of the view from Mt. Washington, named as one of America's top 500 sights to see by the Rand McNally "Traveler's Almanac."

According to the almanac, the highest wind speed ever clocked in the U.S. (231 miles per hour) was measured by a private weather research station atop the 6,288-foot-high peak near Pinkham Notch in the White Mountains of New Hampshire.

Tammy Wynette: She Just Couldn't Get Used To Being Alone...

"When the girls are home, it doesn't bother me that bad. But sometimes it's just me. And when it is, a 20-room house gets really, really big — especially after dark."

Just last month, Tammy Wynette remarried after being divorced from former singing partner George Jones for nearly a year.

Tammy Wynette didn't like being divorced. She didn't like being alone in a 20-room house — especially after dark. She wasn't altogether confident about raising four daughters on her own and about meeting and dating new men. But the country-western star has always refused to be the kind of sad little dumpling who would fall helplessly into her indoor swimming pool and just melt there. This week, she talks to FAMILY WEEKLY about how she learned to live one day at a time. She discusses her changing feelings about men and women. And, like a lot of Southern girls, she's never at a loss for words. Tammy Wynette broke a lot of hearts singing "Stand By Your Man." This week she tells you about a trying time when that song had nothing to do with the way she lived.

HOW TO FIX YOUR TV SET

You can fix your TV set yourself and save money. The first step: Find out which is the front of the set. Look for the glass window — this is usually the front. The back will be found at the extreme rear.

SOME COMMON TROUBLES:

No Picture or Sound — First, find the On-Off knob and move it to the On position. If this doesn't correct the trouble, insert the piug in the wall outlet. If this doesn't help, pay your electric bill.

Sound O.K., No Picture — Are you looking at the front of the set?

Waving Pictures — Be polite, wave back.

Squiggles — Locate the vertical - hold knob, often called the upsy - daisy, and turn until squiggling stops or changes to a sputter - flutter. (See sputter - flutter.)

Sputter - Flutter — Turn vertical - hold knob until trouble is corrected or becomes a squiggle. (See: Squiggles.)

Vertical Bars — Make sure you're not tuned to a prison movie.

Horizontal Bars — Have you wandered out of the house and into a saloon?

Double Image — You've had enough.

Distortion — If a beautiful songstress appears short and fat, this can be corrected by narrowing the picture. Telephone the station and ask the singer's weight. Add 45 pounds to what ever weight she admits, and adjust picture accordingly.

For some repairs it's necessary to remove the back of the set. If you intend to perform such repairs, you should keep a few things in mind:

1. There are places within the set where you can get a shock of 10,000 volts — even when the set is turned off. This shocking statement is a fact!
2. Glass tubes, when dropped on the floor, seldom bounce.
3. When attempting repairs for the first time, it is often prudent to service a neighbor's set rather than your own.
